National Group Nominates Gomom

By ROGER WAIT Staff Writer Charles Gomom, junior in the College of Arts and Sciences, was nominated for the national vice presidency of the Association of International Relations Clubs at the AIRC eighth annual conference in St. Louis April 1 to 4.

Charles Gomom, junior in the College of Arts and Sciences, was nominated for the national vice presidency of the Association of International Relations Clubs at the AIRC eighth annual conference in St. Louis April 1 to 4.

Gomom, who is majoring in political science and mathematics, is president of the Nebraska University Council on World Affairs, a Nebraskaan editorial page columnist and a member of Sigma Nu and Delta Sigma Rho, national forensics honorary fraternity.

Also attending the conference from the University was Roger Wait, NUCWA member. He served as recorder for a round-table discussion at the convention.

A Bill Christensen, a graduate student in history at the University, was elected to serve on the nominating committee of the conference. He is a past national president of the AIRC.

Approximately 375 delegates attended the convention representing over 100 colleges and universities.

Also at the conference was Wartomo, a 23-year-old Indonesian student who visited the University campus before spring vacation. He attends the University of Indonesia at Djakarta and is vice president of Indonesian-Moslem Student Union and Secretary of the All Indonesian-Moslem Youth Federation.

Dr. Henry Wriston, president of Brown University, delivered the keynote address. He spoke on "the U.S.A., Paradox of Power."

Dr. Wriston, president of the Council of Foreign Relations, stressed that speaking of political issues in mathematical terms of finding "solutions to problems" leads to a national "feeling of frustration we have."

He said that the U.S. and Russia are competing in four major areas: military, industrial, atomic and ideological. Russia and Communist China outnumber the U.S. in manpower, Dr. Wriston stated.

Although the U.S. has "vastly more industrial power than Russia and Communist China," Dr. Wriston said, "does not tell the whole story." In the future, he said, the U.S. will not have two or three years to mobilize. It will be the primary target.

Dr. Wriston said security for the U.S. is not attained by possessing numerical superiority in atomic weapons. Americans have arrived at the "ultimate irony," he commented, "to possess power so great that no one will dare to sue it."

A stalemate in atomic weapons has been reached, he said, which is reminiscent of the stalemate in World War II of poison gas and bacteriological weapons. "An analogy," Dr. Wriston said, "is suggested by this stalemate: Just as the power of weapons grows, so grows restraint." Restraint, he added, is also necessary in the use of political power.

But perhaps the greatest competition is in the ideological struggle, Dr. Wriston said. And, he pointed out, "we doubt our own system's durability."

The important fact, he emphasized, is that we do have an ideology. One cornerstone of it is the passage in the Declaration of Independence which reads:

"All men are created equal; they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights."

And Lincoln, Dr. Wriston pointed out, said in the Gettysburg address that the U.S. has a "government of the people, for the people and by the people."

"Either our democratic faith is valid, or it is false," Dr. Wriston concluded. "If false, we were defeated before we started. If valid, we cannot fail. We must rejoice in our strength and our obligation to use it."

Trouble Spots Howard Cook, chief of the Public Services Division of State Department, briefed the conference on world trouble spots, and Dorothy Fosdick, author of "Common Sense and World Affairs," suggested that Americans who to her are a bit too idealistic, should bring themselves to see more clearly the practical side of world affairs.

Speaking at the concluding banquet on "The Citizen's Responsibility in U.S. Foreign Policy," Dr. John W. Nason, president of the Foreign Policy Association, stressed that Americans prepare themselves "to face 30 to 50 years of tension and possible war."

Pointing out that the world looks to the U.S. for a war-or-peace decision Nason said "this is no time to dodge responsibilities that go with education."

He urged delegates to "galvanize your own and nearby campuses into a sense of urgency at the international situation now."

The delegates were guests at "Ten Nights in a Barroom," a vaudeville melodrama shown on an old-time Mississippi River showboat.

Meeting To Consider Jobs Available To Ag Students

Job opportunities for Ag College graduates will be the topic of a meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Room 306, Agricultural Hall.

Franklin Eldridge, associate director of resident instruction, said the program, designed primarily for juniors, is to help students explore job possibilities in industry.

Eldridge explained that recent studies indicate a large number of college graduates change jobs within a short time after graduation. The reason for this varies, he said, but it has been suggested that the college graduate is not familiar with the actual work involved in some jobs.

William Loeffel, chairman of the animal husbandry department, will give a talk on "What's It All About." Howard Elm, secretary of the Nebraska Grain and Feeders' Association, will discuss opportunities in the grain, seed and feed business.

Carlisle Sorenson, industrial relations manager of Swift & Co., Omaha, and Kenneth Logan of the

Distant Home Student Visits Italy For Spring Vacation

By LEO DAMKROGER Ag Editor

One University student, Bruce Maunder, had to travel more than 5,000 miles to reach his home in Rome, Italy, for spring vacation.

Maunder, a junior in the College of Agriculture, left at 7 p.m. March 3 by plane and arrived at 7 p.m. the next day in Rome to visit his parents, who have resided there since 1951. Maunder's father is chief of the institutions and services branch of the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations.

The transportation to Rome was paid through the courtesy of F.A.O. according to a schooling agreement. This was Maunder's third trip to Rome under the agreement.

Visit To Florence He has made four trips to Italy and has spent one year of high school there. He has been in 22 different countries including Switzerland, Holland and England. Some of the countries he has visited are Iceland, Azores, Sicily, Tunisia and Algeria.

While in Italy during vacation Maunder spent two days in Florence, the center of art and education in ancient days. He said 17,000 Americans reside in Florence.

Some of the highlights of Rome, Maunder said, are the new suburbs just recently completed. He said almost all the people live in apartment buildings, some of which are quite modern, and there is a contrast between the modern times and the ancient ruins of Caesar's day.

Maunder related that the traffic problem interests American tourists in Rome. There are very few laws governing traffic. He said that once the traffic policemen of Rome went on strike and refused to give tickets.

Maunder told about two autos

Engineers Win Phalanx Win ROTC

A squad from the Engineers' Battalion of Army ROTC won the annual Phalanx Drill competition March 31.

Navy Squad Two placed second in the competition and Navy Squad One placed third.

Members of the winning team each received an engraved loving cup and the squad leader received a larger loving cup. The sponsoring unit was awarded a traveling trophy and will carry the Phalanx Honor Flag during parades this year.

The squads were judged on the basis of performance, bearing of squad and squad leader, variety of commands and appearance of squad and squad leader.

Keith Corbridge, Jr., lieutenant, USA; Frank D. Dollar, Master Sergeant, USA; Richard F. Gillen, Major, Nebraska National Guard; Robert D. Ballard, Master Sergeant, USAF; Max A. Merritt, Captain, USMC; Donald R. Long, Master Sergeant, USMC, were judges for the competition.

Ten squads, composed of nine men each, took part in the drill. They were selected from Army, Navy and Air Force ROTC units.

The Military Police squad, Air Force Group 105, Artillery squad, Infantry squad, Air Force Group 103, Ordnance squad and Air Force Group 104 also competed.

Phalanx, a national fraternity of Epsilon Morse Phalanx, is open to junior and senior students in advanced ROTC. Current officers are Don Keerans, commander; Bill Neef, lieutenant commander; Barry Larson, finance officer, and Al Anderson, public information officer.

LUCKY DROODLES! LOADS OF LAUGHS! WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below. STUDENTS! EARN $25! LUCKY STRIKE CIGARETTES 'IT'S TOASTED' to taste better! NO MATTER WHERE YOU ARE, you'll get more pleasure from your cigarette if it's a Lucky Strike. That's the point of the Droodle above, titled: Three deep-sea divers enjoying Luckies. You get deep-down smoking enjoyment from Luckies because they taste better. Why do they taste better? That's easy to fathom. First of all, Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. 'It's Toasted'—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better... cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, when it's light-up time, light up the better-tasting cigarette... Lucky Strike. Better taste Luckies. LUCKIES TASTE BETTER... Cleaner, Fresher, Smoother!
