The Outside World Ike OK's Negotiations

By DICK RALSTON
Staff Writer

President Eisenhower has clarified the United States position in regard to negotiations with Red China. He issued a statement that the U.S. is willing to confer alone with Red China on a ceasefire in the Formosa area, but not on matters affecting Nationalist China.

Eisenhower said it may have been somewhat of an overstatement when the United States insisted last Saturday that Nationalist China be a party to any negotiations on the Formosa crisis. However, he stressed that the United States is not going to deal behind the backs of the Nationalists on matters which concern the Chiang Kai-shek government.

British Diplomats Active

The coming British election on May 26 is reportedly lending urgency to British diplomatic efforts. According to British informants, Prime Minister Eden is hoping to achieve a diplomatic grand slam including Formosa peace talks, independence for Austria and an approach to Big Four talks in time to swing votes to the conservative party during the election.

As a result of this political diplomacy, Britain has asked Premier Chou En lai of Communist China to elaborate on his proposal for direct negotiations with the United States on Formosa, and is taking the initiative in pushing for an early Big Four conference. British, American and French officials are now meeting in London to draw up a plan for a conference with Russia to ease world tensions.

Immunization Set Back

The nation-wide campaign to immunize school children from polio was set back in several areas after eight children inoculated with one company's output of the vaccine were reported to have contracted the disease.

Public health officials say there is no cause for alarm and have stopped the company from producing any more vaccine until it can be tested.

Administration Replies

NU Sustains Suspension

By SAM JENSEN
Copy Editor

Richard Glasford, former Business Administration junior, was fined $25 in County Court Thursday for disturbing the peace in connection with the April 14 riot.

Glasford did not deny charges that he had been on the first floor of the women's dormitory and had placed a handkerchief over his face to avoid identification. Glasford said that he had not harmed anyone or taken anything. He said that he had entered the dormitory "to see what was going on."

Glasford was identified in the hallway by Dean Frank Halgren, associate dean for men, and was told to report to the dean's office in the morning.

Acting Judge Ralph Slocum said that Glasford knew what he was doing wrong as evidenced by the attempt to conceal his identity.

It was also reported Thursday that no court charges have been filed against Clarence Swanson, suspended student whose case was being considered by the University administration for possible reinstatement.

After considering the case of Clarence Swanson, the University has decided to sustain its previous decision to suspend the former sophomore Agricultural student.

The University had previously reinstated William Doleman, 23-year-old graduate student. Doleman has been placed on conduct probation.

Dean of Student Affairs J. P. Colbert said the case was reviewed when Doleman, a graduate student, after first admitting he was in the woman students' residence during the disturbance, later insisted that he remained in the building lobby for a brief period and then left without entering the area reserved for living quarters.

"We have no evidence to dispute Doleman's statement," the Dean said. "We do have evidence that his conduct earlier in the evening was not what we expect from students and on that basis he has been placed on conduct probation but he has been reinstated."

Queried concerning the basis of suspension for the 19 students, the administration answered, "The Administration has considered as the basis for suspending students the identification of those having been in the living quarters of the women's residence halls and the sorority houses during the demonstration on the evening of Thursday, April 14."

Doleman has testified that he was on the first floor of the women's dormitory, but did not participate actively in the violence.

Doleman appeared in County Court and paid a fine of $25 after pleading guilty to disturbing the peace. One student who has been suspended paid a fine of $10; another student paid a fine of $75.

The Nebraskan, in an attempt to clarify issues which have arisen because of Doleman's reinstatement, attempted to interview Dean Colbert Thursday afternoon. Colbert and Bruce Nicoll, administrative assistant to the Chancellor, told the Nebraskan that the Administration would be willing to answer any written questions that The Nebraskan would offer, but they did not think that it would be wise for one person to state the University's views without conferring with other University officials.

The questions, and the Administration's answers are as follows: Was not Doleman positively identified? Upon final review the Administration could not get adequate proof that Mr. Doleman had been in the living quarters area of the women's residence hall during the rioting.

Was consideration made in his case of his graduate status and past record? No.

Was consideration made in other cases of suspension of past record, good or bad? Conduct records were considered. Is the University considering reinstating next fall any others suspended? No.

If Doleman is not guilty of leaving the main entranceway of the dormitory, why did he plead guilty in court? Is there not a case of a student who was suspended who paid paid smaller court fines than Doleman?

These are questions which must be answered by (a) Mr. Doleman and (b) the County Attorney's office. The evidence considered by the University and by a court in this instance need not be the same. What bearing will the court decision have on the status of those students who have pleaded innocent to charges? None.

Why was Swanson's case being considered for reinstatement? Because of its relation to other aspects of the riot, the Swanson case was reviewed, but not necessary.

Questionnaires Sent

Men's Advisory Board Formed

All Men's Advisory Board has been newly formed for "closer cooperation among men's groups." It includes the presidents of the major all-male activities.

The first project of the organization has been to send questionnaires to fraternities and living units on campus in order to determine if outside activities interfere with Monday night meetings. The advisory board is interested in the effect of play practices, song practices, organizational meetings, and sports activities on the functions of fraternities and living groups.

The advisory board has been asking for responses concerning this question, in order to take action to remedy any problems. In a letter sent to fraternities, sororities, and co-ops, Monday night, the advisory board asked rapid responses in order to fix the schedules for the coming year.

The All Men's Advisory Board is composed of Marvin Stromer, president of Innocents Society; Junior Knobel, president of Corn Cobs; Al Anderson, president of Kosmet

Club; Jim Cederdahl, president of N Club; Doug Jensen, president of R. A. M. Council; Bill Devries, president of Interfraternity Council; Walt Brestal, president of Interco-op Council. The advisor to the group is Frank Halgren, associate dean of men.

The advisory board stated in its letter that it had no officers, no constitution, no legislative powers, and no treasury. It's wish and purpose was to "promote things that are constructive."

Dean Halgren was instrumental in initiating the organization, which will act in the capacity of a student forum for all men students. They stated that one of their primary concerns was encouraging greater participation by men in student activities, especially by independent students.

Bill Devries, member of the advisory board, stressed the importance of the co-operation of men's housing groups in making this movement a success, and felt that it would be useful in making needed changes in the structure of men's activities.

William Campbell, Phi Gamma Delta, was elected president of the Interfraternity Council Wednesday.

John Gourlay, Beta Theta Pi, was elected vice-president; Dick Trupp, Delta Tau Delta, treasurer; and Sam Ellis, Phi Delta Theta, secretary.
