Huskers After Fourth Win Against Jayhawks

By GEORGE MOYER Staff Sports Writer

Nebraska again heads into a vital Big Seven game this week. The Huskers take on Kansas University at Lawrence in what should prove to be another of the Big Seven's traditional "donybrooks".

for the tying touchdown against College of the Pacific, on a last minute desperation play. He has tremendous speed from a standing start which gets him through the holes quickly. Once in the secondary, Floyd's deceptive change of pace makes him a dangerous breakaway threat.

Prelock, a 230-lb. sophomore, is one of the reasons why the Kansas season record is bobbing at the .500 mark. The huge 22 year old is a bear on defense.

He has the beef to stop line plays run directly at him while retaining the agility to get out on the end and make tackles on wide plays. If Prelock continues to improve as he has this year, he should be a terror by his senior year.

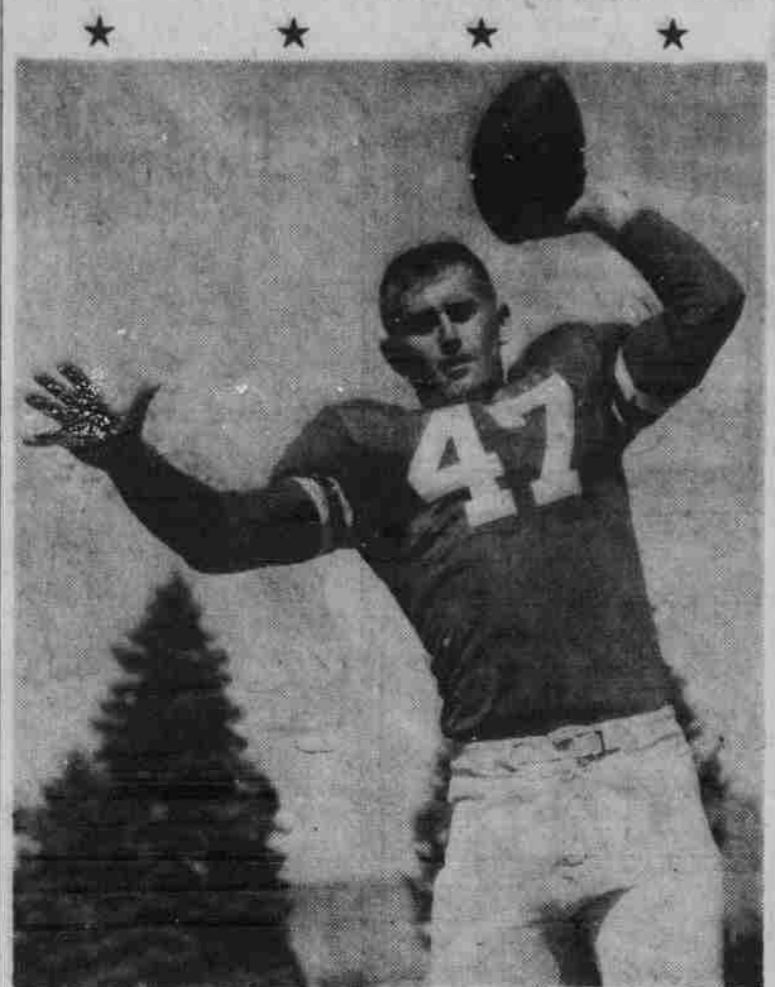

Letcavits was one of the Jayhawks fine crop of sophomores last year. He was the sixth ranking end in the conference and is considered much improved this year. Letcavits is agile on defense and offense and any post-season all-conference teams will have to take him into consideration.

With outstanding personnel on both sides, Saturday's contest looks like a real thriller. Neither team is out of contention for the Big Seven plum, the Orange Bowl, although Nebraska would have to beat Oklahoma to get the trip. A margin goes to Kansas in this one however. Homecoming is on the Jayhawk campus this week.

The poll of the Nebraskan sports staff finds the Huskerland prognosticators evenly split over the outcome of this "traditional."

Last week the startling Huskers upset highly regarded Missouri in one of the nation's most stunning reversals. Nebraska used the return to form of ailing Willie Greenlaw, All-Big Seven halfback last year, to edge the boys from the "show me" state.

Nebraska is in excellent physical condition and their homecoming victory last week lifted squad spirit that had been high all year.

Coch Pete Elliot has made two changes in starting lineup on the basis of showings made last week. Junior George Harshman will start at quarterback and Greenlaw will go at right halfback.

It was Harshman's forty yard fieldgoal that gave Nebraska their margin of victory last Saturday. The addition of Harshman to the lineup gives Nebraska a steady extra point man in the contest at all times. Up to now, the chore has been handled by sophomore Larry Naviaux, who has been somewhat erratic.

Standouts so far this season for the Jayhawks have been fullback Homer Floyd, tackle Ed Prelock and end Jim Letcavits. Floyd is the leading ground gainer for the Jayhawks with 450 yards.

Big 7 Statistics: Buffs' Tigers Rated Even

Offensively, Missouri and Colorado will be on about even terms in their important football game Saturday at Columbia, Big Seven Conference statistics disclose after last week's action.

Colorado could cinch the Orange Bowl trip by winning. Missouri could win the Miami trip by sloping the Buffaloes and Kansas, even if the Tigers bow to Oklahoma.

In total offense the Tigers are averaging 349.5 yards in seven games, while Colorado over the same distance has a mean of 305.5. M. U.'s figure edge is in passing, having outgained Colorado 666 to 329 in the air. On the ground Colorado is ahead, 1,810 to 1,781 yards.

John Bayuk, Colorado fullback, stayed in front as the league's top ground gainer with 85 carries for 502 yards. Missouri's aerial combination leads the pack. Jimmy Hunter has completed 30 of 62 passes for 397 yards. Charlie James has caught 23 passes for 273 yards.

Oklahoma, defending national champion, maintained a steady pace in quenching Colorado's upset bid. The Sooners, leading the nation in rushing and total offense, now have a 348.5 average on the ground and 412.8 average over-all in six games.

Clendon Thomas of O. U. remained second in the rushing category with 64 carries for 495 yards. Teammate Tommy McDonald moved from fourth to third with 74 for 454. Homer Floyd of Kansas, who picked up 136 yards against Kansas State, moved up to fourth with 450 yards on 86 attempts.

Behind Hunter in passing are Wally Strauch of Kansas with 16 completions out of 39 for 291 yards and Jimmy Harris of O. U. with 13 of 17 for 219.

McDonald advanced from fifth to second in pass receiving. The Sooner left halfback has grabbed eight for 167 yards.

Other games this week find Oklahoma at Iowa State, Nebraska at Kansas, and Kansas State at tempting to notch its 37th consecutive victory. O. U. has only Iowa State, Nebraska, Missouri, and Oklahoma A&M standing between it and the second straight undefeated season.

Frosh After Second: K-State Next On NU Freshman Grid Program

By STAN WIDMAN Staff Sports Reporter

The Nebraska Freshman football team will entertain the Kansas State yearlings this Friday at Memorial Stadium. Both teams will be trying for their second win in as many games, and both will probably have to play excellent football in order to do it.

The Wildcats appear to have their best freshman team in a good many years, and this was aptly shown as they pushed Kansas all over the field last week beating them 35-14.

The Huskers also have a wealth of material this year. Their chances are somewhat dimmed however because of injuries suffered by two of the men slated to start this week.

Co-captain Glen Hepburn, right end from Boy's Town, bruised his thigh muscle and is a doubtful starter as is Max Martz, right halfback from Beatrice who injured his knee in practice.

Both boys played excellent games in the win over Iowa State last week, Hepburn recovering the blocked kick which set up the first touchdown and Martz reeling off several fine runs as well as converting the second point after touchdown.

Replacing Hepburn at end will probably be Roger Brede from Ainsworth. He has shown much improvement in practice and rates slightly over Hale Kreycik and Gary Welton. The other end will be Chris Mangialardi, an all-city end from Chicago.

The starting tackles are Duane Mongerson of Omaha and Don Olson of Grand Island, both hard hitters. They are expected to hold up the middle of the line.

The guards will be John Ponsiego of Chicago and Pat Fitzgerald of Boy's Town. Fitzgerald blocked the kick that set up the first touchdown last week and looks like a tremendous prospect for next year.

The center will be Mike Cochran of Omaha who originally was a starting guard.

Harry Tolly of North Platte will start at quarterback. He was the engineer of the 80 yard drive for the second husker touchdown.

Bob Brandt of Denison, Iowa, whose running was one of the features of last week game gets the starting nod at left halfback. Ben Cacioppo of Omaha who scored the first two touchdowns and ran hard all afternoon will start at right halfback. Jim Hergenreter from Sterling, Colorado, who hits very hard for a 180 pounder runs out the backfield at Fullback.
