Powdered Nonsense

Coeds beware-the first real snow of the winter fell Friday night, dumping four inches of snowball material on campus. The students pictured above are making a snowman, or pershaps a barricade. The last week of school before Christmas vacation almost demands winter landscaping; there's no pre-holiday anticipation if Soc Building doesn't smell like wet galoshes. Out-state students pictured above are making a snowman, or perhaps a way home. Nearly every house has a Christmas tree, so campus is somewhat picturesque with colored lights reflected on the lawn.

Kansas: Debate Team Wins First In Tourney

University debate team of Jere McGaffey and Allen Overcash won the Winfield Debate Tournament at Winfield, Kan. over the weekend. Nebraska got second in the Sweepstakes.

The McGaffey and Overcash team won over the Kansas University team in the final round. The invitational tournament was attended by approximately 40 middlewest and southern schools. Sarah Jones and Nancy Copeland, freshmen girl's team lost out in the semifinals. This was the first debate lost in 13 debates. Sharon Mangold and Sandra Reimers also got to the semifinals.

The team of Barbara Sharp and Connie Hurst won three out of five debates, Bruce Brugmann and Russell Gutting received a five debates. Jere McGaffey, Allen Overcash, Sharon Mangold, and Russll Gutting received a rating of excellent in discussion.

won a superior rating when they went to the University of Iowa the weekend of Nov. 25 and 26. This was the highest quality rating of any of the teams attending.

The team of Allen Overcash and Jere McGaffey rated superior as a team unit and as individuals. They defeated the Universities of Minnesota, Kansas, and Marquette, and lost to the University of Iowa. Overcash won the highest individual rating.

Another team of Jerry Igou and Richard Andrews defeated the University of Wisconsin, Boston University and the University of Illinois. They lost to the University of South Dakota. The Igou-Andrews team won an excellent rating as a team and as individuals. Andrews was rated excellent in discussion. Other schools attending the conference were Northwestern University, Michigan State College and the Universities of Florida, Texas and Missouri.
