

Activity Rule To Committee:

Council Defeats Motion For Missouri Migration

By SAM JENSEN Managing Editor

A Missouri migration was ruled out Wednesday in Student Council meeting as a motion to endorse an unofficial migration to Columbia was given a negative vote.

In other Council action, the proposal to abolish the Council's policy of limiting leadership responsibility was referred to the Student Activities committee.

Concerning the proposed migration to Missouri, the report by the migration committee listed no choice of destination. The two places under consideration were Iowa State and Missouri.

Reische said that since AWS had voted to give women a free week end on the week end of the Iowa State Game and the band and cheerleaders would travel to Ames, it would create many problems to endorse a migration to Missouri even though the majority of the student body would prefer a trip to Columbia.

Coach Bill Glassford would like student support at both games, Reische said, but he would prefer a larger attendance at Missouri. Reische also reported that the band had an obligation to go to Iowa State.

Marvin Breslow, CCRC Representative, moved that the Council endorse and publicize an unofficial migration to Missouri.

Last year's Council approved the plan on March 23, but the policy did not go into effect until the first week of school of the present semester.

During course of discussion on the main motion, Bernie Wisnow senior holdover member, asked for a ruling on a point of order that once an action had been taken, a motion can not be rescinded. He

Effect Of Rule On Activities Summarized

The Student Council ruling concerning limitation of activities now under discussion was passed after considerable debate March 23 by last year's Council.

The ruling contains a number of provisions aimed at controlling domination of campus leadership by a few students. An individual cannot attain board status in more than two organizations and cannot be president of more than one organization.

The ruling was introduced to the council by Muriel Pickett, a Mortar Board and former president of Builders. Miss Pickett headed a committee which made an extensive study of campus activities upon Council request.

The ruling was passed in a lengthy Council session by a vote of 20 to 9. A group of senior men was unsuccessful in lobbying against the proposal.

Membership in the following organizations was affected: CCRC, Ag and City YWCA, AWS, C o e d Counselors, Nebraskans, Red Cross, Union (board and committee chairman), WAA, IFC, NUCWA, Ag YMCA, RAM Council, Women's Dorm Council and Inter-Co-Op Council.

Any person found in violation of the policy would be required to drop the last acquired position. It would be necessary for a board member (or a person of equal status) to have a 5.0 cumulative average and an officer would be required to have a 5.7 cumulative average.

The Dean of Student Affairs' office would notify the Council of violations. A standing committee of the Council would handle violations.

Enforcement would be carried out through Council removal of officers from unsanctioned positions and the power of the Council to revoke constitutions of organizations.

Because the ruling affected many influential campus organizations, a great deal of controversy was caused before and after its passage.

Those in favor of abandoning the proposal felt that it would needlessly limit capable individuals, deprive students of the right to think for themselves and also deprive campus organizations of the most capable leadership.

made reference to Roberts' Rules of Order, page 168. The Council follows Roberts' Rules according to the Council Constitution.

President Andy Hove ruled that this point was not germane to the main motion under consideration. Breslow then moved that the motion be referred to a committee which would be appointed by the executive committee and would consist of no fewer than five members and would have two senior members in attendance.

An amendment to the motion was offered by Johnson instructing the committee to consider certain organizations for elimination from the policy if the committee did not return a report favoring abolition of the policy. This amendment passed.

Miss Katskee moved that the motion be amended and the policy be referred to the already existing Council committee on Student Activity. The move was approved.

John Fagan, Engineering representative, moved that the motion be amended to read that the committee return a report with three weeks from the time of passing. Breslow accepted this amendment to his original motion.

The main motion was then brought to a vote and the motion carried. Wisnow suggested that the committee submit majority and minority reports when the report is due Oct. 26.

Miss Katskee announced that the meeting of the Student Activities committee would be held Monday at 1 p.m.

During the discussion of the main motion and the amendments, the following comments were made: John Fagan — Kosmet Klub and Cobs are both being hurt by the policy. . . an organization cannot exist without workers.

Miss Katskee — The trouble with some of the organizations that are being hurt is "internal" and not connected with the Council policy. . . it should be the job of the organization's officers to acquire workers. The reasons for the policy are to spread the activity offices around, to enable more people to fill offices and to spread leadership responsibility.

Reische — Some of these organizations don't require any great amount of time.

Don Beck, Corn Cobs representative — There is no reason for this policy. . . as representatives of the students, we should decide now. . . we have more important business.

In other Council business, Anthony Van Dijk, World University Service representative, and Tom Gable, University Health Service, addressed the Council.

The Council also discussed the possibility of holding a mock political convention next year.

Students Give Year's Report Of Pub Board

Student members of the Board of Student Publications submitted their summary report for 1954-55 to the Student Council Wednesday.

Included in this report was a statement of financial status, a listing of most significant accomplishments and three recommendations. It was reported that as of June 30, the Cornhusker had made a profit of $1,545.07 with $255.00 in outstanding reports as of Sept. 17. A profit of $4,505.88 as of June 30 was listed for the Nebraskan with $599.90 in outstanding accounts as of Sept. 12.

Considered one of the most significant accomplishments was a directive defining the lines of authority and responsibility and specific regulations for the Nebraskan.

Another was the altering of the Nebraskan commission plan so as to give full commission on local advertising. Additional color in the Cornhusker was listed as the third of the most significant accomplishments of the Student Publications Board.

Submitted as the first recommendation was that there be more continuity in student membership and the duties of members be more clearly defined. Second on the list of recommendations was that student members be aware of any news controls upon student publications.

The final recommendation in the report submitted by Shirley Rosenberg Rochman and Marvin Breslow was recommended by Mrs. Rochman and not concurred in by Breslow. This was that it is felt that the responsibilities of the Board of Student Publication are such that it is too much power to be exercised by so few people.

The Outside World: Wreckage Sighted

By BARB SHARP Staff Writer

The wreckage of a United Airlines plane carrying 64 passengers, including 19 who boarded at Omaha, was sighted on Medicine Bow Mountain in Wyoming. There was no sign of any survivors.

The accident was termed the worst commercial airliner crash in the nation's history. Lt. Col. E. R. Weed of the Wyoming Air National Guard said the four-engine aircraft apparently had plowed into the 12,005 foot high mountain and then had slid down its rocky east face.

Of the 19 passengers that boarded at Omaha, nine were transfers from Braniff airlines. Eight of the persons were military personnel, believed to be inductees. United Airlines officials in Omaha said it was not yet known how many of the persons boarding the plane at Omaha were from this area.

Robert Johnson, vice-president of United Airlines reported that until Thursday, United had flown more than four years and almost 12.5 billion miles without a passenger fatality.

The Latter-Day Saints Church in Salt Lake City reported that several members of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir returning from Europe were aboard the plane. The choir completed a European concert tour last month.

Faure Fires Critics

Although fighting still continues in eastern French Morocco, white flags went up Thursday over several small villages in the Mid-Atlas Mountains and along the Spanish Moroccan frontier. In spite of the evidence that some rebel tribesmen are ready to surrender, French officers were not optimistic that all the trouble was ending.

The political situation is now causing trouble in Morocco as well as in France. In France, four critics of Premier Edgar Faure were fired including Defense Minister Pierre Koenig. These dismissals caused speculation whether the Cabinet could survive the break.

To add to the troubles of the French, Moroccan rebels continued to hold important positions in the surrounding mountains.
