Panhellenic To Discuss New Group

The possible formation of a fifteenth social sorority at the University will be discussed at a Panhellenic Council meeting Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. in the parlor of Ellen Smith Hall.

Women interested in a new sorority are asked by Panhellenic to attend and discuss circumstances which have led to the consideration. Panhellenic officials stressed that attendance at the meeting is not a commitment on the part of unaffiliated women.

Requirements and expenses of sorority membership will also be discussed. Cards have been sent to coeds registered for open rush.

University Yearly Dorm Rates To Be Hiked $50

Same Standard

Dormitory rates for both men and women will be increased from $520 to $570 per school year, John K. Selleck, Comptroller of the University, said Monday. The increase will go into effect in September.

"We have just one object in mind," Selleck said. That object is "to operate the dormitories on a highly acceptable basis to the students."

At the same time, he continued, the University "wants to provide good, ample food," keep dormitories clean and in good repair, and pay out the bond retirement contract.

Selleck stressed that "we want the students to understand that we are very reluctant to have to raise the rates." The present rates, he explained, were set three years ago, but operating costs are proving "more than we anticipated."

"As Low As Possible"
"And," he added, "we are anxious to set the rates as low as possible."

Regarding operating costs, Selleck said the University had two choices. One, was to set a less desirable table. "But," he emphasized, "we elected to keep the table at the same standard."

"No profit is desired or expected" from the dormitory operations, Selleck pointed out.

Bond Issue
Selleck said the bonds which were issued to pay for the new men's dormitories must also be paid off from dormitory income.

The bond issue, he explained, was for $2,200,000. It will be retired over a 25-year period with interest at 3.11 per cent, and the yearly retirement cost, he said, is $115,000.

Dcn Carlyon, director of Selleck Quadrangle, said, "I think there is no doubt about it that we have good facilities here, better facilities than some Eastern schools that have higher rates."

AUF Poll

AUF's annual charity poll will open Wednesday. Sixteen charities are represented on the poll which is being circulated to organized houses.

Booths will be set up in the Ag and city Unions. Further details on the charities can be found on page four.

Home Ec Style Show Scheduled For Sunday

The annual Home Ec style show will be held in the Union Ballroom, Sunday at 3 p.m.

This event is sponsored by the Home Economics Club and the fashion merchandising class instructed by Mary Hall, assistant professor of home economics.

According to Shirley Richards, chairman of the event, the theme of the show will be "weather vane points to fashion." Miss Richards added that approximately 60 garments will be modeled.

Other chairmen are Rogene Lees, publicity; Joyce Taylor, decorations; Lee Lingren, invitations and ushering; Marion Sokol, dressing room chairman; Dorothy Nevothy, program; Marilyn Anderson, music and Bonnie Lindau, modeling.

Housing For Married Students Speculated

Selleck Admits Risk In Future Buildings

Housing for married students sponsored by the University is a future possibility, University officials speculated.

The University has no authority to force married students to live in any future University-sponsored housing for them and would be running a financial risk in building housing units, John K. Selleck, Comptroller, said Monday.

If there is no housing shortage in the next ten years, the University has no guarantee that married students will not live out in Lincoln and not in University apartments if the rent were cheaper, Selleck said.

Selleck added that he was definitely in favor of married student housing, but the lack of any such assurance worried him.

Results of Survey
According to a survey conducted by Nebraska University Dames, an organization of student wives, there are 1,249 married students on the campus, and a majority of these students favor additional housing facilities.

This majority includes a number of students who are adequately housed, but feel there is a need for attention to the housing situation, Selleck said.

Appropriations for married student housing would come under the University's building plan or the University budget, he said.

Funds could be raised by means of revenue bonds, which would gradually be paid off in rentals received from the buildings, Selleck stated.

Legislature Bill
L. B. 138, now pending in the Legislature, would expand University authority to include building accommodations for married students. The present dormitory law includes only housing provisions for single students.

Most married University students pay an average of $50 to $70 per month for living quarters, according to the Dames report. Median rent for the 262 families polled is $65 per month for an unfurnished apartment.

Average rent for furnished apartments is $60; 231 students fall within this category and 25 per cent of these families have children.

"I do not know how satisfactory these living conditions are, but any University building would be modern and fireproof and would probably be heated by the University power plant," Selleck said.

Young Professors Need Space
Another problem is housing for young professors, who, according to Selleck, have an equally hard time finding adequate housing with a reasonable rent.

Two units on the campus for married housing are mostly occupied by University employees, Selleck said. They are the Van Horn apartments at the corner of 16th and R Streets, and the building located on the south side of S Street at the corner of 15th.

The S Street building will eventually be razed to make way for the additions to the Student Union, Selleck said.

The most satisfactory married student housing plan is that of Michigan State College, which charges $75 for a two-bedroom unit and $65 to $68 for a one-bedroom unit, according to Selleck.

"We hope it is possible to proceed with the program of University-of-Nebraska-sponsored housing for married students, Chancellor Clifford Hardin said.

Selleck said it would be at least two-and-a-half years before the unit could be built and no definite plans for any building program have been made as yet.

The Outside World

Reds Propose Meeting

By DICK BALSTON Staff Writer

The Chinese Communists are willing to receive an unofficial U.S. mission to discuss the case of the 15 imprisoned American airmen, according to Burmese Premier U Nu. Nu told newsmen Monday that he had conveyed Red approval of the idea to Secretary of State Dulles during Dulles' visit to Burma Saturday.

The suggested conference reportedly met with a cool reception in Washington.

Byrd Opposes Tax Cut

The highly controversial $20-a-person tax cut may die in the Senate Finance Committee. Although the committee is controlled 8-7 by Democrats, Chairman Byrd and Sen. George, both Democrats, have announced their opposition to the cut. Republican members of the committee are expected to vote solidly against the cut.

Germany Votes Rearmament

The lower house of the West German Parliament has approved treaties providing for rearmament of West Germany. Final ratification is expected in the upper house within three weeks.

Rearmament has now been approved by seven of the 14 NATO nations. The French National Assembly has given its approval, but final French approval rests with the Council of the Republic, France's upper house.

Truce Violations Investigated

Both Communist and Allied charges of Korean Armistice violations will be investigated by truce supervisors, according to the United Nations Command.

The Communists have charged combat material has been introduced illegally into six different locations in South Korea. The Allies have charged illegal presence of Communist MIGs in North Korea.

Branches Eliminated

Army ROTC Plans Change In 1955 Advanced Program

A major change in the University Army ROTC curriculum which will go into effect in September will be designed to produce junior Army officers with a basic knowledge essential to all branches of the Army, Chancellor Clifford Hardin announced Friday.

The change will eliminate specialization in the five branches of service: artillery, corps of engineers, infantry, military police and ordnance.

"Beginning in September most Army cadets will participate in the new program which is aimed at a higher academic level more in keeping with the University level of education," Col. Chester Diestel, professor of Military Science and tactics, said.

But University Juniors in Army ROTC who are now studying in particular branches for commission, he said, will complete their courses and be commissioned under the present system.

Emphasis in the revised program will be placed in problems requiring analysis by individual students, Col. Diestel continued.

Increased Economy
"On the basis of experience at institutions where the general military science program has been adopted," the Colonel said, "it has been found that the level of instruction has been on a higher academic plane with increased economy and interest on the part of educators and students alike."

Increased economy will result, he said, because of the elimination of specialized equipment, such as howitzers for artillery. The program will also assure a more balanced supply of cadets for the Army.

Since 1876, the University has been training cadets for commission as second lieutenants in the five Army branches.

Students in ROTC now choose the branches in which they want to specialize. After completing the four-year program they receive reserve commissions in the branch chosen.

Under the new curriculum, however, most cadets will follow one broad course concentrating on subjects which apply in all Army branches. These subjects include military history, combat arms, logistics, operations and materiel.

Widely Adopted
Seventy per cent of universities and colleges which maintain Army ROTC programs have adopted the
