

WELCOME from

The Chancellor

CHANCELLOR HARDIN, Mrs. Hardin, and three of their children.

One of the truly pleasant tasks I have is to extend the hand of friendship and welcome to the young men and women who will enter the University of Nebraska this fall. You are the newest generation of Cornhuskers and I am sure that you will find the years ahead of you here on the campus challenging, inspiring and friendly. You are now members of the great family of Cornhuskers. I am sure you will find it a fine family.

You are coming to the University to learn. The first responsibility of the University is to provide an opportunity for you to learn. The areas of study here are much, much broader than in our high schools. In its various colleges the University offers more than 2,000 courses. The University, you see, is providing ample opportunity. How you avail yourself of that opportunity is largely up to you. The entire staff here will help you but you have the responsibility of carrying out assignments without being cajoled or coaxed.

There is good reason to believe that the next few years will be among the most memorable of your life. College years should be productive, healthy, happy ones. This University operates to enable you to learn more about the world in which you live, more about yourself, and more about the society with which you will make your way.

Our objective is a good deal more than the transmission of a given amount of technical knowledge. The entire concept of our life here is in America is based on the belief that the individual citizen is intelligent, capable, conscientious, and sensitive to the difference between truth and untruth and to the difference between morality and immorality. This University is dedicated to the training of young people whose performances will prove the wisdom of this great theory of democracy.

We want our University to be a testing ground. It must be if it is to serve you well. I hope you will habitually sharpen your curiosity. I hope you will ask questions; many questions, but always with purpose. I hope you will develop the potential capacity you have for the willing acceptance of responsibility. I hope you will become keenly aware of the importance of integrity.

As I say, these next few years can be, and should be, most memorable and happy and productive. I am very glad that you are here to live them as a fellow Cornhusker. This is your new home and you are welcome here.

CLIFFORD M. HARDIN
Chancellor

Junior Division—

Dear New Student:

We of the Junior Division and Counseling Service are very happy and proud that you have chosen the University of Nebraska as your college. We would like to extend you a warm welcome as a new member of the great Cornhusker family.

Nearly all of you will be members of the Junior Division for a period of time. During that period we will want to become very well acquainted with each one of you individually. One of the first opportunities to get to know you individually will be during New Student Week. The week is devoted to a number of activities which are designed to make the pathway from high school to college as smooth as possible.

New Student Week involves a number of varied but very important elements. First, through group meetings and individual conferences, you will be given an opportunity to develop a good relationship with your faculty advisor. Second, upper-class student leaders will be assisting you in getting oriented to the campus and its surroundings. Third, many academic and social activities have been carefully planned to help you make the best possible start in the University.

In addition to the activities of New Student Week, you will also have the opportunity to utilize a number of other services which the University feels are important aids to student adjustment in college. Such services as educational and vocational counseling and reading and study improvement courses are offered without charge to University students and are centered in our division. If you think these things will be helpful to you, please feel free to talk with us about them when you arrive on the campus.

I am sure that you are eager for New Student Week and the rich college experiences that are to follow. We know that you will join whole-heartedly in all the activities that have been planned for you, and we hope that you will have a great freshman year and a wonderful four-year experience in the University.

Most Cordially yours,
WESLEY A. POE
Director, Junior Division and Counseling Service

Dean Rosenlof—

Greetings to High School Graduates:

The University on Nebraska is very proud of its high standing and of the recognition it has received in its continued growth and development through the years. It is your institution in every sense of that word. You, as a high school graduate, are entitled to have the privileges of an education in this University, and we want to welcome you with every bit of assurance that we can. We want to commend the University to you as an appropriate place in which to continue your education.

One of the important considerations of young high school graduates coming to the University is that they will have the privilege of living in one of our fine residence halls. Young men have the opportunity either to live in the new Men's Residence Halls, or in the fraternity which they pledge.

Young women, on the other hand, are expected to live in the Women's Residence Halls during the first year, even if they pledge a sorority.

Be assured that your coming to the University of Nebraska will be a source of satisfaction to all of us, as we hope it will be to you, and we stand ready to be of assistance and to counsel you.

Congratulations, then, upon your graduation from high school, and our good wishes that you may continue along the road of further formal education and qualify yourself for the many opportunities that are open for college men and women these days. There never was a time when we needed leadership more than we do now.

Sincerest greetings to you all!

Very cordially yours,
G. W. ROSENLOF
Dean of Admissions and Inter-institutional Relationships.

Panhellenic Director—

Dear Rushee,

We of Women's Panhellenic Association would like to welcome you as an entering student and let you know how pleased we are that you have chosen the University of Nebraska as your home away from home. Welcome to the happy family!

Our Panhellenic Association, composed of fourteen social sororities on campus, carries on many activities besides conducting Rush Week.

We sponsor Panhellenic Workshop each year. This Workshop

Week is devoted to exchange luncheons and dinners, discussion groups on scholarship, social standards, rushing, and activities. A banquet closes the week with a speaker of fraternity note.

Each year a scholarship is given to a foreign student. Numerous other projects are planned and developed by Panhellenic.

We hope your college days at Nebraska will be filled with many friends, activities, studies, and fun.

MADLINE GIRARD
Sincerely,
Panhellenic Director.

Builders President—

Dear Soon-to-be-Cornhuskers,

You're as lucky as anyone can be! As a senior at the University of Nebraska, I can look back on the days when I was planning to enroll here. I knew then that I was fortunate, but I never dreamed that so many wonderful things were in store. The campus has so much to offer you: a comprehensive education, an opportunity to enjoy a variety of friendships, and a chance to develop your abilities.

Builders hopes that this newspaper will give you a "sneak preview" of some of these opportunities you'll find on the campus. You see, we want to start right now making you feel a vital part of the University. We couldn't be happier that you have decided to continue your education here. You've made the wisest possible choice, and you have a valuable experience awaiting you.

Yes, you're very lucky. "There Is No Place Like Nebraska" soon will be your theme song, too, and we heartily and sincerely welcome you to the chorus!

Sincerely,
CATHY OLDS
President—U. of N. Builders
