Law Additions

An addition planned for the present Law College building will add about 30 feet to the present structure, and will provide space for a law library, the University has announced. The addition will contain six book stack levels and a basement. Work will begin this fall and completion is planned for next year. This building and the new administrative wing will both be financed by the one-mill levy.

Administration Annex

A $600,000 administration annex will be built on the present Teachers College building, with bids on construction due Oct. 18. The building will be of modern design, brick construction, and will be four stories high. It will contain administrative offices and provide for additional classroom space on the third floor of the Teachers College. Work on the building is expected to begin in July, 1957, and will eliminate all campus temporary buildings except for Student Health.

Fifty Singers: Men's Glee Club Selects Members

Fifty men students have been selected members of the University Men's Glee Club, Dale Ganz, director and assistant professor of voice, announced today.

The group plans to sing concerts on campus, in town and out in the state later in the semester, Ganz said. Membership in the organization is open to men students who are not music majors.

The men's glee club was organized last February by Ganz. The purpose was to widen participation in music for non-majors and to provide a need for singing groups, Ganz added. The type of songs will range from Bach to show tunes.

Walter Schmidt, John Noble, Richard Stopher, Conrad Schneider, Robert Wagner, Bill Dahl, James Eselin, George Schweers and Clinton Gehrke.

Bass: Alan Anderson, Peter Anderson, Bob Hinman, Dean Davison, Lonnie Bayer, Larry Osterman, Nathan Miller, Larry Schrag, Ernest English, Jack Mills, Don Leisy, Bob Keifer, Chuck Hood and Lynn Van Winkle.

Harry Grasmick is the accompanist.

Authority Delegation: AWS Court System Debated By Coeds

A delegation of AWS authority concerning the infringement and court system is under consideration by organized houses and house officers.

Housemothers and house officers met with the AWS Board Tuesday afternoon to discuss the proposal, which would allow a house representative to campus girls breaking rules, according to rules set down in an AWS rule book and a standard guide. More serious or unusual offenses would be handled by the AWS court.

House representatives would meet with housemothers to determine whether a girl should be campused, excused or sent to court. The representative would have the authority to accept legitimate excuse.

"The proposal involves an administrative change, and would not put house representatives in a hard position" in my opinion, Paula Broadway Wells, AWS president, said in Tuesday's discussion.

The ultimate decision rests with AWS Board members, but houses are being consulted to allow the board to vote fairly, she said.

AWS sign-out committee will still check sign-out sheets, Kay Nosky, AWS vice-president, said. A house that continually turned in sign-out sheets without evidence of infringement of rules would be subject to some suspicion, she said.

Penalties would not be arbitrarily handed out to offenders, she said. AWS desires a more personal contact with the students, which is not possible due to time shortage under the present arrangement, Miss Nosky stated.

Questions were raised by house officers concerning resentment toward the representative who would have the authority. Representatives would hand out only mechanical penalties, she answered.

All houses expressed willingness to cooperate with the system, should it be passed. Some houses did voice objections to the proposal on the ground that the present AWS system is effective and respected by women students.

"The board feels that the individual woman would feel she knew and understood more of various aspects of AWS rules," Miss Nosky said.

In the past, an AWS ruling has been accepted without question, she said. The board feels that more student comment would be an advantage, she added.

The proposal would elevate the house of representatives to an authoritative position in the AWS structure, she added.

Pat Brown Chosen Queen Of Carnival

Patricia Brown, sophomore in Arts and Sciences, has been chosen Queen of the annual King Korn Carnival in Plattsmouth.

Miss Brown, a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority, was crowned at the King Korn Carnival Saturday night.

Candidates for this honor are picked by different businesses in Plattsmouth and elected by popular vote of the citizens of Cass County.

The Korn Carnival is an annual Cass County celebration which lasts for a week and includes band parades, beer and other livestock shows.

Other University students connected with the celebration include Barbara Sullivan, who was chosen a Countess, and Janice Caldwell, a candidate for queen. Both women are members of Delta Delta Delta sorority.

ture, Miss Nosky said. They would not be considered as members of the board, Mrs. Wells said.

A straw-vote was not taken on the proposal at the meeting. House representatives will meet in the near future to further consider the proposal.

"We will welcome any suggestion to improve the proposal, and will work until it is acceptable to the majority of students," Miss Nosky said.

Hardin Speaks: Dinner Honors 13 For Long Service

Thirteen staff members who have served 25 years at the University were honored at the annual faculty homecoming dinner Tuesday evening at the Union.

New staff members will be introduced by the deans and directors. Chancellor Clifford Hardin was the principal speaker.

Those receiving certificates were: Miss Mamie Meredith, assistant professor of English; Charles Miller, assistant professor of physical education; Mrs. Angeline Anderson, assistant professor of home economics; Dr. M. Basoco, professor of mathematics; H. K. Douthit, superintendent of the school of agriculture at Curtis.

Dr. L. W. Lancaster, professor of political science and chairman of the department; Dr. Thomas Raynor, professor of English; Dr. Carl Rosenquist, associate professor of agricultural botany; Miss Harriet Schwenker, assistant professor of commercial arts.

Dr. Lloyd Snyder, associate professor of agricultural economics; Dr. J. L. Sellers, professor of history and chairman of the department; Lloyd Teale, assistant professor of romance languages; and Walter Weiland, professor of mechanical engineering.

Now is the time for higher education to plan for growth and adjustments which are inevitable in the years immediately ahead, Hardin said in his address.

Hardin cited these four trends which he said bear upon American educational efforts, methods, and objectives.

Those include population growth pattern; rapid adjustments in living habits resulting from the increased mobility of the United States population and such developments as suburban communities.

Also, growing American interest in international affairs and the general realization that tensions cannot be suddenly relaxed or explosive problems speedily resolved and the soaring demand for higher education affect education, he said.

"The impending flood-tide of enrollment," Hardin said, "poses a question of particular importance to the public university. By heritage and by law we are committed to the encouragement of broad and equal educational opportunity."

Higher education has yielded to demands for specialized training during the past half-century, Chancellor Hardin said.

"The issue is not whether professional training on one hand and liberal education on the other are

Union Lounge TV To Show Series

World Series play will be shown on television in the Union lounge starting at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The first game between the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers will show the Yankees going after their seventeenth world series win and the Dodgers their first. The Yanks are favored to win the series on 13-10 odds. Casey Stengel after his sixth series out of the last seven years, has chosen Whitey Ford as the starting pitcher. Walt Alton has picked Don Newcomb to start for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Activity Limitation: Hove Explains Plans For Enforcing Rule

Student Council has appointed a special committee for the specific purpose of investigation of the activities limitations rule, according to Skip Hove, Council president.

This committee will work through the office of Student Affairs where officers of all campus organizations are listed.

Members of the committee are Sherry Mangold, chairman, Len Schropfer, Ken Vosika, Trudy Sokol and Bernie Wishnow.

Hove explained that the Council will not interfere until there is an actual infringement of the rules. The activity limitation rule is not retroactive so persons now holding offices may still hold them but students can accept no new positions which would be in conflict with the rule.

In case of an infraction, the person would have to give up the last accepted position—in other words the one which produced the infraction, Hove said.

The rule applies to a list of 24 major campus activities. A person, under this rule, can be president of only one of these organizations.

The other half of the rule affecting other positions stipulates that a student may be a board member of only two of the listed activities.

Hove explained that this also includes membership in Kosmet Klub and Corn Cobs and paid staff positions on the student publications.

Concessions

Notice: All upperclassmen who are "N" Men and out for athletics who failed to sign up for concession selling may do so this week.

Championship Rodeo: Ak-Sar-Ben Entertains Scholarship Winners

Seventy-one University of Nebraska scholarship winners were honored guests of the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben of Omaha Monday evening at the World Championship Rodeo.

These Ag College students were among the 94 recipients of Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben scholarships for the 1955-56 school year.

Edward Pettis, President of the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben welcomed the group at a dinner which preceded the evening rodeo program. Joining the Nebraska delegation at Omaha were nineteen scholarship winners from Iowa State College, who were accompanied by Dean Floyd Andre, head of the college, and other faculty members.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin gave a short address during the dinner. Other Nebraska staff members attending included Dr. C. C. Wiggins, chairman of the University Scholarship Committee; Dean F. E. Eldridge, Associate Director of Resident Instruction; E. W. Janike, Assistant Director of the Extension Division; Florence McKinney, chairman of home economics department; and Margaret Cannell, home economics instructor.

All the scholarship recipients were given special recognition during the evening's rodeo performance.

Nebraska scholarship winners attending the affair were Phyllis Banks, Lorraine Barthuly, I. M. O'Connell, Mary Berger, Merca Dee Bonde, Helen Bishop, Karen Boning, Dee Chatterton, Edna Cleveland, Betty Eberhart, Evonne Elinspar, Marie Gerdes, Corene Griffiths, Phyllis Hanson, Aris Mae Heldenbrand, Janet Hightree, Edna Hill, Mary Lou Kinsey, Lora Lee Lingren, Betty Parks, Charlotte Sears, Vesta Shay, Alyce Sides, Katrina Thomsen, Rosemarie Tomel, Marta Trautrimas, Ivan Auer, Mrs. Ivan Auer, Don Beck, Marvin Bishop, John Burbank, Wayne Christofferson, Jim Feather, Glenn Frink, Jerrold Gilaspie, Bob Glock.

Richard Hagemier, Ronald Helsing, Alan Hoeting, William T. Howard, Lowell Hummel, Dick Johnson, Delbert Kuhlman, Bob Lebruska, Al Margelsen, Bill Manslein, Bill McCollough, Jim McLean, Roger Moline, Larry Moody, Walter Patterson, Robert Person, Marx Peterson.

Audubon Tours To Show Birds Through Films

The Audubon Screen Tours, consisting of colored motion pictures presented by nationally known natural-history lecturers, will again be sponsored by the University at both 4 p.m. and 8 p.m.

The programs are: Oct. 3, "Hunting with a Microphone and Color Camera." This film shows of wildlife calls and songs and is presented by Arthur Allen of Columbia University.

Nov. 14, "Between the Tides," showing the animals at the edge of the sea, is presented by Robert Herrns.

March 14, "Penguin Summer," presented by Dr. Olin Sewall.

April 6, "Great Smokey Skyland," presented by Dr. G. Harrison Orans, of the University of Toledo.

May 7, "A Touch of the Tropics," presented by William Waggoner. In conjunction with the National Audubon Society are the Bureau of Audio Visual Instruction of the University's Extension Division and the University State Museum.

ations. The Council rule also imposes a scholastic minimum. This requires a weighted average of a 5 for board positions, Kosmet Klub, Cobs and publication staffs.

Officers of the covered activities are required to have a 5.7 average.

The rule to limit activities was proposed in the Council last March and occasioned much heated controversy.

The rule was proposed after a committee from the Council investigated University activities. The committee grieved to analyze the relation of activities to the total University program.

The conclusion of the committee was that there was too much unused leadership potential on campus. The rule, in effect, expressed the desire of the Council to increase opportunities for leadership responsibility.

This rule takes the place of, and expands the coverage of, the former AWS point system which limited activities for women students.

Europe: NUCWA To Hear Travelers

Travelers Roundtable will be presented at the first meeting of the Nebraska University Council on World Affairs Thursday at 7:15 p.m. in Union Room 313.

This feature of the program will consist of three University students who visited Europe this summer discussing the European way of life and people and showing color slides of points of interest.

Miss Glenna Berry, a senior in Arts and Science, will contrast the "Students' Lives in East and in West Berlin," from the impressions she gathered on her two-week stay there.

She was a University YWCA delegate to the YMCA World Centennial in Paris and a member of a traveling discussion group. Miss Berry, elected to attend the two-week conference at the regional YWCA Conference, was the only Nebraskan to attend. Miss Berry is a member of Pi Beta Phi, is president of City Campus Religious Council, vice president of City Campus YWCA, and a vice president in Student Council.

Duane Furman, a senior in Teachers College, will tell of the French people and students from a student's point of view. He studied French at Sorbonne University in Paris for six weeks this summer. While on the Continent, he visited eight European countries.

Wanda Wallbridge, a senior in the College of Agriculture, will show colored slides taken on her two-months' visit of Europe. She traveled on the Polly Tour of London, England, which sponsored a group of college coeds. She visited England, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France, Spain and North Africa.

Following the Travelers Roundtable, a business meeting will be held.

Babson Selected For Avery Lecture

An authority in the field of business research, Paul T. Babson, president of United Business Service, Boston, Mass., has been selected to give the sixth annual Samuel Avery Memorial lecture at the University Oct. 27.

His subject: "Is Age 65 Too Early or Too Late to Retire?" Victor H. Seymour, chairman of the lectureship committee of the Palladian Society Alumni Association, sponsors of the series, explained that Babson's firm has just completed a two-year study of retirement problems.

University Builders plan to have the 1955-56 New Student Directory out earlier this year for the convenience of all students, announced Betty Branch, chairman in charge of the directory.

Contents of the directory will be much the same as last, the only changes being the new cover and new location for several sections.

Typists will be needed next week to help prepare the text for publication. Anyone interested in this work should report to the Builders office at the Union, Miss Branch said.

Days Numbered

Ellen Smith Hall, long a campus landmark, will be razed for the construction of an administrative wing to the Teachers College Building, University officials have announced. Since 1919, the building has housed offices of the YWCA and the Dean of Women.

Ellen Smith Hall was built in 1888 as a private home, costing $40,000. In 1915 it was rented to Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity. During World War I, the YWCA moved in a canteen for servicemen.

In 1920, the University purchased the building, and remodeled it. It was first known as the Women's Building, and then re-named Eller Smith Hall in honor of a registrar of the University, a woman who had joined the staff in 1877 and who served nearly 30 years. Her portrait was hung in the building by the class of 1902.

The announcement of the possible doom of Ellen Smith Hall last year brought protests from some students and alumni.

Outside World: Nixon, Cabinet Meet

By BARBARA SHARP Staff Writer

Vice-President Richard Nixon, keeping the wheels of government turning during President Eisenhower's absence, announced that the National Security Council and the Cabinet will meet to consider matters which he termed "of a routine nature."

An increasingly important question raised as a result of Ike's absence concerned how much presidential authority can be delegated to Nixon and his aides. Nixon announced that Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., would attend the Security Council meeting to give an interpretation of the delegation of authority.

Brownell, however, said that in view of Ike's "encouraging" progress, it may not be necessary for a meeting to discuss the delegation of authority. "There are legal ways and means to assure the orderly functioning of the government under the Eisenhower policies," he declared.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, the heart specialist attending Ike, said that Eisenhower "will be much better off to take up some of his duties than to worry over neglecting them while he recovers."

Egypt Accepts Russian Arms

Egypt informed Britain that she has accepted an offer by Russia to supply her with arms and military equipment, in spite of a plea by the U.S. and Great Britain in New York that there should not be any race to supply arms to the Middle East.

The United States, Britain and France have tried to maintain a military balance of power and to prevent an arms race between the Arab countries of the Middle East and Israel, under a declaration signed among the Big Three in 1950.

Although a state of armistice exists in the Middle East, the Arab countries including Egypt are still technically at war with the State of Israel.

Ladejinsky Tangle Called Error

Denying security clearance to Wolf Ladejinsky, a Russian-born specialist on land reform, was termed a mistake by Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

In spite of the fact that Ladejinsky had been cleared by the State Department and had worked in the Tokyo Embassy, he was refused security clearance by the Agriculture Department last January.

Ever since that incident Benson said that his department's security program has been overhauled. He added that newspaper criticism of his decision in the Ladejinsky case "caused me more concern than ever" about the Agriculture Department's security program.

"I'm sure we have made mistakes in handling our security program, but they were honest and conscientious mistakes," Benson said. Benson reviewed his decision before a Senate Civil Service Subcommittee.
