Foltz To Direct Madrigal Chorus

Dr. David Foltz directs the University Madrigal Singers in a formal concert. The Madrigals will present their annual Christmas Carol concert Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Union Lounge. No admission will be charged for this concert especially prepared for University students. The Madrigals, founded at the University in 1943, revert back to an ancient English form of group singing. The group will be heard on two CBS radio broadcasts over the Christmas holidays. The first will be heard from 9 to 9:15 p.m., CST, Dec. 22, instead of Dec. 23 as previously announced. The second will be heard at 11:05 a.m. CST Dec. 25, Christmas Day. The concert Thursday will be presented in the traditional Madrigal style, seated around a table. Listeners are asked to think of the performance as a gathering of good friends to enjoy good music, conversation and refreshments, Foltz said.

Program Planned For Thursday:

Annual Concert To Feature Christmas Carols Sung In Traditional English Madrigal Style

University Madrigal Singers will present their annual Christmas Carol concert at 8 p.m. Thursday. The concert, under the direction of Dr. David Foltz, will be in the Union Main Lounge. This will be the only Madrigal Singers Concert especially for University students, and there will be no admission charge.

Madrigals, composed of 32 men and women, was founded at the University in 1943. The singers present their programs while seated around a table in the traditional madrigal style.

The listeners are asked to think of the performance as a gathering of good friends to enjoy good music, conversation, refreshments and an evening together, Foltz said.

IFC Rush Week: Belmont To Propose Supervisory Committee

By FRED DALY News Editor

Formation of a special Interfraternity Council committee to supervise Rush Week will be proposed in IFC meeting Wednesday, according to Ben Belmont, Zeta Beta Tau.

The proposal, to be introduced by Belmont, will provide for a governing body in form of a committee with a representative from each fraternity to enforce Rush Week rules.

The committee would have three principal functions, Belmont said. First, the committee would, before Rush Week, set up penalties to be levied for violations of Rush Week rules.

Second, the committee would do the actual policing of Rush Week, instead of having each house volunteer one or two persons to go around to a designated house after each rush date, as is done now.

The committee member doing the policing would not know what house he was to inspect until just prior to his policing. No set times would be provided for inspection during the bona fide rush dates.

Third, the committee would immediately report any violations discovered to the IFC executive committee and to the president of the offending house.

The IFC executive committee, consisting of IFC officers, advisers and the Dean of Men, would act on all violations, both those committed by houses and those committed by rushees.

The purpose behind the proposal will be two-fold, Belmont said. First, it would provide the IFC a better means of running Rush Week by the IFC rushing rules, since the committee would be specifically designed for that purpose, he said.

Second, it would give the IFC designated authority to govern its Rush Week in such a way to provide a more beneficial Rush Week to all of its members, he said.

"This proposal can in no way injure the IFC, but can only benefit it," Belmont added.

Survey: Mystery In Union Explained

By BABS JELGERHUIS Copy Editor

There's nothing like a card table, reams of white official paper, a pencil and a suited gentleman behind the table to arouse curiosity in the normal University student.

The truth is that the Union is taking a traffic count to find out how many students enter the Union, by what door, and what time. This information will be sent to Porter Butts, director of the University of Wisconsin Union, who is the planning consultant for the new addition.

A student, who evidently is a detective story fan, asked one of the men aiding in the survey if a crime had been committed. He thought that plainclothesmen were watching the entrances for suspicious characters.

Another student came up to the desk, took out his ID card and asked, "What are we voting for?" A conscientious visitor picked up a copy of the Nebraskan on the shelf by the Crib and tried to pay the man for it.

One shy coed watched one of the men doing the survey for nearly ten minutes. Risking eye strain she walked by the table several times trying to peer unobscuredly at the mysterious proceedings. However, her eyes failed her and she left not knowing.

So far, no tabulations have been made but indications show that the northwest door is chiefly used between 9:45 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. During the morning coffee traffic. Most of the breakfast traffic goes through the north-east door.

The most frequent comments form members of the student body were blunt and to the point. "Whatcha doing?" "What is this, anyhow?" "A few cynics uttered 'soft job' type of remarks.

IFC To Play Santa Claus To 86 Orphans
Members of the Interfraternity Council, assisted by the Mortar Boards, will entertain 86 children from three Lincoln orphanages at a Christmas party Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

Bruce Martin will play. Santa Claus and will distribute gifts from his pack to the children, whose ages will range from 4 to 14. Entertainment at the party will be furnished by a magician or by the Trend Four.

The orphans will be from White Hall, St. Thomas and Cedars orphanages. Last year was the first time the IFC as a whole sponsored a children's Christmas party, when the council sponsored a chili feed for the orphans. John Olson is chairman of the party this year.

Christmas Matins
Y.W.C.A. Christmas Matins will be held at 7 a.m. Wednesday and Thursday at the Lutheran Student House. Each session will feature a different speaker.

Student Representatives: Faculty Senate Votes Extra Day Of Vacation

By MARY SHELEDY Copy Editor

The Faculty Senate voted Tuesday afternoon to reconvene classes Jan. 3 instead of Jan. 2 and to provide for nonvoting student representation on certain Senate committees.

Both decisions were made by voice vote. Harold Wise, assistant dean of the Graduate College, reported that the calendar committee was nearly unanimous in recommending postponing reconvening classes an extra day after Christmas vacation.

He pointed out that University employees in the classified services are allowed Jan. 2 as a legal holiday when Jan. 1 falls on Sunday.

LaVerne Small, chairman of the department of pharmacy, said that when he was chairman of the calendar committee that had authorized the present calendar, it had been decided to ignore the legal holidays. The same problem, he said, was present at Easter when school began on the following Monday.

A. C. Breckenridge, Dean of Faculties, stated that legal holidays occurred only after Christmas and New Year's fell on Sundays and this would effect the University only once every seven years.

Frank Lundy, director of libraries, said that while many library staff members are members of the faculty, 35 are in the classified service—clerical and janitors' staffs.

Argument against the recommendation was presented by Raymond Dien, professor of accounting. It is dangerous to set a precedent of chipping away at the calendar, he said. Dropping a day of classes would upset multi-section classes' schedules. "I doubt," he said, "that Jan. 1 is much of a family day. And if we are going to give a day to watch the bowl games, we'll have to be dropping Saturday classes."

The question was called for and the calendar committee's recommendation was passed by voice vote.

Student representation on certain faculty committees was recommended by the committee on committees in the following resolution:

"Whereas, the Student Council has requested limited student representation on certain committees of the University Senate; and

"Whereas, such representation by responsible students should materially assist these committees in their deliberation and give both faculty and students a better understanding of that educational enterprise in which they are jointly engaged; therefore be it

"Resolved: that the Senate invite the Student Council to designate annually a non-voting representative to assist in the deliberations of certain committees, as follows:

"Two for service with the calendar committee;

"Two for service with the committee on semester examinations;

"Seven for service with the committee on student affairs, two of them with the sub-committee on social affairs, two with the sub-committee on general organization and three of them with the subcommittee on student publications.

"Two for service with the committee on commencement;

"And be it resolved that this invitation shall stand until withdrawn by action of the Senate;

"And be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Student Council and to each of the committees herein concerned."

The original resolution was amended to include two student members for service with the committee on Honors Convocations.

No debate opposing the resolution was presented.

Faculty Club: I House Residents Express Discontent

According to International House President Margery Polzkill, the first thing she heard about the Administration's decision to turn the house into a Faculty Club was when she was called by a reporter of a Lincoln newspaper.

The Administration proposal, passed by the Board of Regents, intends to move the girls in International House into Terrace Hall. The girls now housed in Terrace Hall would probably be moved into the new addition of the Residence Halls for Women.

"The women in International House feel definitely that the Administration should have approached us before the decision was passed," declared Miss Polzkill. The Chancellor talked to her about the proposal after she heard about it from the reporter.

"We feel very strongly about remaining in our own house," she said. "It is much the same as if a sorority were told they would have to relinquish their sorority house for a Faculty Club."

Miss Polzkill added that "We've worked a long time for our house." International House has been on the campus for ten years.

International House, formerly the Phi Mu sorority house, was purchased by the University during World War II. Many of the women students living there are foreign students or graduate students.

"The Board of Regents stated: 'Upon providing facilities for the girls now housed in International House, The University would have no further use for this property as a girls' dormitory, and that the property can be used for the Faculty Club gathering place,'" said Dr. C. S. Miller, president of Faculty Club.

The International House president declared that the women feel it would be unfair if they were forced to give up their house. "We have had to work very hard for every bit of recognition we have received," she said, "because the majority of our residents do not participate in activities and the like."

Olivia Hanson, head resident, and Ruth Meierhenry, business manager of the Residence Halls for Women, both declared that they knew nothing of the Administration's decision or of the possibility of moving the residents of Terrace Hall into the new addition to the dorm.

Miss Meierhenry stated that the new addition was expected to house 160 women ultimately. Miss Hanson said that there is a possibility that the dorm addition may be partly used before the entire addition is completed. There are presently 413 women living in the Dorm which "was built to accommodate 374," Miss Meierhenry said.

In addition, there are freshmen pledges living in sorority houses on campus and there are three freshmen living in International House. There are 34 women in Terrace Hall at the present time.

It is possible, that if enrollment keeps on increasing, the new addition may be inadequate in a few years she said.

Bev Wirz, president of Terrace Hall, after reading of the Administration's decision in The Nebraskan, took a vote of it in the house which indicated "that the girls definitely intend to oppose the Board of Regents' decision."

She declared that "20 out of the 34 women living in Terrace Hall said they would consider transferring to another school rather than live in the Residence Halls for Women; we believe it is just about as unfair as anything could be," Miss Wirz said.

About two-thirds of the women living in Terrace Hall are transfer students. "None said they would voluntarily move into the dorm and lose many of the privileges they have now as residents of a small house," she said.

"We believe Terrace Hall is a drawing card for transfer students who do not plan to pledge; we do not believe the dorm would serve this purpose," Miss Wirz said.

Ecumenical Conference Set In Ohio

"Revolution and Reconciliation" is the theme of the Ecumenical Student Conference On The Christian World Mission which will convene at Ohio University Dec. 27 through Jan. 1.

A meeting was held in the Lutheran Student House for students interested either in attending the conference or participating in conference studies on campus. Representatives to the conference will be both American and foreign college students and leaders.

A chartered train will leave Lincoln at noon Dec. 26. Scholarship aid is available to foreign students. Before the conference, representatives will study books prepared to help them examine the role and the mission of the church. Students who are unable to attend the conference can participate in these studies here on campus.

The Outside World: Colleges Given Gifts

By MONROE USHER Staff Writer

The Ford Foundation has given away in a surprise move one-half billion dollars to privately supported colleges, universities and hospitals.

These gifts will be given in the form of endowments for 10 years and during this time are to be used exclusively to increase teachers' salaries. At the end of this period the schools will be free to use the money as they wish.

Nebraska will receive $3,232,600 in grants from the Ford Foundation. $1,230,400 of this will go to seven privately supported schools and 58 Nebraska hospitals will receive the other $2,002,200.

Ike Presents Defense Budget

It is reported that President Eisenhower presented a defense budget in excess of 35 million dollars before congressional leaders Tuesday.

Nearly half of this will go for the Air Force and guided missile functions.

President Eisenhower is said to have emphasized the necessity of building the American forces towards warding off disaster at home, and for instant retaliation in case of enemy attack.

Some observers at the conference stated that generally Secretary of State Dulles and Eisenhower were optimistic towards world conditions and felt that there was no immediate danger of war.

Stevenson May Enter Primary

Adlai Stevenson is considering entering the Nebraska presidential primary next May 15. James A. Finnegan, Stevenson's campaign manager, will arrive here next week for a series of conferences. A decision is expected at this time. Stevenson will have to make a choice between this primary and Oregon's, which is May 18. Because they fall so close together there will not be sufficient time to campaign in both states.
