

Nebraskan Editorials:

Toward Successful Spring Days

Friday will make or break Spring Day on this campus. In spite of all the work that has been done on this new event by the Student Council committee, the Union, the N Club, Ag Exec Board and the various subcommittees, the possibility of having more Spring Days in the future rests on how University students react to this first one.

large enough to rival any competitive events now on the campus are being offered to winning teams, either in all-event scoring or events such as pushball and the tug-of-war. As the carnival continues on through the evening, the Union will sponsor a street dance on R Street. All day long items will be offered in the Union at reduced rates, as part of their annual birthday party. The birthday party has been linked with Spring Day.

That He Might Live

The announcement Tuesday that Eugene D. O'Sullivan, Omaha attorney, had been named legal counsel for Loyd Carroll Grandsinger has been due, in large part, to the courageous work of three University professors.

braska. It takes a lot of intelligence and courage—I've got the courage," he said, "and the professors have the intelligence."

But One Way To Turn

Some more facts have appeared in the case of C. Clyde Mitchell, recently demoted chairman of the agricultural economics department. A story in today's news columns, taken from handwritten notes prepared specially for The Nebraskan by a faculty member in the College of Agriculture, said the outside pressures which influenced the replacement of C. Clyde Mitchell were a "combination of economic power and the Nebraska press."

partment of agricultural economics who attended the special meeting with Dean Lambert before Easter vacation—and The Nebraskan contacted all but one—denied that the reason given in the meeting for Mitchell's demotion was the influence of outside pressures by "persons of substance in the state."

Origin Of Jurisdiction

A Student Tribunal, should it be instituted at the University, would receive cases for trial from two general sources—cases handed down from a faculty committee on student affairs, or cases brought directly to the tribunal from the students themselves.

Violation of social regulations, drunkenness, some cases of inter-residence disturbances and cheating are the most common cases heard by the student judiciary committees at Stanford. These cases come directly to the committees. The main purpose of the student judicial system is to support the Fundamental Standard of obedience of university rules.

High Moral Standard

To the editor: I have nothing against L.J.M.'s attempt to advance himself scholastically. If he abstains from drinking, smoking and carousing, I admire him for it.

only say that they were not proper. A school newspaper reflects the morals of the school as a whole. As I stated before, I do not feel that the students of the University want their newspaper filled with tripe.

was evidence of this during my term of employment. The effect of administrative bows to pressure, vested interests or money bags is degrading, demoralizing and sad when measured in terms of justice. It is like a sacrifice of a war to gain a temporary battle. To have the administration bow is perhaps official endorsement for the faculty members to do likewise if they wish to succeed.

1. Ak-Sar-Ben has a lot of race track money that the Legislature does not permit it to keep as profit. The report was it grossed about 14 million dollars one year when I was on the staff, but there is also a considerable net figured over the years. Money has power and influence. Some of the most powerful and influential masters are associated with AK-SAR-BEN.

Men with money were talking, vested interests were involved and men were squirming. I do not believe the grain man could say anything in the research project that would help him and his buying activity.

There are budgets, you know, and it costs a lot to get in some places with economic power. There must be a day for payoff of the cost of attaining power. The pressure to make Mitchell a scapegoat is probably part of the reward being offered by the Dean and suggested by the Chancellor.

Yet, they are rather helpless when they allow a few people with money, including race track funds, to capture the systems of communication and the educational system and the Administration.

There never was a time in the history of our University journal when there were more burning issues to be solved by the student columnist. And I, being a conscientious, sober, and dedicated writer, feel that it is my duty to collect these issues and uncover the dirty work which has been going on out of view of the student's watered eye.

IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK!

All year long you've been promising yourself to go there. Now summer vacation is just around the corner and you still haven't set foot in the place. Shame on you!

Now here you are at the library. That wasn't so bad, was it? Of course not! Go inside. What do you see? A sign that says "NO SMOKING." Go outside. Light a Philip Morris. Smoke. Go back inside.

Because now you are ready. Now your trembling resolution is rigid. Now your pulsing psyche is serene. You have been tranquilized by a smoke that dotes and pampers and caresses, that lifts the fallen, repairs the shattered, straightens the bent, unravels the knotted, rights the askew, and fastens the unbuttoned.

Having learned that the circulation desk hasn't the least intention of ever parting with a book, let us now go into the periodical room. Here we spend hours sifting through an imposing array of magazines—magazines from all the far corners of the earth, magazines of every nature and description—but though we search diligently and well, we cannot find Mad or Confidential.

Next let us venture into the reference room. Here in this hushed, vaulted chamber, we find the true scholars of the university—earnest, dedicated young men and women who care for only one thing in the world: the pursuit of knowledge.

The makers of Philip Morris, who sponsor this column, cordially welcome you to the gentleness of today's Philip Morris, but we'll only tell you this: Take a leaf from our book. Enjoy Philip Morris.
