Clutch Hitting In Baseball

Bill Giles Captures Nebraskan Award For 'Star Of The Week'

By BRUCE BRUGMANN Sports Editor Firstbaseman Bill Giles, the master of the clutch hit, stroked two late-inning blows in breaking up the Friday game with Missouri and the K-State contest Monday to gain the Nebraskan 'Star of the Week' accolade.

Giles, currently sailing along at a better than .450 clip, has filled in the cleanup slot most of the season. Aside from his slugging chores, he is a better than average glove man around first base.

Giles passed up an offer after graduating from high school to play with the Philadelphia Athletics. Last year Giles roamed in the outfield to make way for Ray Novak at first base and also to utilize Giles' strong throwing arm.

Southpaw Fran Hofmaier started for NU today and went six innings before being relieved by Willie Greenlaw. During his stint on the mound, he allowed only two hits and no runs. He fanned three and walked one. Greenlaw was less effective, walking six and fanning two. His four walks in the seventh inning resulted in the first KS run.

This column's absence from the sports page in past weeks has met with no mass protest, and the sports editor has received no more than 76 odd letters inquiring into its disappearance. Seventy-four of the 76 letters thought that my hair had been parted with a meat cleaver and all of these persons, bless their hearts, offered sympathy and condolences.

Persistent rumor...

When rumors fly high enough that they begin to verge on half truth, sometimes they appear in print. One of the most widely circulated rumors is concerned with track coach Jerry Lee and his speculated departure from the University athletic scene.

This writer talked with Coach Lee several days before the first report of possible departure appeared in print (in a Lincoln newspaper) and as he wished nothing said, decided to forget about it. The issue now appears to be in the open. For background: Reports have it that Lee is seriously contemplating returning to Grand Island where he was head football and track coach, athletic director for the high school and also supervisor for the grade school athletic program.

Senate action...

The recent action by the Faculty Senate easing eligibility requirements does one thing. It makes it easier for athletes to get through school. This can be good or bad. Although the action lessens certain requirements, it isn't so different from the present setup where the majority of athletes with scholastic difficulty go to summer school to make up hour deficiencies.

In the first of the crucial two game series with Missouri, the Huskers were trailing, 3-2, going into the ninth inning. Giles came to bat with the bases loaded and promptly cracked a double into centerfield, bringing in the clinching two runs.

Monday, in the Kansas State contest, Giles was one inning ahead of schedule. Coming to the plate with Don Brown, who had just singled to center, on first base, the lanky blond rattled a long triple to right centerfield to snap a 2-2 deadlock and put the Huskers into the lead for the first time. He scored moments later on a Wildcat bobble.
