

Third Production:

'Inspector General' Tickets Go On Sale

Tickets and reservations for Inspector General, the third University Theater production, are available in the Temple Building box office, Della Kenney, business manager, announced Monday. The box office will be open from 12:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, she said. General admission tickets will be $1.50, she added. The play will be presented March 13-17 in Howell Memorial Theater. The plot of Nikolai Gogol's play revolves around the struggle for land reform in Russia at the beginning of the nineteenth century. Gogol identified himself with his homeland and felt deeply the oppression and injustice done the peasant classes in Russia, Mrs. Kenney said. The play is intended as a satire on the petty bureaucratic actions of the typical provincial government official. It opens as a group of such officials are preparing for an investigation by a government inspector. They mistake a transient petty official as the inspector general and make a great effort to entertain him and protect themselves. Through this entertainment, the provincial officials reveal the fraudulent but ingenious political machine they have built. After the transient official leaves, his fraud is discovered. Members of production crews include Margaret Samani, production manager; Peggy Baldwin, manager and Mary Thompson, lighting; Joyce Fangman, manager, Gloria Kellmergen, Barbara Conrad, sound. Others are Josephine Margelin, manager, Sue Wollard, Anna Meyer, costumes; Don Dick, manager, Dennis Holt, Kathleen Schmutte, Larry Carstenson, Noel Schoenrock, stage properties and scenery; Alberta Kasperek, manager, Minette Taylor, Sondra Sherman, hand properties.

College Preparation:

High School Principals To Interview Freshmen

Superintendents and principals from 96 Nebraska high schools will visit the University Tuesday to interview approximately 1000 freshmen who are graduates of their schools. The purpose of the interviews, Dr. George Rosenlof, dean of admissions said, is to help the high school educators learn how better to prepare high school students for college work. "And in turn," Dr. Rosenlof said, "the University will learn how better to orient the incoming freshmen for University life." The high school educators will be assigned individual rooms in which they will interview graduates of their schools Tuesday morning. The educators then will submit to the University a summary report of their findings two or three weeks later. Dr. Rosenlof said, "The second annual Principal-Freshman conference will be highly informal and the educators will be able to encourage a frank and fair discussion of any problems that the freshmen face." At a luncheon in the Union, Chancellor Clifford Hardin will welcome the conference. The afternoon program, starting at 2 p.m. in the Union ballroom, will consist of a panel discussion on "Ways and Means of Better Integration of Nebraska Secondary Schools and the University of Nebraska." Panel participants will be: Miss Dorothy Beatty, guidance director at Beatrice High School; Supt. Albert Evans of Chase County High School, Imperial; Principal Richard Krebs of Omaha South High School; Supt. N. A. Sullivan of Ord High School; Supt. D. E. Nelson of Schuyler Public Schools and Supt. Glen Tabor of Valley Public Schools.

Landmark On Ag Campus Felled

The water tower, a landmark on the Ag campus, was felled Saturday to make room for the new biochemistry and nutrition building. The tower was located just south of the Agronomy building. Jim Furrer, four-year-old son of John Furrer, assistant extension agronomist, explores the site. The new biochemistry building is part of the University's long-range building plans, encompassing a ten-year period. The building is expected to be completed some time in the near future.

March 12:

Annual Whisker Contest To Open Farmers Fair

By WILL SCHUTZ Ag Editor Men, you can save a lot of time and trouble by not shaving, and the gals will be tickled to death. You'll have a good reason for the bushy growth, too, because the traditional Farmers' Fair Whisker King contest begins March 12 and ends May 12 at the annual Cotton and Denim Dance. The Whisker King and the Goddess of Agriculture will be presented at this annual affair which climaxes Farmers' Fair activities.

Any male student enrolled in the University is eligible to enter the contest, provided he is clean shaven on the day of registration. Contestants may register March 12-14 in both the Ag and City Unions, according to Al Trenkle, chairman of the Farmers' Fair Board.

Judging will again be done by Mortar Boards and local barbers on the basis of length of beard, texture and uniqueness. The whisker contest started in 1916 when Farmers' Fair was in its infancy. Through the years wrestling matches, parades, rodeos, square dances, barbecues and tubbing of students who did not conform to the traditional wearing of the cotton and denims during the Fair have been some of the highlights of the celebration. It has been presented every year since its founding except for a period during World War II.

The Whisker King and The Goddess of Agriculture will reign over the dance after the crowning. The goddess is selected in an all campus election from senior coeds majoring in home economics with a weighted minimum 5.5 average. Jake Platt and Martha Heermann reigned over festivities last year. Ninety-two contestants were entered in the Whisker King competition.

Rev. Graham, Orde of the Preachers, presented the Basic Beliefs of the Roman Catholics in his afternoon seminar. After summarizing the basic tenets of the Church, questions were answered from the floor. "The Doctrine of Salvation," he said, "as we believe it is that a person that is baptized and lives up to God's commandments will be saved."

Asked if he believed his Church to be the only Church, Rev. Graham replied, "Yes, I believe my church to be the true church, and every man should feel that way about his religion. If a man does not feel his religion is the true faith, he cannot claim to be religious." The seminars, convocations and student discussions will continue through Thursday with continuations and progression of the designated topics.
