Art Professor Rudy Pozzatti Gains National Prominence

Rudy Pozzatti, printmaker and painter, is without doubt the "hottest" young Nebraska artist on the national art scene and one of the most promising artists in the country today.

He earned this reputation with his burin and brush in six years at the University.

The assistant professor of art first received national attention in 1951 at a "new talent" show held at the University of New York City.

The final practice for Nebraska Yell Squad try-outs will be held Tuesday in the Coliseum.

eries in Morrill Hall. The showing includes prints, oils and watercolors, and original wood and metal plates. The show will run through May 6.

Also, the Smithsonian Institution is circulating a one-man traveling exhibition of Pozzatti's works. The show is now at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, and will be shown at Omaha's Joslyn Art Mu-

Tuesday: Yell Squad Schedules Practices

The final practice for Nebraska Yell Squad try-outs will be held Tuesday in the Coliseum.

Tryouts will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Coliseum. The Yell Squad will be chosen by an advisory board consisting of: John Goulay, president of Innocents, Gail Katskee, president of Mortar Board; Andy Hove, president of Student Council, Don Lentz, Band Director; Bill Orwig, Director of Athletics; Jake Gier, gymnastic coach, and Gene Christensen, present Yell King.

The squad will be chosen in the following order: Yell King, assistant Yell King, men cheer leaders and women cheer leaders. Those trying out will be judged on spirit, appearance, form, effort put forth and crowd appeal, Christensen said.

Three women and three men will be chosen consisting of two regulars and one alternate. Jake Gier is the squad sponsor.

The final Yell Squad Banquet will be held Wednesday at Tony and Luigi's for the nine members of the squad. Gier and Orwig will hand out plaques and various awards during the evening.

Joan Pollard will be presented with a special award for being on the squad for three years.

Dairy Club Elects Terp President

Richard Terp, sophomore in the College of Agriculture, has been elected president of the Varsity Dairy Club.

Other officers are Milton Fricke, vice president; Art Armbrust, secretary-treasurer, and George Woolsey, publicity chairman. Present Ag Exec representative is Dick Nelson.

Featured speaker at the Thursday evening meeting was Jerry Whiting of an Omaha dairy firm, who discussed "Problems in the Dairy Industry."

Tentative dates for the dairy products and dairy cattle judging contests are April 20-21.

seum sometime in the spring of 1957.

Pozzatti came to the University in 1950, directly from his native state of Colorado, where he obtained his Bachelor and Master of Fine Arts degrees.

Recognition of Pozzatti's highly dramatic effects through bold designing began to snowball after his return in 1953 from a year's study as a Fulbright scholar at the Institute of Art at Florence, Italy.

Most of his prints and paintings immediately before and after his Italian studies dealt with Italian architecture. For the time being Pozzatti has settled his artistic expression on landscape subjects and natural forms, such as flowers, trees, and animals. His print of a grasshopper received a purchase award at the 27th International Exhibition of Prints, held at the Seattle Art Museum in 1955.

The Art News, the art world's bible, said in a recent issue that Pozzatti's plates "demonstrate an extraordinary technical dexterity and a penchant for linear expression."

The magazine particularly commends Pozzatti's "Venetian Domes," which is on display at the University Galleries. Of the print, the magazine says: "Venetian Domes is the most impressive proof of his skill, strength, and perception. It is a large plate, an aerial view of the domes of Venice rendered with clean, crisp burin lines on zinc. The composition is in perpetual motion—the eye follows a complex linear pattern in an endless oval. Drama and bravura stem from the early Italian engravers in this print which reaffirms the reputation of this excellent young artist."

Dr. Herbert Jehle, University professor of physics, will be guest speaker Tuesday at the Cornell University department of chemistry, Ithaca, N.Y.

Daly Requests Poems, Prose For NU Paper

Short bits of poetry and prose can be submitted to the Nebraska office for publication in "The Campus Green," Fred Daly, editorial page editor of the Nebraskan, announced Monday.

The Nebraskan will consider any prose submitted by regularly enrolled University students, Daly said.

Any sort of creative material may be submitted for publication in The Nebraskan's Literary Supplement, Janet Gordon, co-editor of the supplement, said.

Students submitting material may use pseudonyms, but The Nebraskan must have the student's real name, she said.

The next literary supplement is tentatively scheduled for sometime in the next two weeks, Miss Gordon said.

Miss Gordon and Glenna Berry, senior in Arts and Sciences, are co-editors for the supplement.

The Midwestern political heritage stems from both, he said.

Historians, he said, have tended to neglect the post-frontier years which are increasingly urban.

"City machines and city bosses, unassimilated city immigrants, and city business interests bent on dominating the political life of both country and city are as much a part of the Midwestern tradition," he said, "as the Grangers, the Greenbackers and the Populists."

"In the 19th Century the farmers fought the battle against business domination almost alone. In the 20th Century they were joined by recruits from the city middle classes in the Progressive movement, then by great numbers of city workers in support of the New Deal."

Each reform cycle went a step further than its predecessor, he said. But, he said, they all agreed with Jefferson that it is the duty of government to restrain those who would "take from labor the bread it has earned."

Knoll, Beutel Attend AAUP Convention

Frederick Beutel, professor of law, and Robert Knoll, assistant professor of English, represented the University at the American Association of University Professors meeting in St. Louis last week.

The AAUP censured the administration of seven schools for what they termed, "improper interference of academic freedom." Beutel said. The interference in most instances was the unjustified dismissal of faculty members.

Beutel served as chairman for the committee investigating the North Dakota Agriculture College. The committee found the school administration at fault in discharging four professors and the school administration was censured.

The censorship entails an official statement by the AAUP that the institution does not live up to the standards of the AAUP, Beutel said.

Other schools censured included: University of California, Ohio State, Temple University, Jefferson Medical College, St. Louis University and Rutgers.

Faculty Examines Decision

A meeting of the Student Affairs Committee will be held in the near future to determine who has jurisdiction over the averages necessary to hold positions in IFC, Panhellenic and Union, according to J. P. Colbert, Dean of Student Affairs.

Colbert said that although he has heard from the Judiciary Committee, he would be interested in knowing whether this constitutes the opinion of the entire Council.

Controversy has arisen over the ruling by the Council Judiciary Committee that the Council has the right to set scholastic averages for the three organizations just as it sets requirements for other campus activities.

The Judiciary Committee ruling is final for the Council. Colbert said he thought personally that "the higher average is a good thing."

IFC, Panhellenic and Union protested this statement on grounds that they are not campus activities but autonomous groups responsible only to the Board of Regents because of their unusual organization.

Average requirements set by the Council are 5.7 for officers and 5.0 for members. The three groups in question require a 4.5 average to become a member.

In regard to the dispute, the Council moved several weeks ago that the Judiciary Committee examine the status of IFC, Panhellenic and Union to determine the actual lines of authority.
