

Replaces Alex Hamilton: Thomas Jefferson Elected To Position Of Football Prof

football professor at Universitas Nebraskensis.
He will replace Alexander Hamilton, late instructor of football, who was destroyed recently by the people whom he had previously ly termed "a great beast." The people were angered at Hamilton's failure to produce winning teams. He now has a job with the First National Bank.

Jefferson who was recently president of the United States, said in accepting the position that he could not afford to pass it up. The salary is quite good. "I'll be rich," he said.

"If possible," he said, "I would like to instruct a few classes in political science and history as I have done some work in this field, but I suppose it will be necessary to 'promote' our school. Because of this I am going to visit some home state boys this weekend in Pennsylvania."

My basic theory of football instruction, he said, is that all men are created equal. This means that they all have two legs and two arms. Therefore, all men will tackle all other men making for more equalitarian athletics.

Jefferson said that he would probably bring in his football assistants from his home state of Virginia. This is in keeping with my equalitarian approach for it will make our coaching staff very much "homogeneous." We will represent, however, being called Virginians. In my country, we are not partial to this sort of frivolity. One of the things that attracted me to Universitas Nebraskensis is its great football tradition. The Nebraska Indian was a great progenitor of football and Sho-Shone teams were undefeated for hundreds of years. The first use of the flying wedge was demonstrated in Custer's Last Stand, he said.

... Good-bye Alex

It was learned today that Thomas Jefferson was recently elected to the position of professor of football at Universitas Nebraskensis, replacing Alexander Hamilton. Hamilton will be employed by the First National Bank.

During his tenure at the U, Hamilton won one game and lost 200. The Universitas Board of Regiments felt that this wasn't too impressive a record for Little One Conference football.

Hamilton is pictured below looking over his great mystic squad. The agile mentor expressed much regret and sorrow in leaving his alma mater. Hamilton had nothing but the best to wish for his successor, Jefferson.

The Western attire that he is pictured in was given him during a recent tour of Ag Campus by an arden fan by the name of Mitchell.

Up The Creek . . .

Crew coach Sam Norgle found himself up the creek without a paddle the other night when for no reason at all in the middle of a scheduled workout in the steam tunnels under the coliseum, four of the crew team members abandoned ship and begin to haze

17 independent channel swimmers who happened to be close by. The men were later identified as members of Rho Rho Rho; secret men's brine drinking fraternity.

Riflers Rifled . . .

The Pershing Rifle team was rifled Saturday in a rifle match held at the NU rifle range. Their opponents, East Cicero Trade School combined an unorthodox attack to drop the PR's. Torpedo Borini, team captain turned in a perfect score for all positions using a sawed-off shotgun. The number two man, Stills Casseri won the revolver division with his snub nosed M-1. Murryn Schlieferd won the Annual award, given in the honor of the late Captain Law who was fatally beaten to death with a blunt swagger stick during a drill period last year.

It was a moral victory for the Pershing Rifles, however, when their entire group of officers was knifed when they protested the outcome.

All ROTC students are urged to conform to the official dress for this week . . . an official 1919 A 53 semiautomatic air cooled black arm band mourning the happening.

Jess In Traction . . .

It seems that track coach Frank Sevigne has overlooked one of the finest prospects for his thinned squad who is enrolled at the University (enrollment is as far as it goes). This young prospect has been content to be a supporter when he could be a real jock. But I digress. I am speaking of none other than Jess Brownell, who is perhaps one of the better shot-putters of our time. As a matter of fact, just the other night he put 12 shots away with no sweat. He also has been known to broad jump on occasions.

Floor Men . . .

The Mayo clinic has gotten together with the NCAA to draw up a set of rules for the coming basketball season. After many suggestions by Fog Allen about raising the baskets to counteract the giants who are now dominating the game, a definite conclusion was reached.

After much discussion the surgeons convinced the NCAA that instead of raising the baskets, the sensible thing to do was to remove one foot of bone from each leg of collegiate cagers.

Sportswriter Max Kreitman's only comment was "there'll be no bones about it."

NU Skeet Shooters Enter Meet

University varsity skeet shooters will participate in the annual Trans-Nebraska Skeet Shoot and Fire Stomping Field Day, Friday and Saturday at Buda, Nebraska.

The Field Day will be sponsored by the North Platte Valley Skeet Shooting Association.

Clem Hangfire, skeet coach, told Nebraskan reporters that the Huskers "ought to blast their way to victory." Coach Hangfire will take a squad of 18 to the field day.

Ephriam Glotz, defending Trans-Nebraska skeetman, will lead the Cornhusker crew. Glotz is undefeated in his last 37 matches.

Expected to push Glotz for top honors is Egrek Smalley, who has finished second to Glotz for the last 37 matches. Smalley, only a sophomore, is looked on as the Cornhuskers best hope in future years.

Other first-place honors should come to Greg Stoneheels, All Big Seven firestomper. Stoneheels is called "old asbestos" by his teammates.

Huskie Husky Leads Husker Head-Rollers

Babe Husky lead the University Women's Head Rolling team to victory against the Colorado Women's College Dames in a just too thrilling tussel yesterday.

Head Rolling is the new collegiate sport originated earlier this year by the administration. The athletic department had recently incorporated it into the roster of feminine sports including the sledge hammer throw, multi-mousing speed run and high step strutting.

Miss Husky wielded the ax with great dexterity during the match, managing to decapitate a total of 13 opponents. "My motto," Miss Husky said, "is smash 'em."

The game was quite colorful, the landscape being dabbled here and there with bright red spots.

The girl's playing ability was overshadowed only by their lovely new bloomer suits. The ladies wore lace bloomer-shorts, trimmed in red-lick-rack. The team numbers were aplicated to the pique blouses in a delightful shade of red with white chantilly lace.

Klan

Lon Insect, KKK president stated today that "no fall Revue will be held next year." In it's place the Klan members will don their sheets and burn crosses and administrative officials or faculty members if any can be found.

Following the night's events the Klan will hold a soap eating contest to select a new Chancellor.

Bellow Gains Star Of Week Award For Mat Laurels

By JAJI BUKA
Far East Reporter

The matmen ended their regular season of grunting-'n'-groaning last week, when two-ton Marv Bellow threw himself two falls out of three.

Bellow

Bellow, our Star Of the Week, has been running out of opponents, that is, worthy grapplers, so he as been wrestling him self lately.

Bellow, you readers in a y remember, won the Star of the Week award twice last year, once for icing the game during the hockey season, and another time for Weight-lifting.

The burly Bellow lifts a spar-row over his head twice to win the weight crown.

Bellow, interviewed by a Nebraskan reporter after his last triumph, said, "I get ahead by . . . uh . . . conserving mah muscles. I . . . I . . . ah . . . have to. I believe . . . I believe in a . . . good clean life . . . no back-biting . . . play fair . . . size of the dog in the fight . . . best man always . . . uh." a Bellow's trainer, the amiable mentor, Tiger Threegs, said, "Marv has never taken to them books like the other boys. He's always been rough-and-tumble boy. He keeps himself in good shape, works hard, plays to win. Tough boy. Real tiger on the mat. Clean liver."

Bellow was awarded a special Nebraskan Star of the Week plaque at the weekly Press Club luncheon Friday noon, and he immediately wrestled the plaque to the floor, gaining a pin with 2:34 gone in the second fall, with a step-over toe-hold. At the same time, Bellow gave the luncheon crowd some indication of his prowess, by also pinning two dishes of gelatin with his horned rimmed glasses. Said Bellow afterwards: "I owe it all to my mother." Bellow's mother is the former Mighty Josephine Young of Bronx Park.

Mouthwash

The Editor: I can't hardly see what all this fuss is about. This C. Clyde Mitchell certainly is not the type of person we want teaching our young peepul.

I have a young doghter in Teachers Collidge, and I don't want her to here all them Communist professors. We older peepul who pay taxes and have businesses have a write to know what is going on up a your University.

I think you need your mouth washed out with tar soap. Mrs. Roderick Lemmington Fitz-Herbert-Smythe IV
