It Happened At NU

A journalism professor was explaining that the fact that a paper may be right is not always the only criterion to be considered. He gave the example of Elijah Lovejoy who wrote in favor of abolition and was killed for his views. "He was right," the professor concluded, "but, it was a cold comfort."

Council Upholds Average Ruling

5.7 Requirement Sustained

An effort in the Student Council to rescind the 5.7 grade average requirement failed by a vote of 14-12 Wednesday. The ruling, passed at the last Council meeting, is still effective immediately but is not retroactive. It requires a 5.7 accumulated average for executive board members and a 5.0 for board positions. A resolution to encourage Komet Klub in attempts to appeal the ban of the Fall Revue failed by a voice vote. "Student Council is not the body to do this," Gail Katske, senior holdover member, said. She said some Council members felt that KK had been wrong. Bruce Brugmann, Arts and Sciences, said the resolution would have little effect outside of offering encouragement to KK. "The resolution does not say the Council feels one way or the other," he said. Changes in the method of selecting student members of the Faculty-Student Subcommittee on Student Publications were accepted in the form of a committee report. The report was amended to read that student members will be selected in the first few weeks of the fall semester, instead of in the spring as was originally suggested. Marv Breslow, CCRC and junior Pub Board member, said that the original suggestion would eliminate students who were not re-appointed to staffs as members. Pub Board will consist of one senior, one junior and one member from either the sophomore, junior or senior classes under the new system. Under the new ruling, a Pub Board member may also be a member of the Council. Debate on the grade requirement ran as follows. "The ruling is too abrupt; some people have been working for three years to get high positions and will not be able to under the ruling." (Continued on Page 5)

Queen, Barb Clark, 1954 Typical Nebraska Coed; the Eligible Bachelors, Elaine Sachewsky, Hello Girl; Doran Post, Prince Kosmet; and Doris Anderson, Nebraska Sweetheart. Rev. Rex Knowles, AUF adviser and pastor of the Presbyterian-Congregational Student House, has offered to wait tables for any group which purchases him, Miss Henderson said. Mary Jean Mulvaney and Beverly Becker, instructors in women's physical education, will also be sold, she said. The Activities Queen will be presented at the auction. Finalists are Beverly Buck, Marilyn Heck, Barbara Sharp, Sara Hubka and Nancy Salter. The new Queen and her attendants will be sold after the presentation. The back page of the Nebraskan is also for sale. Any student who purchases use of the page must check publication plans with Dick Fellman, editor, before the page can be used, Miss Henderson said. Tickets will be sold in all organized houses, dorms, coop houses, on the Ag campus and at the door, she said. Price of admission is 25 cents.

Men Identified:

Six Re-admitted Students Named

Names of the six students who have been readmitted to the University after their suspension for participation in the riot last spring have been released by the department of public relations. The six are Terry Cochran, Don Fritson, Charles Garsi, Richard Glasford, Lee Miller, and Roger Wichman. The students were suspended from the University last spring with the understanding that they would not be admitted until June, 1956, and that a statement that the student "did not leave the university in good standing" would accompany any credit transfers. The recent action of readmission was in accordance with a statement issued by the Board of Regents May 10, 1955 which stated that a student could be readmitted on a probationary basis by the Dean of Student Affairs "under such conditions as he shall determine advisable."

Huskers To Face Marauding Buffs

CU Better Than Last Year Says Scout

Nebraska's Cornhuskers, currently sporting a four-game winning streak, go against the Colorado Buffs Saturday in the annual Homecoming classic. The Huskers will be trying to keep their first place tie in the conference intact and will also be looking for their first win over Colorado in Lincoln since 1949. Rex Fischer, 160 pound right half-back and the Huskers' leading ground gainer, will captain Nebraska. Both teams have been riddled with injuries. Homer Jenkins, Colorado's senior left halfback, is slated to sit out the game here with a bad knee. Sylvester Harris, Husker right halfback who contributed heavily to victories over Missouri and Kansas, is probably lost to the Huskers for the season with a dislocated shoulder. Harry Johnson, Nebraska junior, can play either right or left halfback as he did against Iowa State. Lyle Martin, who has seen limited service, Frank Nappi, sophomore who has not been in action, and Gene Sandage, sophomore, are being readied to step into Harris' spot. The Huskers are second to Oklahoma in total offense, both rushing and passing. Nebraska is the nation's third team in pass defense and leads the conference in this aspect. Husker opponents have pitched 85 times and have completed only 25 for 365 yards. Don Strasheim, who scouted Colorado in their 37-7 romp over a stout Utah team, tabbed the Buffs as a "better team than a year ago." This, despite the loss of Frank Bernardi and Carroll Hardy, who have both made good as rookies in professional football this fall.

Letters Sent Home:

Colbert Defines 'Sneak' Policy

Letters have been sent by Dean Philip Colbert to parents of members of a fraternity pledge class which skipped recently, it was announced in Interfraternity Council meeting Wednesday. The letters were sent by the Dean of Student Affairs regarding the skipping of classes by the foot-loose pledges, Frank Haldgren, Associate Dean, said. "There have been some unpleasant situations resulting from pledges sneaking and missing classes," he said. The University has gone on record saying that no student can be excused from classes to go on sneaks, Dean Haldgren added. "So long as pledge classes do not miss regularly scheduled classes, the University has no particular disapproval to sneaks," he said. In further IFC business, Dick Trupp, treasurer, suggested the formation of a pledge IFC to be sponsored by the regular Interfraternity Council. The idea was first formulated in the IFC exec council, he said. "It is a good idea to orient the pledges and get them together," Trupp said. They would elect their own officers and conduct their own business, he added. A committee from the IFC would sponsor the pledge group, and all projects considered would have to be passed through the IFC. Bill Campbell IFC president, said the pledge group "could really strengthen the IFC in future years." Al Barnett, Sigma Nu president, said that the pledges, by getting to know each other, could help to strengthen the fraternity system. Bob Schryler, Phi Gamma Delta, was appointed chairman of a committee to work on the project. The IFC approved the purchase of Cooper Foundation Theater tickets to help support the LARC school for retarded children. The tickets, good at any Cooper Foundation theater, will sell for 80 cents, the regular price. Fifty cents out of each ticket will go to the theater and 30 cents to the LARC school. Tickets may be purchased by members in their own houses, and may be turned in for regular tickets at the theater box offices. Tickets will be good all year.

Union Ballroom:

AUF Auction Scheduled For Wednesday Night

All University Fund will hold its annual auction Nov. 16 at 7 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. Cynthia Henderson, special events chairman, announced Thursday. Pledge classes of sororities and fraternities and students in various independent groups will be auctioned off to the highest bidder, she said. "AUF has decided to sell the groups by the pound to add to the interest and entertainment of the auction," Miss Henderson said. This move also is hoped to assure more equal distribution of bidding among buyers, she said. Any group that purchases another must register any functions or work sessions with the office of student affairs and inform AUF of plans, she said. "AUF is going to help as much as possible in scheduling functions to insure that plans are actually carried out," she said. Novel attractions on the auction agenda include selling the right to throw a pie in Andy Smith's face. Smith is AUF president. Also going on the auction block are the Cornhusker Beauty Queens, the 1955 Homecoming
