Parents Day Visitors

Dr. and Mrs. Glenn Johnston, their son Bob and his date, Judy Otradovsky, are shown on their way to Saturday's football game with Baylor. Dr. Johnston (Nebraska '27) and his wife, like many other parents of students, are planning to participate in the University's annual "Parents Day."

The cars, both props, merely symbolize the mechanical progress which has taken place over the years. The Innocents Society is sponsoring Parents Day which will be held this Saturday. Arley Waldo is chairman of the event. A special block of seats has been reserved so that parents attending may sit together. On Saturday, fraternities, sororities, dormitories and student houses will hold open house. Members of the Board of Regents are being invited as special guests. Parents desiring to attend Saturday's game should contact Waldo before Friday so that arrangements can be made.

Charity Drive:

AUF Contributions Deemed 'Excellent'

All University Fund contributions now total $7,915, according to Jeanne Elliott, AUF president. "The response to the 1956 drive has been excellent; contributions have surpassed last year's and are still coming in," Miss Elliott said.

Sorority donations total $2,200 at this time, Mary Huston, board member in charge of sorority solicitations announced. Fraternity solicitations are not yet complete. Bob Schuyler, board member in charge of fraternity solicitations, reported that pledges now total $2,100 of which $1,500 has been collected.

A total of date of $660 has been reported by Judy Lundt, board member in charge of independent solicitations, and Harvey McMullen announced that $400 has been collected from the Men's Dorms. Gail Walling, board member in groups, has collected $97 with more expected to come.

Sally Carter, board chairman of the independent houses, has collected $320 to date.

Approximately $466 has been solicited to date from faculty members by Marian Eider, AUF board member.

Ag houses, reports Ed Stoller board member, have contributed $420.

Chairman of organizations solicitations, Holly Hawke, announced that her collections total $240. Miss Hawke said that this was incomplete, however.

The University was the leading contributor to the World University Service last year, Peyton Short, regional secretary of WUS announced. Twenty-five per cent of AUF funds from the 1956 drive will go to WUS.

Short, in a letter to Rex Knowles, AUF advisor, said that AUF is one of the finest campus charity organizations in the nation.

Colbert Reports:

IFC Resolution Under Consideration By Senate

The Faculty Senate Committee on Student Affairs will meet in special session Monday at 3 p.m. to consider the recent IFC resolution which was sent to Chancellor Hardin.

The exact contents of the resolution which was sent to Chancellor Hardin as a closed letter from the IFC have not yet been released.

"Unless the IFC or the Chancellor choose to release the contents of the resolution prior to its consideration by the Senate Committee on Student Affairs, the resolution can not be made public until the committee has met and has decided upon the proper procedure for considering the resolution and eventually filing a report with the chancellor as directed by him," J. P. Colbert, Dean of Student Affairs and Chairman of the Committee on Student Affairs, said.

Furthermore, if the committee should not finish its preliminary deliberations Monday and should not be ready to release the resolution at that time; the resolution will be made public at an early date, Colbert said.

The purpose of Monday's meeting is for the committee to set up its own procedures for considering the resolution.

After the committee has studied the resolution, it will make its final recommendations to the Chancellor, Colbert said.

Although the resolution was received directly by the Chancellor, he referred it directly to the Committee on Student Affairs which has direct jurisdiction over such matters.

NU Budget: Committee Approves Special Levy

Recommended continuation of a special levy for state institutions and the military department has "boosted hopes" for meeting University needs during the next few years, NU administrative assistant James Pittenger said Tuesday.

After an 18-month study, a legislative council committee has recommended extension of the levy another 10 years. The tax, which levies $1.10 for each $1,000 worth of property, is due to expire next year.

The University would receive $13,120,000 from the appropriation, $530,000 of the amount requested by NU officials.

"We feel the committee recommendation is a realistic method of planning for anticipated enrollment in the coming years," Pittenger said in an interview.

He pointed out University enrollment has increased 500 students yearly for the past three years and that last year Lincoln kindergarten enrollment exceeded that of the High School grades combined.

Continuation of the levy would enable the University to be prepared to meet our expansion needs over an extended period of time, rather than asking for one large appropriation at a later date, Pittenger said.

"Immediate" University building needs, as outlined in the University request to the Legislative committee, included power plant additions at both the Ag and city campuses, improvements to the physics, music and womens physical education buildings, Ag college library, Ag college greenhouses and Curtis campus shop laboratory.

Total "immediate" building needs were $6,450,000.

The legislative committee recommended the levy be continued but that it also be cut to three-fourths of a mill, or 75 cents per $1,000 instead of $1.10.

At the same time they asked that the University percentage of the levy be increased from 40 to 45 per cent. Funds for the University would be approximately the same amount they received the past 10 years. The recommendation now goes to the Legislature.

'Fair, Milder' Predicted For Lincoln

Fair and milder weather is expected to return to Lincoln and vicinity today, after the brief snow flurries a nd wind Thursday. The high temperature Thursday was 27 and the low 24.

The predicted low for today is 18 and the high 33. There will be a brief interlude from old man winter this weekend.

Fair and not so cold weather is expected for Saturday and Sunday with no sign of snow, the Weather Bureau stated.

Grid Frolic Dance Set Saturday

A Football Frolic Dance will be held Saturday night to honor the team. Dee Andros, head line coach for the Cornhuskers, will be featured speaker. Bob Berguin, Jack Fleming, and Jim Murphy will also talk.

The entire coaching staff and their families, and the football team have been invited. Tickets are now on sale in the Union for $3.50 per person.

NU Symphony To Present Free Concert

The University Symphony Orchestra and its guest artist, Louis Sudler, a baritone from Chicago, will appear in concert Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Union ballroom.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

Conductor will be Jack Snider, assistant professor of brass instruments and theory.

The program includes: by the orchestra, Symphony No. 49 in G Minor by Mozart and Overture to Rienzi by Wagner; by the orchestra and Mr. Sudler, "O Du Mein Holder Abendstern from Tannhauser," by Wagner, "Zueignung" by Strauss, "Pilgrim Song" by Tschalkowsky, "Lullaby" by Bolognini, and "Avant de Quitter ces Lieux" from the opera Faust, by Gounod.

Friday's Rally To Present Special Show

A special contest will be held at the final pep rally of the season Friday night. The rally will begin at 6:45 in front of Sellen Quadrangle and proceed to the Student Union where the judging will be held.

All women's organized houses are asked to submit one candidate to compete for the title: "The Girl Most Likely To Stop a Baylor Bear." The girls will be judged on originality of costume (which may be a bathing suit or a costume such as a bear cub), beauty and personality. Winners will be decided by judges and audience applause. Special "surprise" prizes will be awarded for first and second places.

Classical Capers:

Kosmet Klub Groups Selected For Fall Review

Delta Upsilon, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Kappa Psi, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Theta Xi and Zeta Beta Tau were named as participants in the 1956 Fall Review "Classical Capers," after tryouts Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

The six houses will present their skits in the Review Dec. 14 in the Coliseum. First, second and third places will be awarded.

A brief rundown of the skits follows:

"All Our Hides," Delta Upsilon, skitmaster Marv McNiece. Four "Mr. Hydes" cavort about an old-time apothecary shop, and end up catching a criminal.

"Ulysses," Phi Gamma Delta, skitmaster Jack Phinney. Ulysses is followed on his travels across the globe, stopping off in various places to watch the native customs.

"Faust," Phi Kappa Psi, skitmaster Steve Schultz. Four devils offer Faust anything he wants, in exchange for his soul. His wish is to visit a college campus in 1957, where he is very much surprised.

"New (NU) Oklahoma," Sigma Phi Epsilon, skitmaster Jack Lind-

Mitchell: Judiciary Committee To Discuss

The faculty judiciary committee met Thursday and discussed C. Clyde Mitchell's appeal as their only order of business, according to David Dow, professor of law, committee chairman.

Dow stated that the committee has been meeting for the past three weeks reviewing the Mitchell case. No decisions have been reached to date.

Mitchell has been carrying on correspondence with the committee, Dow said. "He indicated in his letters," commented Dow, "that he possessed substantial evidence to prove his case."

The committee is waiting for further word from Mitchell, who is presently connected with the United Nations in Mexico, before they proceed with the case.

Mitchell has not definitely stated whether he would appear in person before the committee, according to Dow.

"We are proceeding as quickly as we can," Dow stated. "This is the only matter before us at present," he concluded.

say. Nebraska and Pete Elliott beat the Oklahoma Sooners in football then offer to join up with them.

"USS Misery," Theta Xi, skitmaster Wendell Friest. A college musician is assigned aboard a ship, and saves them from an Admiral's ire by starting the first Navy band. "My Fair Lady," Zeta Beta Tau, skitmaster Jerry Hoberman. A class of English A students is coached in a difficult test by a group of English B students.

"We have six excellent skits for this year's show," Jim Boling, director of the show and senior Kosmet Klub member said. Competition to get in the show was stiffer this year than last year, and we had a better group of skits trying out to choose from, Boling added.

This year's show will be a combination of serious, musical and comedy in the skits, he said.

Judges for the tryouts were Bill Bedwell, president of Kosmet Klub, Bob Schlater, Klub advisor, Sam VanPelt, Marshall Nelson, John Nelson, Jim Boling, Morgan Holmes, Miss Mary Mulvaney, H. P. Davis and Courtney Campbell, director of last spring's Coed Follies.

A total of eleven houses took part in the tryouts. Just previous to tryouts Tuesday, a faculty committee announced that Delta Tau Delta and Sellen Quadrangle were disqualified.

Sigma Phi Epsilon was the winner in last year's show. Delta Upsilon and Phi Delta Theta were second and third, respectively, last fall.

Military Ball:

Final Arrangements Almost Completed

Final arrangements for the forty-fourth Military Ball, traditional opener of the campus social season Nov. 30 are being completed under the direction of Lt. Cmdr. D. B. Edge, chairman of the Ball.

Decorations for the Coliseum are expected to be finished by Thanksgiving vacation with the exception of last minute preparations, according to Paul Streich, chairman.

Individual ticket sales are progressing well, but in combination tickets are slow, according to the Ball committee. The combination ticket which consists of a dinner for two at the Cornhusker Hotel, a corsage and transportation from the hotel to the Ball and back is being offered for $8.50.

This combination does not include the dance tickets which may be purchased separately for $3.00 per couple. Spectator tickets priced at $1.00 per person may be purchased until Nov. 29.

All tables which were offered for reservations in the coliseum have been filled; however, ample seating space will be provided for those who were not able to reserve a table for that evening.

The elections in the ROTC classes to choose Miss Army, Navy, and Air Force will be completed Friday and the results will be announced in Tuesday's paper. The three will then become candidates in an all-campus election for the position of Honorary Commandant.

All male students who hold tickets to the Ball will be eligible to vote for the Honorary Commandant in the Union Nov. 28 from 11:00 A. M. to 6:00 P. M.

The Military Ball Committee has received word of the success of Richard Maltby and his orchestra last year at the University of Colorado and Iowa State College. One comment made by the officials contacted at Colorado said, "Their arrangements were unusual and interesting, and their group was personable and most accommodating."

Thanksgiving: AWS Sets Regulations For Vacation

AWS Thanksgiving vacation rules were announced today by Carol Link, president.

All organized houses and residence halls will be closed by Thursday at 5 p.m. Students who wish to leave before Tuesday must obtain a special slip from the housemother. This slip will not be an excuse from classes and it is the responsibility of the students to arrange such matters with instructors.

Students who plan to return later than the regular closing hours on Sunday must obtain special permission from the housemother. Those who go home must return Monday morning in time for classes.

All houses will open by 3 p.m. Sunday unless other arrangements are made in individual houses.

Football: Nebraska Seeks Win Over Baylor

Saturday afternoon the Baylor Bears will invade Nebraska Memorial Stadium in an attempt to stop the win-happy Cornhuskers. The last time Baylor played Nebraska was in 1939 when the Huskers handed them a beating of 20-0.

Baylor has two All-American candidates; Bill Glass, guard, and Del Shofner, left halfback. Both of these boys have sparked the Baylor squad all through their season; and they should turn in an outstanding performance in tomorrow's game. Another Baylor threat in tomorrow's game will be Doyle Traylor, quarterback, who has been injured during most of his football career. Traylor is fully recovered and will be ready to go against the Huskers.

In the last two games the Huskers have played, Nappi and Greenlaw have worked those puzzling option plays which will definitely be a threat to the Baylor defense. Nebraska's line will be comprised of Stu Howerter and Marlin Hilding at the ends, Jack Fleming and Don Kampe at the tackles, Jim Murphy and Laverne Torczon at the guards and Bob Berguin at center.

Players Praised In Special Performance Of 'Idea' Play

The Nebraskan was privileged to witness a production rehearsal of "The Garden of Asclepius" in order that its readers might have an idea of what to expect at the world premier of the drama this evening.

By DICK SHUGRUE
Copy Editor

Tonight the University Theater will premier "The Garden of Asclepius."

Dr. Oscar Mandel, the author of the drama, has developed what has come to be called an "idea" play, rather than a fast moving, exciting piece of entertainment.

Most certainly, "The Garden" has a number of "exciting" elements in it. But the most exciting part of the play is the challenge it presented to the University Players.

The play had some rough spots in it. The first act, which seemed to move in steps rather than in a definite inclining pattern may have given the viewer some wrong impressions about "The Garden."

I have called the play an idea play. This needs clarification. Mandel has adapted very modern ideas to a Greek surrounding; he has demanded from the performers not only an understanding of the ancients but an insight to our own world and its problems.

And the twin weren't meant to meet easily.

The story runs like this. Theseus, the king of Athens, has gone to war leaving behind his son and second wife. The stepmother falls in love with the son, tries to seduce him, and upon hearing that Theseus will return, kills herself.

Enraged when he reads that Hippolytus, the son, raped (he didn't) and caused his mother in law's suicide, Theseus kills his own son.

Now the action centers to a great extent around Asclepius, a philosophical physician played admirably by Steve Schultz. Asclepius is asked to return Hippolytus to life, which he does.

Here lies the idea element of the play. Can a man who knows his own potential find satisfaction if he reaches it? For Asclepius this would mean being able to bring the youth to life. For Hippolytus it would mean avenging his own death. For Theseus it would mean seeking and finding the forgiveness of his son for his false accusations.

Mandel's answer to these questions appears to be, "no." He states a theme well, "Go gently." The pattern of life is smooth without man's interfering ambition.

The main roles were handled well. Schultz was not as wise nor as cool headed as would be expected of a 70-year-old philosopher-physician. But he handles the decisions he must face with decorum . . . he learns to go gently too late.

Joe Hill, who plays the king, has made a fine transition from his "type" casting in other University Theater shows. Hill has certainly learned to be wrathful. But he shows the deep and tragic feelings of a man who has made the "fatal mistake."

Jan Farrell, the queen, is a victim. She meant to be. And she pro-voiced young Hippolytus well. He, on the other hand, played by Bill Wagner, tends to be mechanical and to move by steps as I indicated was one of the major faults of the play.

Perhaps when an audience has been added to the show, the kinks can be more easily smoothed out. But the Mandel-Whittaker team present an interesting evening's pastime for those who seek more from a play than just entertainment.

'Asclepius' Premier At NU

Steven Schultz (left) in the role of Asclepius surveys Jan Farrell while Joe Hill (right) looks on. "The Garden of Asclepius," an original play by Oscar Mandel of the University English department, will have its first performance at 8 p.m. Friday and run through Saturday night at Howell Memorial Theater. The play is based on a Greek legend. Other leading roles will be taken by Bill Wagner and Charles Alcorn. The play involves the love of a step mother for her husband's son, according to Mandel. Supporting roles will be taken by Bill Baker, John Lamphere, Delmas Lamberston, Noel Schenrock, Rod Holmes, Milton Grimes, Diana Peters, and Skip Westerford. Max Whittaker, assistant professor of speech and dramatic art, is the director of the play. Bernard Skalka is production manager and Diana Peters is his assistant.
