

Greater Freedom: Johnstonovich Forms NKVD For NU Women

By GILL COMRADE

The AWS 2 a.m. late hour ruling has been rescinded and is to be supplanted by the NKVD, Dean Magda Johnstonovich, Grand Procurator of the People's Commissariat of Internal Affairs announced today.

"The NKVD," Dean Johnstonovich explained, "is merely an organization, shrouded in a blanket of secrecy, that detects and corrects deviationist who have not conformed to the social strata."

"Is being step toward greater freedom," Dean Johnstonovich said, explaining the new system. "Coed ladies will be on an honor system. They will be honest and sign for late minutes when they are late without having house mothers enforce regulations. The NKVD will check on any oppositionists and help everyone to live together in peace," Dean Johnstonovich concluded.

Pollyann P. Positivethought, AWS president, said she was "Happy" over the adoption of the new system. "It is an action that we have long awaited. I am sure University women will use this opportunity to prove they have reached social harmony," Miss Positivethought said.

Miss Ima Typicalone, University student was asked by a Nebraska survey for her opinion of the administrative action. "Personally," she said, "What does it mean?"

Mother says I can't be brainwashed anymore, because I don't have any more brains."

Currently, the NKVD is recruiting and training professional security personnel in preparation for an expected need of their services. A reliable source said the NKVD has received numerous reports of indecent thoughts among the coeds, and it has reached the point where their methods of correction are needed.

The NKVD operates on the principle of surveillance and investigation, arrest and examination and sentencing the convicted to a series of punishments which range from instruction in pure thoughts to "going to the laundry."

"Going to the laundry" is the colloquial phraseology applied to the tactics of interrogation and intimidation, coupled with denunciations and terror. The process is commonly called brainwashing.

The NKVD hopes to eradicate every counter-decency thought from the minds of dewey-eyed women, Dean Johnstonovich said. The greater freedom of hours the coeds enjoy will be overshadowed only by their fear of denunciation, Dean Johnstonovich said.

Rewards will be given to those who denounce friends, she said. In this way the NKVD will strengthen loyalties and close the gap between the students and administration.

Coeds Meet Wolf

University coeds are shown above with a tame wolf of the same species that recently devoured several University students Alice, the wolf above, was raised by the curator of Nebraska Art Galleries, Pete Bohemian, as a model. Bohemian says Alice is occasionally violent to the extent of nibbling his three-year old son severely but has not yet been destroyed.

Police Investigate: Five NU Students Eaten By Pack Of Wolves

Five University students were devoured by wolves near Love Memorial Library Monday afternoon.

The wolves, estimated by on-lookers to be about 14 in number disappeared soon after the carnage and have not yet been located. A special detail of campus police and special Administration investigators recruited from fraternity parking lots have been put on the case.

Those devoured were: Sam J. Norgie, junior in undeclared; Byron Eastwick, sophomore in Business Administration; Olive Martini, freshman in Elementary Education; Maude Strump, senior in Home Economics, and Cyril Brandwater, exchange student from Texas.

"These wolves just came running out of nowhere and gobbled those people clean up," Ethyl Thrugh, an eyewitness, testified.

Other students near the scene of the mishap registered similar amazement.

"I thought it was the security investigators again," Claude Smeep, sophomore in Arts and Sciences, said.

Dr. T. I. Hrsbkzp, Professor of Furzeouting and oldest member of the University faculty said it was the first time, to his knowledge, that anyone had even been devoured by wolves on the University campus.

"The situation is all the more amazing in that there hasn't ever been any wolves of the variety reported in the area Monday in this part of the state," Dr. Hrsbkzp added.

So far police have been placed in and around Morrill Hall as a precautionary measure. Extra chains have been put around the elephants in the museum, the police announced.

In an open letter to the University, the Administration has asked that anyone knowing the whereabouts of the wolves, or any information pertaining to them, please notify the campus police.

"The University hopes that the people of the State of Nebraska realize that this sort of thing is not condoned on the campus, and that all available means are being taken to find the wolves and destroy them.

A fund-raising drive to erect a small stone in memory of the victims has collected so far a total of $3.36. All contributions may be sent to the Pink Rag, Room 20, Student Union, in coin or stamps.

Hog-Calling: Ag Exec Plans Panty Raid For Neglected Ag Girls

A special series of Ag campus spring day events are being planned under the guidance of the Ag Exec Board, according to Dean William V. Lambert.

Highlights of the day will be an administration sanctioned panty raid and a student-faculty hog calling contest, Lambert announced.

"I have always been of the opinion that panty raids are a very worthwhile student activity, if properly organized and supervised," he said.

"We have a very fine organized residence hall for women on the Ag campus and will soon be adding a new one. Therefore, I think it is only fair that these girls be allowed to take part in events that normally only occur on the downtown campus. Since it is the duty of the Ag Exec Board to coordinate student activities on the Ag campus, they are the logical choice to supervise these events," he added.

Larry Connor, president of the Ag Exec Board, has personally taken charge of all arrangements for the raid.

Men on the Ag campus who wish to participate must sign up by May 3. Registrants will be divided into teams of 20 men each. Each team will be given 15 minutes to complete its phase of the raid. Teams are being kept small to prevent congestion in rooms and hallways, in the event of fire or other unforeseen complications.

Each man will be permitted to confiscate any article of clothing so long as it is not being worn at the time of seizure and does not exceed one dollar in value. Any one failing to be polite or tactful in obtaining these trophies will

Axed: Daily Removal List

- Administrative removals for the day: As of press time administrative removals are as follows:
- Leland Arnel, Instructor in Dental Literature and History. Reason: Use of defamatory obscene literature. Purely an administrative matter.
  - Milton Beckman, Assistant Professor of Secondary Education and Supervisor of Mathematics. Reason: rumored connection with numbers racket. Administrative change only.
  - Arthur Belknap, Captain U. S. Army, Assistant Professor of Military Science and Tactics. Reason: Tried wrong tactics.
  - Winifred Cochran, Study Hall Supervisor, University High School. Reason: Not enough attention to research in the field.
  - Carl Donaldson, Director of Purchases and Procurement. Reason: Procurement.
  - John Elder, Soil Scientist, Conservation and Survey Division. Reason: Caught wasting soil.
  - Board of Regents report that there is nothing personal in the removal. Mr. Elder was well known for his dirt, but the removal was decided to preserve academic integrity.
  - Norman Gester, Acting Director, University Art Galleries. Reason: Photographic paintings. The administration has taken the evidence under advisement.
  - Paul Grimbinger, Assistant Professor of Poultry Husbandry. Reason: Mmessaging with chicks.
  - George Holden, Instructor in Business Organization and Management. Reason: Running well managed but poorly organized bookie joint. Administration felt he was wasting books.
  - Alvin Hoerlein, Professor of Animal Pathology and Animal Pathologist. Reason: Took wrong path.
  - Keyce Jones, Guidance Consultant and Jr. Division and Council Service. Reason: Guiding students to Kansas and heading Indian War Council.
  - James Johnston, Subsurface Geologist, Conservation and Survey Division. Reason: Working with the underground.
  - Donald Lentz, Professor of Woodwind Instruments, Conductor of University Bands. Reason: Blowing his own horn too loud.
  - Richard Moses, Lecturer in Pharmaceutical Jurisprudence. Reason: Administration felt he showed lack of prudence.
  - James Reinhardt, Professor of Criminology. Reason: Caught.
  - Mrs. Valentine Suprunowicz, Part-time Instructor in Germanic Languages. Reason: Certain members of the administration feel that it is not worth their time to learn to pronounce her name. Dean Hallgren warned parents about calling their children Valentine.

'Negative': Council Examines Project

Student Council announced today that it will hold an immediate investigation of the Lincoln Project. The Council stated in its report that the Project is suspected of not supporting its policy.

Marvin Lesbrow, Council member, stated that from the latest report on recent testings on campus, the results have possibilities of being negative.

"In addition," Lesbrow said, "there is a suspicion that the choices of needy families to which the Project is giving assistance is undemocratic. The Council believes that many families are not being reached."

Sharon Gannold, also a Council member, said that the Council may ask the Project to adopt an "all or none" policy in the selection of needy families.

Alcohol Suggested

A University official, back to camera, is shown speaking at a Union seminar on the topic of "Alcohol and the Student." The seminar was sponsored by the Union convocations committee, which has been expanded to include bar service in light of the recent liquor by the drink policy.

Editor Tells Secret Talent Of Staffers

The Nebraska has been able to obtain an exclusive interview with the editor of the foremost campus literary project The Pipsqueak Press.

Q. How is this year's edition of the Pipsqueak Press coming?

A. Well, we ain't doing too well. You see, not too many of the boys can write very well. Some of them can't even spell.

Q. What do you gentlemen do other than print the Pipsqueak Press?

A. Boy, can we drink.

Q. Do you do anything else?

A. Well, we drink lots of different kinds of things.

Q. Anything else?

A. After we drink awhile, we talk and make noise and make plans how we are going to take over everything and then we drink some more.

Q. What have you accomplished?

A. We got a lot of boys in big positions, and we can sure drink.

Q. What do you think of TNE?

A. We can sure drink.

Q. What do you think?

A. Can you think?

A. We can sure drink.
