Orwig Plans Eastern Trip; May Confer

By BOB BORONI
Staff Sports Writer

All was quiet on the football front Monday as the University of Nebraska was still seeking a replacement as head football coach.

Bill Orwig, returning from a week end trip to Kansas City and Omaha had nothing new to disclose and the "mum's the word" policy continued.

Orwig reassured that no one has been contacted yet in regard to the vacancy at the helm of Husker football.

Orwig is slated to speak at a banquet at Wilbur Tuesday and will later be the guest speaker at the "Banquet of Champions" at Toledo, Ohio. He will head east either Wednesday or Thursday.

In answer to a question if he would attempt to contact anyone for the Husker position while back there he replied "There is a possibility I may contact someone while I'm back there."

"My goal is still to have a coach by the first of the year. I would like for him to be able to go to the meetings of the American Coaches Association in Los Angeles and represent the University of Nebraska." These meetings are set for the second week in January.

Huskers Join Sooners In All Big-7 Selections

By WALT BLORE
Staff Sports Writer

Oklahoma dominated the Big Seven Conference football season and its members now dominate the Nebraskan's All-Big Seven Team by placing three on the first team and six more on the second unit.

All-American Guard Bo Bolinger leads the impressive Sooner aggregation that includes back Tommy McDonald and center Jerry Tubbs on the first unit.

Nebraska, a team that surprised with a second place finish in the conference placed four of its group on the first unit. Rex Fischer and Willie Greenlaw paced the backs, while tackle LaVern Torczon and Jon McWilliams, end, led the linemen.

Other Big Seven standouts according to the Nebraskan are Harold Burnine, Missouri end; Al Portney, Missouri tackle; Sam Salerno, Colorado guard; and Doug Roether, Kansas State fullback.

Two better pass catchers would be hard to find than Burnine and McWilliams. These sticky fingered flankers lead their respective teams in the pass receiving department. They were also standouts on defense pushing back end sweeps and nailing the opposing halfback on punt returns. Lamar Meyer of Colorado and John Bell of Oklahoma were the toughest contenders for the end slots and consequently landed on the Nebraskan's second team.

Al Portney and LaVern Torczon were the top Big Seven tackles beating out Edmun Gray of Oklahoma and Cal Woodworth, also from the land of red dirt and black oil. Torczon was probably the most under-rated tackle during the season. The powers that be finally saw fit to make up for the disregard that this speedy stalwart of the Cornhusker line had received during the season. Portney is a repeater from last year's team. A good tackle on a team that had a surprisingly poor year.

Bolinger leads the guards in the nation and this honor is only one of the many the tough 206 pounder will receive during the winter testimonial banquets. A starter all three years, Bo is probably the top guard turned out by the Oklahoma football machine. Salerno, in the Nebraska-Colorado contest, was in on about 60 per cent of his team's tackles. Salerno just edged out Cecil Morris of Oklahoma for the first team position. Other guards contending for honors were Bill Taylor of Nebraska and Jim McCauley of Iowa State.

Tubbs was without a doubt the outstanding center in the Big Seven. He opened gaping holes in opponents' lines and stopped up the holes that were infrequently opened in the Sooner line as linebacker. Don Karnosack of Colorado was the only other center that could approach Tubb's ability as a center.

The backfield selections were the toughest ones to make. In spite of a poor over-all record, the Big Seven turned out more star backs than any other conference in the nation. Tommy McDonald, the leading scorer in the league and Rex Fischer, hard charging number two ground gainer in the league were the only almost unanimous choices on the Nebraskan team. Fischer is from Nebraska and McDonald from Oklahoma. Doug Roether of Kansas State edged out Bob Burris and Billy Pricer of Oklahoma for the third backfield slot. Roether finished the season with a plus four yards-per-carry. He is a hard runner and gave Wildcat opponents long afternoons with his thrusts up the middle. Willie Greenlaw lands the fourth spot in the all-conference backfield. "Mister Shuffle" of the Big Seven, Willie constantly left tacklers grabbing at air with his limp-hip antics. On defense, he gave pass receivers a tough time, and turned in a 95-yard run against Colorado to prove this point. Other backs worth mention are John Bayuk of Colorado, Don Erway, Nebraska, and Jimmy Harris from Oklahoma.
