Children Receive Support

Children from the Lancaster Association for Retarded Children School gather around Jeanne Elliott, president of the

All University Fund, as she reads them a story during a visit to the school. LARC School is one of the five agencies which AUF is contributing to this year. The AUF drive will officially get underway Tuesday at the annual Kick-Off Banquet.

Fall Drive: All University Fund To Contribute Ten Percent To LARC School

The Lancaster Association for Retarded Children is one of the five charities which will be supported by the 1956 AUF fall drive. Ten percent of the funds collected during this fall's drive believe that the Lancaster Association for Retarded Children drive in Lincoln and individual contributions.

LARC school was founded two years ago by the parents of retarded children in Lincoln. The first regular classes began in 1954 with 19 children attending.

At present the school has an enrollment of 29 children whose ages range from kindergarten age to teenage. Tuition is $18.50 a month per child.

The tuition fee, which is not sufficient to maintain the school and pay the full-time teachers and principal, is supplemented by charity contributions.

One of the recent projects of the school was the building of a leather, weaving and woodwork workshop for the teenagers.

Because the children need physical activity, LARC school maintains a playground and recreation room with slides, swings and basketball court. However more equipment is needed for the project.

At present LARC school is located at 530 No. 21 St. in Lincoln.

The only other sources of income for the school are the annual Na-

Kickoff Tues.: Chancellor Endorses AUF Drive

All University Fund will begin the 1956 drive for charity with a Kick-off Dinner Tuesday in the Union.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin has endorsed AUF and urged support of its Oct. 23-Nov. 6 campaign for funds. Hardin said, "It is a privilege to be able to endorse the All University Fund and its objectives. It is, in my opinion, a most worthy endeavor and is deserving of the support of all students and employees of this institution. In the past, the All University Fund has successfully achieved its goal, and it is my hope that all of us will support it to the extent that it can again be successful.

"Certainly each and every one of us should recognize the need for service to our fellow men."

AUF board members, assistants, and captains of independent solicitation teams will attend the Kick-off Dinner which precedes the Tuesday evening independent solicitations. The Union is donating the dinner to AUF, Judy Bost, chairman of special events, said.

Peyton Short, regional secretary of World University Service, will speak at the dinner.

Colonel Barney Oldfield To Visit Campus Thursday

Col. Barney Oldfield will be the special guest of Theta Sigma Phi, women's professional journalism honorary, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. in Burnett Hall, Room 206, according to Bev Deepe, president.

A graduate of the University, Col. Oldfield is the Continental Air Defense's Director of Information.

Col. Oldfield will autograph copies of his book "Never a Shot in Anger."

Col. Oldfield is the answer to the question "How Full can a Life Be."

He once fell into the hands of the Soviet secret police merely for asking who Andrei Vyshinsky was and how to spell his name. He was warned not to reach in his hip pocket for a handkerchief in the presence of Stalin because of the nervousness of his guards.

He brought about the reunion of Marlene Dietrich and her mother in the ruins of Berlin. He was the first newspaperman to become a paratrooper. He once took his typewriter 75 miles inside the German lines to write about a navy lieutenant who, with his 24 man platoon, brought in 20,000 German prisoners.

He also forged the names of then President Harry Truman and Gen. George Marshall to get the leftover liquor stools of the Potsdam Big Three Conference to establish the Press Club of Berlin.

He is known for many things in many places. In Trans-Jordan he did a hand stand on the banks of the Dead Sea as the lowest point on earth. In Lincoln, as a film reviewer he saw more movies in a five year period than anyone else in the world.

In Denmark he brought back the famed Isted Lion monument, the Danish equivalent of our Statue of Liberty, and since its return 1,200,000 Danes have pilgrimaged to view it in a country of only 4,000,000.

His book deals with what he considers a rapidly vanishing profession—that of war correspondent. As a public relations officer he sees them in a considerably less heroic and more humorous point of view than they have hitherto seen themselves.

The book is mainly a series of anecdotes about people whom Colonel Oldfield met in the wars. The names of several Nebraskans figure prominently.

AWS Provides Free Week-end For Migration

Women attending migration in Colorado will be given a free week-end, but they must return and be signed in by 11 p.m. Oct. 28, Carol Link, AWS president announced.

Each girl must consult with her housemother before leaving for migration to find out if her parents have signed the special permission sheet. If not, a special letter from her parents is necessary, Miss Link said.

Women taking overnights for activities other than migration will not receive a free week-end, because the purpose of giving a free week-end is to gain support for the University function and to bolster school spirit, she said.

Architecture: Towns Set As Centers For Study

Sidney and Mullen have been selected as study centers for architectural students at the University.

As part of the Nebraska Community Education Project, the program will attempt to stimulate the people's sensibilities toward the materialistic development of their towns.

The class of eight students, directed by Eric Jensen, associate professor, will attempt in classroom work to redevelop architecturally four different areas in Sidney and the main street in Mullen.

The Sidney project will involve a housing area, the highway entering town, a slum area, and the city square.

The eight students participating are: Iraj Dastan, J. C. Graver, John Merrow, Donald Perrenoud, John Rudd, W. D. Schwabauer, and Paul Zucker.

Journalism School To Issue Letters

The School of Journalism has issued the first number of a monthly news letter to journalism majors, entitled "The J-School Beat."

The news letter, which will appear on the 15th of each month during the academic year, contains news about the School, its faculty and students, and news of general interest to students of journalism, according to Dr. William Hall, director of the school.

More Than Playing Behind Band Day

It's true it takes a heap of playing in the University Stadium to make Band Day.

But it also takes a lot of behind-the-scenes work and co-operation between the University and the City of Lincoln to stage the Saturday spectacle.

Prof. Donald Lentz, conductor of the University Band and co-ordinator of Band Day, said a sizeable army of workers is needed to carry out the day-long operation for the 3,686 high school musicians. The assisting groups include: Lincoln Promotion Council, which furnishes the lunch for the band members and supplies certificates of appreciation to each participating high school.

Traffic division of the Lincoln Police Department, headed by Capt. Willis Manchester, which, along with the Boy Scouts and University Corn Cobs, will patrol the route of the Saturday parade, starting at 9:15 a.m.

Gamma Lambda, University Band fraternity, which is in charge of registration.

The University Builders, which will distribute the lunches to the band.

Individuals playing a prominent part in Band Day are: L. F. "Pop" Klein, director of concessions for the athletic department; Dean Killion, Wesley Reist and Dan Grace, assistants in organization and administration of the half-time program; Pat Alvord and Gerayne Swanson, ladies' sponsors of the University Band, who will be in charge of seating.

Dr. David Foltz, chairman of the music department; Sgt. John Furrow of the University Police, in charge of parking; and Walter Renner, University groundskeeper.
