Freshmen Women To Sign Up At Mart

Freshmen women may sign up for activities at the annual Activities Mart, which will be held in the Union Ballroom Oct. 19 from 2 to 6 p.m., according to Sara Hubka, AWS Mart chairman.

Theme for the Mart is "Accent on Activities." Representatives from each organization will tell the new students about that activity and help them sign up, Miss Hubka said.

The purpose of the Activities Mart is to acquaint new women students with campus activities, she added.

Approximately 18 booths will be set up in the middle of the Ballroom and freshmen may go around and sign up for the activities in which they are interested.

Miss Hubka gave one warning, "Three should be the very most any one girl should sign up for."

She added that it is very important that all interested freshman girls attend the Activities Mart.

Those in charge of booths have received instructions for their construction. Booths may be set up starting at 10 a.m.

Booths will not be judged.

Blake Speaks

Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, who recently spoke to campus groups, is shown above, second from right, with, left to right, Bill Klostehmeyer, president of the Presbyterian-Congregational Student House; Glenna Barry, president of City Campus Religious Council; and Rev. Rex Knowles, pastor of Presby House. Blake addressed approximately 80 persons at Presby House Friday afternoon and also spoke at the Westminster Golden Anniversary Banquet with Perry W. Morton, assistant Attorney General.

Blake spoke on the church's ecumenical movement and the Presbyterian tradition. He is president of National Council of Churches and stated clerk of the General Assembly of Presbyterian Churches, USA.

Edda Eisenlohr:

Student From Germany Amazed By Machines

Ever dreamed of going to Heidelberg? There's a bit of enchantment and magic in the name of that old German town, but you don't have to go to Germany to find startling things, Edda Eisenlohr, citizen of Heidelberg, has found many modern miracles at the University.

Edda was awarded a scholarship to study for three semesters at Panhellenic. She finds her new role as a Husker amusing and interesting. Edda has studied English for 9 years, but was puzzled by "Hi." "This Hi business, I don't understand," she said, "It doesn't mean anything!" After an explanation that it is short for How do you do?, Edda uses the term, but insists it still doesn't mean anything.

When asked what she thought of dating, Edda burst into laughter. "Breakfast, lunch and dinner, the only topic of conversation is dating," she said. "It is not that important. There is no German expression for dating. Sometimes on week ends we go to the theater or a dance or for a walk, but going to a movie is just a dull evening."

In Germany, men and women address each other as Miss and Mr. until they have one through a formal custom such as crossing arms and drinking a small glass of wine. Only after such a procedure can they talk to each other in the familiar case.

The coke machine in Andrews Hall amazed Edda. "You put a nickel in and out comes a real coke." Popping corn startled her by "exploding and going all over the place."

Pink cars were a new sight for Edda. "A student with a car of his own," gasped Edda, "such things are wonderful; maybe one student in a hundred has an auto in Germany."

Edda choose to fly across the Atlantic, even with the threat of air-sickness, so that she could stay in Heidelberg and see two of Wagner's operas. "I spend all my money for the opera," Edda said. "I would give anything to see an opera; at home I go twice a week." She was surprised and disappointed when she would mention Wagner and people did not know what she was talking about.

The most striking thing about NU is the "nice and friendly people." "I like being called by my first name," she said. If a German were to call you "honey" you would think he was crazy, she added. "The students make me feel as though I really belong to the community."

ECMA: Blueprint Gets Award For Writing

Nebraska Blueprint has been chosen the best-written college engineering magazine, by the Engineering College Magazine Association.

The award was made Friday evening at the ECMA convention banquet in the Union, Barry Larson, business manager of the Blueprint, announced.

The convention ran from Oct. 6 to Oct. 8 with the Blueprint as official host. It is composed of 160 persons from engineering publications from 40 States and the Philippines. ECMA members have participated in panel discussions on editorial, business, circulation, art and layout. They will also hear several speeches.

The ECMA is an organization to improve all its members' magazines and provide a critique for each individual magazine.

Aququettes Plan Meet

Aququettes are having two practice sessions prior to tryouts, Cynthia Lonsborough, publicity chairman, announced. Sessions will be Tuesday and Thursday at 7 p.m., she said.

Anyone interested in synchronized swimming should report to the north door of the Coliseum at either or both of the practice sessions, she said. Tryouts are scheduled for Oct. 20 and Oct. 25.
