

Huskers Swamped As Rainbows Pop

By Walt Blore
Sports Staff Writer

Back on the island of Oahu they're singing the song "You Gotta Have Heart" with new gusto, for the Rainbows from the University of Hawaii really proved that theory as they smashed the Cornhuskers in resounding fashion Saturday, 6-0.

On paper the Cornhuskers had everything while the boys from Pineapple Land had nothing—nothing but a tremendous amount of spirit. That spirit showed from the opening kickoff until the final gun went off.

Huskers Out-Charged
Paced by Skippy Dyer and a bevy of hard running backs the Hawaiians completely out-charged the heavier and more talented Nebraskans.

Actually, the Rainbows didn't win the game until the fourth quarter when, with 9:30 left, hard-charging Hartwell Freitas plunged over from the one-foot line for the only score of the game. But, from the time Dyer returned the opening kick to the Hawaii 46, things looked black for the Big Red. The game was highlighted by missed tackles that enabled the backs from the island of Oahu to make large gains when it appeared as if they would be slammed to the ground many yards behind the line of scrimmage.

Looked Alive
Immediately after the second half kickoff the Huskers looked like the pre-season raves they had been receiving from the sportswriters. In nine plays they marched from their own twenty to the Rainbow thirteen. Then with fourth down and three to go on the six Willie Greenlaw tried a cross-back and met a solid stone wall.

The Nebraskans threatened only once after that. With little more than five minutes left Ed Kawawaki punted to Rex Fischer on the Nebraska 32. The diminutive scabback from Oakland got to the Hawaii 37 before he was finally caught. Four successive passes failed to find their targets and the threat died on the 29 with about two minutes left. The Rainbows ran out the clock and joyously celebrated at mid-field.

GAME NOTES: ... About the only precision seen all afternoon was the halftime drill put on by the Naval Air Cadets from the Pensacola Naval Air Station

Sport Shorts Walls Come Tumbling Down

By BOB COOK
Sports Editor

"Hawaii fit the battle of Nebraska and the walls came a tumbling down." So goes the well known spiritual and so it went last Saturday on the Memorial Stadium sod with a band of determined gridders from the island of Oahu substituting for the immortal Joshua.

Nebraska's unforeseen upset can be seen from many perspectives. For the aggressive Hawaiians it was the gaining of a much sought after revenge; an achievement of a goal.

For an awed crowd of 23,000 it was no upset once the game was underway. The Huskers were just plain outclassed.

Dismal Opening

For the Cornhusker followers it was a dismal opening of a rugged ten game schedule. For the sportswriters it was a chance to pick the scabs off of an almost healed wound that has previously threatened Nebraska Athletic staffs, and last of all, to Coach Bill Glassford it was a shattering blow to the hopes he had put into this year's edition of the Cornhusker football squad.

After last season's 50-0 shellacking by a superior Nebraska foe, the Islanders decided they would avenge their classification of "a mediocre high school team." The Hawaiians, who although isolated from the continent and unable to meet any local foes, had finally scheduled a "big time football power," and found out what the competition was like.

It was disclosed Sunday from members of the Hawaii delegation that their smashing upset was not just "one of those things." It was a well planned, well calculated, achievement of the so-called impossible.

Looking Ahead

Immediately after the game last November, the Rainbows began looking to the second game of the series. The coach wrote all the teams the Huskers had played, and received scouting reports, films of the games and began the task of learning all they could about the Nebraska football machine.

As drills opened August 10, the Hawaiians began running drills against Nebraska offensive and defensive patterns. And Saturday the Islanders showed they hadn't wasted their time, for they showed they wanted to win and did just that.

Perhaps the most ironical note of the contest was that the Huskers ran only six offensive plays as they tried to prevent the Ohio State scout from getting a full dope sheet on the Husker attack.

Too Late . . .

At the half it was realized they had better start worrying about the game they had on their hands at the time but evidently it was too late. The Huskers went back on the gridiron on even terms (0-0) but the spirit and the teamwork couldn't compare with the tactful Hawaiians.

Personal View . . .

Personally I feel that several attitudes will have to be changed or the Huskers will really be condemned to a losing season. One is that of the "loyal" Nebraska fans who after seeing things weren't going right for the Huskers began jeering the Scarlet efforts and the Cornhusker squad is looking down the barrel of one of the roughest applauding the opponents.

The other is the matter of trying to find fault in the policy of the squad and their coaching.

If there are any bones to be picked about the handling of the Huskers, I think the time to do it is after the season . . . not when schedules in the school's history.

Erway Intercepts Pass . . .

Don Erway, first string Husker quarterback, intercepts a Hawaii aerial on the Nebraska 30-yard line. Erway was immediately snowed under by three Hawaii tacklers.

Football Tickets

Students who have just returned to the campus are reminded to pick up their football tickets at the coliseum lobby ticket office between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Thursday, September 22.

Five dollars and a validated I.D. card are necessary before the student may obtain his ticket.

Married students may obtain tickets for their spouses.

Husker Defeat Also Financial

The Rainbows disproved the theory that you can't have your cake and eat it too.

The Oahu Island boys won the football game and picked up a check for $25,000 as a guarantee.

To add insult to injury the Cornhuskers spent $25,272.38 on their trip to Hawaii last fall and received only $6,358.82 as their share of the profits at that game.
