

Beideck Second

Sandy Speicher Named Miss Lincoln Of 1955

Sandy Speicher, Teachers College sophomore, was named Miss Lincoln of 1955 Sunday night.

Miss Speicher has been a Beauty Queen finalist and has been named Lions Club Queen of Omaha.

"We were judged by the judges in individual conversation at a dinner given by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce which sponsored the contest," she said.

Marilyn Beideck, Teachers College junior, placed second in the competition. A Nebraska Wesleyan student, Janet Miller, placed third.

Miss Speicher will go to Kearney for the State contest June 7 and 8. If she is successful at Kearney, she will represent Nebraska at Atlantic City in August, where Miss America will be selected.

"I think it will be a wonderful experience to go to Kearney for the state contest," Miss Speicher said. She said she was surprised to receive the honor.

Miss Speicher has had modeling experience at various Lincoln and Omaha stores. She has also been a finalist for Miss Benson High School, Hi-Y Coronation Princess,

Miss Speicher considers her trip to Europe the summer before her freshman year as one of her most rewarding experiences. "I'd like to go again, just to see what I missed the first time," she said.

Miss Speicher is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman scholastic honorary, All University Fund Board, Cornhusker section head, Kappa Kappa Gamma and has been on the Dean's Honor Roll. She was presented with a wrist watch, a bouquet of flowers and a crown for receiving the title. Miss Speicher delivered a three-minute talk on her teaching career as an exhibition of talent.

Her interests include playing the piano, traveling, swimming, water-skiing and writing.

Miss Beideck, second place winner, is a member of Red Cross Board of Managers, Alpha Chi Omega and Mortar Board.

Miss Speicher will be honored at luncheon Tuesday, given by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

Excellence In Study

Zenon Receives AIA Architecture Prize

Golden Joseph Zenon Jr., a senior in architecture, was presented the American Institute of Architects award Friday for excellence in the study of architecture at the University.

Frank McNett, regional director of the AIA, gave him the award which consists of a medal and a book, "Mont-Saint Michel and Chartres," by Henry Adams.

Zenon has also won honors in other architectural contests.

Last week he was awarded the $300 first prize in a home design contest of the Lincoln Home Builders. His plan was selected the best design adaptable to the selected site in Lincoln of a three bedroom $18,000 home.

The house, which will resemble other houses on the outside, represents in the interior an original idea evolved by Zenon. He approached the house design with four things uppermost, he said.

His first consideration, Zenon said, was for the "mother of the house." He attempts in his plan to make her tasks easier and more pleasant. Other consideration were comfort, privacy and utility.

Zenon also took first place honors in the Indiana Limestone contest and won honorable mention in the Nebraska Concrete Homes Competition.

James Atkinson, senior in architecture, won the AIA's second-place award.

For ability, leadership and services rendered to the University and indication of professional ability, Tom Hunton, also a senior in architecture, received the medal of Alpha Rho Chi, national architectural honorary society.

Zenon, Atkinson and Hunton were awarded certificates for displaying outstanding ability and progress in the architecture department. They were chosen by vote of the architecture faculty.

YWCA Convention

Impresses Director Leadership Calibre

The high calibre of leadership on the YWCA National Board as seen in managing the Centennial Convention of nearly 4000 delegates was quite impressive, according to Janice Osborn, YWCA director.

Joyce Lasse, former YW President, and Mary Sorensen, Ag YW treasurer, were also University delegates to the twentieth Triennial Convention in New York.

One word "worship" will be included in the National YWCA Public Affairs Platform for the next Triennial due to the efforts of Miss Osborn. In order to serve democracy, the YWCA proposed to continue work for elimination of segregation in "employment, housing, education, transportation, recreation and food services."

Miss Osborn moved to include the word "worship" to that list of six areas where discrimination is not infrequent.

"The 11 o'clock hour on Sunday is the most segregated hour during the week in America," Miss Osborn said in discussing the accepted amendment on the Convention floor in Manhattan Center.

Harold E. Stassen, newly-appointed special assistant to President Eisenhower on problems of disarmament, gave an address, "This Moment in History," at the opening session of the convention.

The University YWCA was recognized as one of the Associations which made substantial contribution. Nebraska delegates were asked to stand. Nearly $4 million of the $5 million goal for 1955 has been contributed through fund-raising projects in local YWCA units throughout the country.

At a Special YWCA Centennial Service held in Radio City Music Hall, the Westminster College Choir

Miss Blanche Thebom, Metropolitan Opera star, and narrators provided a background for the dedication of Birthday gifts and contributions.

The National YWCA took a positive stand for the establishment of an international pool of fissionable material to promote human welfare, and for the repeal of "Buy American" legislation. They opposed measures making evidence secured by wire-tapping without judicial sanction admissible in federal courts and Constitutional amendments limiting powers of the President in international relations.
