

Ruling:

NU Regents Refuse 2 Building Requests

University Regents ruled at their last meeting, March 24, that the square block between 16th and 17th Streets and R and Vine Streets will be reserved solely for women's housing.

A question arose when a fraternity showed interest in purchasing the Delta Gamma house, which is located in the section.

Brown Palace, Inc., an independent men's housing group, had also written a letter to the Regents concerning purchase of property on the south side of Vine Street in the section designated for women's housing.

Both inquiries were rejected, John Selleck, University Comptroller, said, because of the area's designation.

Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity had shown interest in purchasing the Delta Gamma house, Mary Hall, house president, said.

At present, the group's building plans are indefinite and depend on finding a purchaser for their present house, she said.

The area on the north side of Holdrege between 16th and 17th Streets has been designated for men's housing. Other areas previously designated for men's housing include the block between 15th and 16th and S and Vine Streets and the blocks between 16th and 14th and R and Q Streets. Several men's houses are located off campus.

In other non-University housing projects, Kappa Sigma and Delta Upsilon have planned new houses on the campus.

Both fraternities, located off the campus, said they felt off-campus locations were inconvenient.

The Kappa Sigma house, under construction at 500 N. 16th, is expected to be completed at the end of May. The house will cost an estimated $214,000.

The Delta Upsilon house, to be located at the corner of 16th and Vine, will be completed by September. The house has not yet been contracted for, but plans are under way, Joe Krause, president, said.

The Lutheran Student House and the Presbyterian-Congregational student house have planned additions. The Lutheran Student House is planning an annex for a worship sanctuary.

Presby House plans the addition of a chapel and a recreation room. The addition will cost an estimated $100,000.

The old Baptist Student House, located on north 15th, is being razed. The group's fellowship is now meeting with the Disciples of Christ at the Cotner School of Religion and will continue to do so.

By-laws of the University Regents state that, although there may be privately owned property within the University area, such property is subject to University jurisdiction. Thus the University enforces its regulation that a fraternity and sorority may not occupy housing units within the same block.

Spain:

Low Cost Study Plan Suggested

Spanish Universities will offer American students a low cost program of study and travel this summer. More than a dozen Universities will cooperate in an effort to better acquaint students with the Spanish language, history and culture.

Tuition at Spanish universities averages $12. Because living rates are among the lowest in Europe, excellent student residences are available for $1 to $2 a day including meals. American students traveling in Spain are also allowed special rates upon presentation of a courtesy card.

Students interested in additional information or in making application to a Spanish university should write to the Cultural Relations Office, Embassy of Spain, Washington 9, D. C. American citizens visiting Spain for the summer need only a valid passport and no visa to enter the country.

Publication Boards:

Southern College Journalists Report Examples Of Censorship Of Editorials

College editors of eight state universities throughout the south were queried recently by "The New Republic" magazine as to how much freedom of editorial comment and independence they were allowed.

At Florida State University the move for further administrative control took the form of a plan to move the printing of the paper to the campus and to institute a board of publications, controlled primarily by the faculty members.

The board also issued a "statement of principles" which, according to Robert Folsom, ex-editor means that the board would attempt to guarantee that undergraduate publications would be pleasing to the university administration.

Folsom concluded, "The publications board is the final culmination of a long effort to put an end to any criticism of the administration, but what is most disheartening about it is that it invoked not a murmur of protest from the FSU student body."

"The Daily Texan" found itself in difficulty following editorial opposition of the Harris-Fulbright natural gas bill. The Regents drafted a censorship decree, and told a group of student leaders that "Texan" editorials should not concern controversial state and national issues, and that the editor was a "mouthpiece" for Texas liberals.

William Morris, the editor, said that a study by the Regents was underway and while the results were not yet known, "what we do know is that the presence of a neither faculty nor administration censor in our editorial and news offices each night is an affront to the dignity of college journalists."

The editor of the University of Maryland "Diamondback" said that the situation there was somewhat similar to Florida in that the administration had organized a Committee on Student Publications and Communications composed of eight faculty members and two students.

He added that as yet, neither faculty nor administration had actually interfered with editorial policy. He pointed out, however, that the committee is just getting organized and "one of the proposed by-laws under consideration would impose strict faculty supervision upon us."

At the University of Georgia, the "Black and Red" had it out with the Regents and university officials in 1953 regarding an editor-

Union:

Art Exhibit On Display April 3-30

Forty prize-winning water colors from the second international Hallmark Art Award competition will go on exhibition Tuesday, April 3, at the Union, Gary Widman, chairman of the Union exhibits committee, said. The show will remain through April 30.

Selected from nearly 4000 entries from 35 countries, the water colors are depictions of Christmas by artists of 10 countries of the Americas and Western Europe. They were awarded $9500 in prizes by Hallmark Cards Incorporated, Kansas City, greeting card publisher who sponsors the competition, and were first exhibited at New York's Wildenstein Gallery.

Included in the exhibit are the four major prize winners representing the United States, Switzerland, Italy and France, whose prizes totalled $5000.

The United States is represented in the exhibit with 26 paintings. The works of Swiss, German, Argentine, Belgian, Canadian and Spanish artists complete the exhibit.

This competition was the second such international contest sponsored by the greeting card firm. In addition to the $9500 in prizes to the 40 paintings on display here, $3,000 in honorable mention awards was presented to 60 other painters — making the total value of the prizes $12,500.

Ackerman, Conner Paintings Chosen

The two paintings are "Big Yellow" by Alana Ackerman, and "Simoon" by Bruce Conner.

The exhibition is being assembled by the American Federation of Arts under the auspices of the College Art Association and the United States Information Agency. It will be circulated in Europe.

Dr. Dudley Ashton, chairman of the department of physical education for women at the University, was named as a fellow in the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

This national honor award was presented to her at the opening in Chicago.

Dr. Ashton is the second Nebraskan ever named as a fellow in the national association. The first was Dr. Mabel Lee, who retired as chairman of the University's department of physical education for women in 1952. She received the honor in 1933.
