Block And Bridle

Chairmen Named For Annual Ag Show

Plans are being formulated for the 21st annual Block and Bridle Show to be held in the State Fair Grounds Coliseum the evening of April 30.

Kaye Don Wiggins will be master of ceremonies for the livestock and horse show sponsored by the Block and Bridle Club, animal husbandry departmental organization.

hog, beef and sheep divisions. Jundt, special events chairman, said the number and kind of horse classes are still undetermined due to limited time of showing of these classes. He added that an event is being tentatively planned to include talent of local businessmen.

Committee Chairmen Co-chairmen of the event are Charles Watson and Don Novotny, club president. Novotny announced the following committees for the show:

Dwight Jundt, special events; Ray Kelley, tickets; Harvey Jorgenson, publicity; Kaye Don Wiggins, coed riding contest; Steve Pederson and Jim Peters, coliseum; Don Leisy, awards; Doyle Hulme, music and intercommunications system; Dwain Trenkle, cards and clothing; Jerry Schiermeyer, program; Stan Eberspacher, sheep showmanship; Jim Svoboda, cattle showmanship, and Vaidean Markussen, hog showmanship.

Dates for registering for contest events will be announced later. The contest will stress showmanship and grooming of animals in Potato Race Jundt said another event in the tentative stage is the potato race, a competitive event consisting of two teams on horses attempting to complete the transfer of potatoes from one end of the arena to another.

Some possibilities for classes being considered are palomino class, fine harness, Tennessee walking, jumper, parade, three-gaited, five-gaited and western pleasure. Jundt said being considered for the first time is the family class comprised of two or more members of a family exhibiting horses and riding skill.

Jundt said another class under consideration is a pony class for children under 12 riding ponies generally under 46 inches.

Social Work Institute Set For Weekend

Dr. Jermer Rose and Miss Mary Hester will lead sectional studies at the 10th annual Institute in Social Casework Friday and Saturday at the University.

Dr. Rose, assistant professor of psychiatry and neurology at the College of Medicine, will discuss treatment of disturbances in parent-child relationships.

Miss Hester is an associate professor at the George Warren Brown School of Social Work, Washington University, St. Louis, Mo. She will discuss casework supervision.

About 70 social workers from six Midwestern states are expected to attend the conference, sponsored by the Graduate School of Social Work. Lecture sessions will be held in Burnett.

Fifi Favors Pony-Tails

Cecilia TeSelle, as Fifi, is shown telling the Pi Phis that they must wear "pony-tails" if they are to be in fashion today. The Pi Phis agree with Fifi and win first place honors with their skit, "Fifi's Mane on Main Street." Although the Pi Phi shared first place with the Delta Gammars, they won the toss for the cup and it is now residing at the Pi Phi house.

DG's Feud On First

Lynn Holland carries the ball for the Delta Gammars as she sings the blues in their winning skit, "Feud on First." Two feuding families finally resolve their differences by laying down their weapons and participating in a singing and dancing contest. No one wins and no one loses, however, in the production which shared top award with the Pi Phi skit.

First Exhibition

Electrical Engineers Began Annual E-Week In 1894

By BARRY LARSON Guest Writer

Love, says tradition, is where a young man's fancy turns when spring is in the air. Since 1894, however, spring finds student engineers at the University turning their time and energy to Engineer's week.

The department of electrical engineering gave birth to E-Week on Feb. 15, 1894, when it decided to put on a small exhibition for Charter Day.

According to scribes of the day, the crowds who visited the new electrical engineering building were thrilled and amazed with displays consisting of an artificial coin tester, the production of calcium chloride in an electric furnace and a "Big Electromagnet."

In 1895 the electrical engineers added many other displays and, deciding to make a tradition out of it, called it their first Annual Exhibition.

Not to be outdone, the mechanical engineers stepped in with their new mechanical engineering building complete with modern laboratory equipment. The other engineering departments picked up the idea, and in 1913 the first Annual Engineers' Week was held.

These hardy pioneers of annual Engineers' Week had many other ideas which seem to have fallen by the wayside. Among them was the depositing of their brother engineers who "gooted off" into a water-filled horse tank. They also held an annual skirmish with the law students.

Engineers' Week has grown a good deal since the first efforts by the E.E.'s. It is a time when the engineering student shows to others the interest in his chosen field.

The slogan of this year's E-Week is "Engineering — It's All Around You." It will be portrayed by

Secondary School

Rosenlof Completes Puerto Rico Report

By JIM McCARTNEY Staff Writer

There is no middle class in Puerto Rico—only extremes of poverty and wealth, said Dr. George Rosenlof, Dean of Admissions, after his recent visit there.

Dr. Rosenlof has returned from San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he was sent by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools to examine the secondary program at Antilles Dependent High School.

The school is run by the U. S. Government for children of officers and Armed Forces personnel stationed in San Juan. It is under consideration for full accreditation as a standard high school.

Dr. Rosenlof inspected the school and drew up a report of his findings for the North Central group. If his findings are accepted by the Association, graduates of the school will be eligible for acceptance in any college in the United States.

The program at the high school is college preparatory and approximately 90 per cent of its graduates will go to college.

Dr. Rosenlof said there are several private schools in Puerto Rico. Spanish schools are fair academically, he said.

The Dean visited historic Fort El Moro where he received a desk lighter made of the wood of the Fort which is more than 400 years old.

While visiting a Rotary Club meeting in San Juan, Dr. Rosenlof talked with some native Nebraskans now living in Puerto Rico.

J. C. Seacrest Award

Journalism Scholarship Offers Advanced Study

Applications for the $1,000 J. C. Seacrest Scholarship for advanced study in journalism are being received in the School of Journalism office, Room 309, Burnett.

Deadline for applications is noon, March 19. Interviews will be March 23, and the winner will be announced by April 19. Seniors in the University School of Journalism are eligible.

The 1955-56 Seacrest scholar will be the 14th in the group of University journalism graduates since 1945 who have received the award, created in 1942 in honor of the late publisher of the Lincoln Journal.

During the war years the award was not made, and in 1945-46-47 there were two grants annually until the unfilled earlier grants were used up. In 1953 there were also two scholarships, one being the unused 1951 award.

Recent Seacrest Scholars and their subsequent professional careers are:

Low Geier received the 1950 award. He did postgraduate work at the University and handled public relations for the Salt-Wahoo Watershed project. After doing television work for the University, he went to the Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C., where he is now doing editorial work.
