Nebraska Royalty

Newly crowned Ak-Sar-Ben royalty, Ellsworth Moser, king, and Sally Skutt, queen, are greeted at the special football train Saturday by members of Miss Skutt's sorority, Kappa Kappa Gamma. The new king and queen were in Lincoln to attend the football game at which they were introduced. Pic-

Sally Skutt: Identity Of Ak-Sar-Ben Queen Kept Secret Since February

By JAN FARRELL, Staff Writer
Regally composed and relaxed was the campus' latest queen, Sally Skutt, Queen Ak-Sar-Ben the sixty-second.
Friday evening, just a few hours before her crowning, she provided a leveling influence on all the excited people around her. Photographers, dress makers, and reporters were swarming in and out of her dressing room minutes before she had to walk down the long aisle to receive her crown.
To each one she was as gracious as if each was a personal friend and she had all the time in the world to talk to them.
The secret of the identity of the new queen was so well kept that her housemother, Mrs. Clarence Mahn and few, if any, of her told me at seven o'clock Friday evening.

We had been planning on attending the coronation together; so when she called at six and asked why I didn't come over early I naively agreed. I rushed upstairs, asked her if she was ready to go, and then she said, "I think there is something I should tell you."
I reacted in typical female fashion which baffled her for a minute, because as any man will tell you, there's not too much you can say to a teary female. At last she said, "Well, I didn't expect you to act this way. Hurry up. There's a man waiting to drive us to the coliseum and you're late."
When we arrived, Sally decided that the best, and most inconspicuous thing that we could do, would be to circulate and talk to the people that we knew in the lobby. The explanation that we gave for not going to our seats was that my parents were late and we were waiting for them.
Finally, as per schedule, Sally went into the phone booth adjacent to the queen's dressing room while I waited outside until Mrs. John Lauritzen, head of the women's ball committee, nodded to me. I got Sally out of the phone booth and we sneaked into the dressing room. It was covered in white sheeting so that her dress couldn't possibly be soiled by a dirty floor or a dusty chair. The whole effect was peculiar, and Sally said she thought "it looked like the picture of a summer home closed up for the season."
On the wall hung her dress and slip. I had to gasp when I saw them because the slip alone was so beautiful and bouffant that I wouldn't have been ashamed to wear it as a formal. Each of the many layers was edged in lace, and it was boned until it could have stood by itself.

The coronation gown was lovely. I could easily understand why Bob Considine said the ball easily rivaled Grace Kelley's wedding. Even against the wall it was beautiful. It was a heavy peau-de-soi, applied with lace, and covered in jewels.
After being mobbed by photographers, make-up people and a hair dresser, it was time for her to put on her robe of office. She opened her present from the king, a sapphire and diamond ring, and put it on. I pinned on her orchids and she left the room.
At the doors to the throne room, she waited to enter. The little pages giggled and chattered behind her. Sally, still composed, joked with them until the doors were opened. I waved a teary good-bye and rushed out to the audience to see her come down the aisle. She smiled all the way. Not just a stage smile, but a genuine smile. I knew she was having a wonderful time and enjoying every step to the throne.

Migration Cuts NU Nightlife

JAN FARRELL, Society Editor
Congratulations to Sally Skutt, senior in Arts and Sciences, who was crowned Queen Ak-Sar-Ben the sixty-second Friday night in Omaha, and to her Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority sister, Jeanne Elliott, senior in Teachers, who was named one of the eight Ladies-in-Waiting to the Queen of the Kansas City Royal show. It was quite an honor for Jeanne since there were 50 candidates.
Since migration is this weekend, none of the organized houses on campus have planned any functions. The Student Union is sponsoring a dance Saturday for those people who are not planning to attend the game at Boulder called the "Homebodies Hop".
There were four pinnings announced this Monday. Pinnings: Sharon Moore, Sigma Eta Chi junior in Teachers from Lincoln, to Jim JaRue, Beta Sigma Psi senior in Law from Palisade.
Barb Millnitz, Kappa Delta junior in Arts and Sciences from Plainview, to Steve Schultz, Phi Kappa Psi sophomore in Arts and Sciences from Nevada, Ia.
Louise Klima, Delta Gamma in Junior in Business Administration from Milligan, to Ken Barnard, Sigma Chi junior in Engineering from Lincoln.
Mary Alice Anderson, Gamma Phi Beta senior in Teachers from Oakland, to Jerry Trimble, Sigma Alpha Epsilon junior in Teachers from Lincoln.
Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority sisters suspected a thing.
She had known in February, and hadn't told a soul. Of course she had to make many trips home for fittings, pictures, and interviews, but her excuses were so plausible, that no one questioned her.
The first I knew that she was going to be queen was when she

Colorado Bound: AWS Sets Migration Rules For Weekend Trek

Carol Link, President of AWS, today announced migration rules for women students.
Girls attending the event will not be charged with an overnight. However, girls not migrating to Boulder will be required to take out overnights if they wish to be out past regular closing hours on Friday, and Saturday evenings, Miss Link said.
Girls planning to make the trip must have written permission from both their parents and their housemother, and must be back in Lincoln by 11 p.m. Sunday.
Men students going to Colorado will have no restriction. However, Bob Schuyler, chairman of the Student Council's Committee on Migration, urges all University students to conduct themselves in a manner that will do credit to themselves and the University.
Assistant Dean of Student Affairs Frank Halgren said Monday "Students attending the official migration must first meet the scholastic requirements of their instructors." Beyond that there will be no regulations other than the rules of gentlemanly conduct.
Besides being the sight of the Husker Migration, Colorado University will also be holding homecoming this weekend. Dale Toolsey, president of the Colorado student body announced that the homecoming theme will be "Leave It To Luck." Music for the homecoming dance will be provided by Louis Armstrong, the fabulous "Satchmo."
Tickets for the CU homecoming dance can be obtained by writing Bob Yates, CU homecoming business manager, at University Memorial Center, Colorado University Boulder, Colorado. Tickets will cost three dollars a couple and are in limited supply.

Second Study Course Parts Announced

The second session of the "How to Study" course offered by the Counseling Service will be in three sections.
Section I is held Monday and Wednesday 3 to 4 p.m.; Section II Tuesday and Thursday 11 a.m. to 12 p.m., and Section III 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday.
The courses will last three weeks and methods of planning time, studying assignments, note-taking and preparation for examinations will be included.
Those wishing to enroll may do so by applying at the Counseling Service during the week from Monday to Oct. 29.
For additional information students may contact the Counseling Service.

Special Rally

A special migration rally, featuring Husker coach Pete Elliott and the varsity football team, will be held at 6:45 p.m. in front of Carillion tower, according to Don Beck, yell king.
The University band will lead the rally in a parade through parts of downtown Lincoln, Beck said.

Politics: Students Show Demo Leanings

College students, in response to a national political poll, gave the Democrats a slight edge over the Republicans. Independents showed a strong third place, indicating a stronger independent attitude than is usually found within the general public during election time.
This opinion was gathered from the question, "Do you consider yourself a Republican, a Democrat, or an independent. Thirty-three percent answered Republican, forty percent answered Democrat, and twenty-three percent answered Independent. Four percent answered otherwise.
Comments from the students who considered themselves Republicans give strong indications that President Eisenhower is the main reason for their choice. A few students stated that the Republican party had the best men to offer the nation than any other party.
A few students mentioned party principles and platform as the reasons for their choice. A Yakima Valley Junior College sophomore thinks "... this present Republican party has good principles and sticks mostly to them."
Students choosing the Democratic party have more consistent reasons for their choice, the vast majority of them feel the Democratic party is best because it is for the "common man."
The students who called themselves Independents mostly stuck to the saying, "I believe in voting for the man, not the party."
The students who did not choose any of the three major party divisions said that they were either not interested in politics or that they never followed politics enough to give a choice or make a statement.
