

DiFrancesca Sniffing At Orange Blossoms

By BOB MARTEL
Staff Sports Writer

The Iowa State Cyclones will invade Memorial Stadium tomorrow afternoon to tangle with the Nebraska Cornhuskers, their first Big Seven foe of the young 1956 season.

Coach DiFrancesca has his squad up for this contest in which they are rated a slight underdog.

"On the outcome, says DiFrancesca will hang much of the fortune of the big Cardinal team this year."

To do something about getting ready to win the game DeFrancesca has shifted John Scheldrup to the starting right end position.

The big Oak Park, Illinois junior has played fine ball in both games so far, with fine pass catching and good defense counterbalancing some spotty blocking.

He has shown tremendous desire all year and Vince figures he has earned the right to show what he can do as a starter.

Another man getting a promotion has been Chuck Latting, third string left half-back, who scored three of the four touchdowns this year. Latting was moved up during the week as a reward for his fine work.

DiFrancesca hinted at other shifts but listed none as definite, except on Scheldrup and Latting.

Starting at left end opposite Scheldrup will be Jerry Donohue, six foot one inch junior from Des Moines, Iowa. Donohue is an excellent pass receiver and is 188 pounds of trouble on defense. Bill Fogarty and Gale Gibson will be the understudies.

Opening at the tackle slots will be big Oliver Sparks and Andris Poncius. Sparks at 223 pounds is rated one of the top linemen in the Big Seven. The six foot two inch senior is captain of the Cyclone eleven.

Poncius, 210 pound sophomore from Des Moines, Iowa, has looked very good in the first two contests and shows promise of becoming one of Iowa State's better linemen.

Backing up the starters are Don Metcalf and Lyle Carlson. Metcalf, the tallest man on the squad, is six feet five inches tall and a former Iowa All-Stater during his prep days. Carlson is a 200 pound junior who saw limited action last season.

Lining up at the guards will be Howie Henrich and Chuck Muehlaupt. Henrich, an All-Navy lineman in 1955, is only a sophomore and should be well known before too long by all Iowa State opponents. At 210 pounds he is rough and tough and a very hard man to move.

His running mate, letterman Muehlaupt is a senior and was a Cyclone regular. Depth in the guard slots include Ron Bredeon and Bob Bird.

The center Jack Falter is a 210 pound junior from Elmhurst, Illinois. He is an excellent pivot man and outstanding in backing up the line.

His replacement is senior Grant Blaney.

Directing the Cyclone offense will be sophomore Terry Ingram. Ingram has been the regular Iowa State quarterback thus far this season but was pressed considerably by fourth stringer Jim Kudlinski in the Northwestern game last weekend.

Kudlinski set up both scores with fine passes and will undoubtedly see plenty of action against the Huskers. Phil Hill, sophomore from Roseville, Illinois was the second stringer before being nudged out by Kudlinski.

Chuck Latting, star of the Northwestern game, will be starting at left half for the Cyclones. Latting contributed two touchdown runs of 38 and 15 yards last Saturday and thereby earned himself a starting slot.

At right half will be Bob Harden a sophomore from Omaha. Graduated from Omaha Benson in 1955, Harden earned 5 letters in football, basketball and baseball. He has looked quite promising this season and should be a real threat of the future.

Alternating halfbacks are Jim Lary and Paul Shupe. Lary was a regular before Latting skyrocketed to fame while Shupe has seen plenty of action. Both boys are important cogs in DiFrancesca's gridiron machine.

Mary Walter, junior fullback, is the Cyclone bread and butter man. Give him an inch and he'll take five yards. Walter is the man that gets the first down when Iowa State really needs it.

The second man in the fullback picture is Dave Munger. Munger, 175 pound sophomore from Greendale Wisconsin, figures prominently in Cyclone offensive plans. He serves as a very capable replacement for Walter.

"I've pointed to the Denver and Nebraska games as our key contests ever since the fall drills started," DiFrancesca said. We need to win the first game of the year and the first conference game if we want to have a chance to be an upsetter all season long.

We have a sound club this year and it needs only a key win or two to fool all those experts who tabbed it for last in the Big Seven. We need to win this one."

Brooks repeating? . . .

Sal Maglie sure made Monday a gloomy day for myself and any other Yankee boosters that may be around on the campus. It seems very difficult to find a shoulder to weep on. Everyone seems to be a Dodger fan. Jim Raglin of the Journ-Star sports staff stated in an article last week that there were only three Dodger fans outside of Flatbush namely: himself, a divinity student and an airman somewhere in Georgia. If he walked around campus or dropped in to the Union to watch one of the games, to watch one of the games, I'm sure he would change his mind. Even though I feel all alone in sticking with the Yankees, I'm still picking them to win the series.

SMU all the way? . . .

There are plenty of rabid Notre Dame, Oklahoma and Nebraska fans in this part of the country, but I've never seen a more fervent football fan than Duane Vicory of Big Ad college. After the Cornhuskers, his favorite eleven is Southern Methodist University. Being a Notre Dame fan myself, I still haven't heard the end of the Mustang's victory over the Irish.

Huskers slight favorite . . .

With the opening of Nebraska's Big Seven season just a day away, I am forced to disagree with a few of my fellow crystal ball gazers and give the Huskers a slight edge over Iowa State. Although the Cyclones have looked very good in defeating Denver 10-7 and losing to Northwestern 14-13, I feel that the Huskers will be too much for them. With Roy Stinnett rapidly shaping up and Willie Greenlaw and Bennie Dillard both back in action, the Nebraska attack looks good. Iowa State is a second half team and the Cornhusker forward wall will have to hang loose all the way. I should know better but here goes anyway: Nebraska over Iowa State by one touchdown.

A look at the gridiron . . .

A few of the major college football games around the nation this weekend include: Penn State at Army, Tennessee at Duke, Boston College at Miami, Michigan State at Michigan, Indiana at Notre Dame, Stanford at Ohio State, Kansas State at Oklahoma, Texas Tech at Texas A&M, Brown at Yale and Colorado at Kansas.

The Nebraskan sports staff has decided to stick their necks out and attempt to predict the outcome of some of the major college games each week. Keep an eye on the sports page on Fridays and then maybe you can say I told you so on Saturdays.

Arthur Murray in shoulder pads . . .

Charlie Tsoukalas, substitute right end on the Cornhusker grid squad is reported to be a pretty fancy hooper. It seems that Charlie is a regular customer at the YMCA dances on Tuesday evenings and struts his stuff Boston style. It makes me a little homesick, Charlie.

Gone but not forgotten . . .

The greatest woman athlete of all times passed away in Texas last week. Babe Didrickson Zaharias went down swinging. Never one to take a third strike, she was courageous right down to the end. The Babe stood for everything that sports stands for, namely, decency, honesty and competitiveness. She may be gone but you can bet your last dollar she will never be forgotten.

Kansas State will be at Oklahoma this Saturday. It looks as though Wildcat Coach Bus Mertes would just as soon keep his boys home. His squad is all crippled up after last week's game. All Mertes had to say about the coming Sooner contest was "It certainly is a privilege for us to play top ranked Oklahoma."

Sports Staff Climbs Out On Limb Predicting Weekly Gridiron Tests

By WALT BLORE
Sports Editor

Nebraskan Sports Staff members have stretched out their necks and started a weekly prediction chart of the 15 to 20 top games to be played on each Saturday.

One of the top games of the week pits ancient rivals Michigan State and Michigan at the Ann Arbor campus.

Last year, the Wolverines edged their neighbors from Lansing by a 14-7 score. This prevented the Spartans from having a perfect season to add to their Rose Bowl conquest of YCLA.

The staff gives the University men a 4-2 edge, but does so with much hesitancy.

Two independents, Army and Penn State, square off at Mitchell Stadium high above the scenic Hudson. Red Blak, West Point coach, fields a better balanced squad than the 1955 edition.

The Nittany Lions have had 17 consecutive winning seasons, but only three of the nine games on the schedule this fall — namely Penn, North Carolina State and Boston U. — can be considered safe. The staff picks the Black Knights of the Hudson in this one on the basis of depth.

Another unanimous choice finds Notre Dame slated to clobber Indiana. The Fighting Irish are licking their wounds after the 15-19 smarting they received from the hands of the SMU Mustangs, and will be ready for this one.

While on the subject of SMU, the collective minds of the raters pick the Mustangs to down Missouri. Tiger Coach Don Farout has had nothing but bad luck in the first two outings of what is supposed to be his last season. The Tigers don't figure to get into the win column this week.

Kansas State journeys to Oklahoma for the slaughter of the week. All this game will prove is that Oklahoma can send 61 players into the fracas, thus enabling more men to enter than usual for Bud Wilkinson's National Champs.

Colorado and Kansas lock horns in what might be the game that decides who goes to Miami this New Year. Colorado rebounded against the K-State club last week after they had been humiliated in their opener with Oregon.

Colorado gets the nod from the guessers in a close one.

The Citadel and Stetson University tangle in what is called the "shot in the dark choice." Since news of these two schools seldom reaches the hinterlands of Nebraska, this is a very wild guess for The Citadel.

Another wild one finds the staff in a toss-up as to who will win out in the Florida State-Virginia Tech game.

This has been instituted as a weekly gamble — the success of which depends upon the stakes at hand between the individuals making the selections.
