Star Of The Week:

Smidt, Kubacki lauded For Action At UCLA

By BOB WIRZ Staff Sports Writer Jim Kubacki and Don Smidt have been chosen by the Nebraskan as the first winter "Stars of the Week" for their fine play in the two contests against UCLA last week end.

prove his shooting and ball handling ability. Last year as a sophomore Jim teamed with Gary Reimers at the guard posts as he is this year and they did a very commendable job.

He scored 10 the first night and did a very good job of rebounding on both occasions. Smidt who hails from Helena, Montana, is deadly with his set shooting from the outside and can maneuver very well under the basket.

Kubacki scored 13 points and did an excellent job of ball handling while Smidt added 7 points and was one of the top rebounders in the contest.

Smidt came to Nebraska with very high recommendations and has proved to be every bit as good as expected. Although now residing in Montana, Smidt was already familiar with Nebraska as he was born in Hastings and lived there for the early years of his life.

These two Huskers will be in action next on Saturday night when Nebraska entertains Michigan at the Coliseum. Bush may call on his starting five for near iron man roles in this contest as the Wolverines will possibly be the best team Nebraska has met so far this season.

The Star of the Week award will be presented to some outstanding Husker athlete each week this winter.

The two juniors led the scoring parade for Nebraska in those games. Little "Kuba" netted 16 points Friday night as Jerry Bush's crew dropped a 69-56 decision. He was, as usual, hitting on his two-handed over the head shot from 25-30 feet out. Kubacki also played an outstanding floor game

Kubacki and Smidt

Kubacki, who also was outstanding in high school, is in teachers college at the university and will probably coach after graduation.

Kubacki doubles in the spring as a baseball infielder on Tony Sharpe's Cornhusker nine. He is very good defensively and has a good batting eye. He can play second or short equally well and at times last season even saw action in the outfield.

A fine student, he is liked well by everyone.

Kubacki is one of four basketball squadmen from Ohio. George Swank, Jim Arwood, and Ron Parsons also hail from Ohio.

Smidt, who like Kubacki was a starter last season, led the Huskers in the second game at Los Angeles as he scored 22 points.

From The Sports Editor:

As I See It

Pleasant Victory

By WALT BLORE Sports Editor

The Cornhusker cage squad started the home season off with a bang when they trounced the defending Big Ten champs, Iowa.

It was the Hawkeyes first game and they suffered from a bad case of jitters throughout the whole game. Jerry Bush's crew looked like battle tested veterans in spite of the fact that Monday's contest was the third in four days, and the Huskers had traveled over 2,000 miles in that time.

Bucky O'Connor lost the first seven squad members of his NCAA runner-up team, but that should take little of the luster away from the first victory of the season.

Bush has assembled a well-balanced team, most of whom are underclassmen. The first two teams have only three seniors which means that if all the members of the outstanding freshman team return, the Huskers will be a team to be feared in the conference.

Improvement Everywhere

Not only was the all-over team play improved, the spirit of the fans, especially the students was a good sign.

Not long ago, this column blasted the student body as being fair weather followers. The sports editor of the Lincoln Journal also commented on it in a State of the Union article concerning Nebraska football fortunes.

If Monday night's spirit was an indication of things to come, then Cornhuskers everywhere will be able to point with pride to the entire school and not just the athletic teams.

While the subject of school spirit is being discussed, it might be worthwhile to mention this report that came from Oklahoma.

A Cornhusker footballer told this corner that the night before the Nebraska game, the Oklahoma pep squad rounded up the entire football team, the band, and the pep organizations for a pep rally that was attended by less than 100 students. Bud Wilkinson must be quite a psychologist!

Full Schedule

The winter sports teams swing into the campaign in the near future for another season of desire. The desire stems from the fact that the athletes have nothing else but the love of the sport attract them to the teams.

In spite of this, the Husker wrestling, swimming, gymnastics and indoor track teams are expected to improve on their last year's performance.

The only team that suffered heavy losses was the swim team. Hollie Lepy reportedly has been tearing out his hair due to losses from ineligibility and the armed forces. If you recall, last year the team was composed of all underclassmen, and all hands were expected back. But this fall found three lettermen not on the University rolls.

However, Lepy is his usual optimistic self and the Husker tank team will undoubtedly give a good account of itself.

Don Strashem welcomes back four lettermen and several promising sophomores to the mat squad. The team had to pass up an early dual before Christmas because of conflicting plans. The first match is Jan. 10 at Mankato State Teachers.

Marsh Nelson, 123 pound grappler has the distinction of having met the best in his class. Dick Delgado, Oklahoma 123 man, pinned Nelson in the first round of last winter's Big Seven Meet. At last report, Delgado had advanced to the quarter-finals of the Olympics. Another Oklahoman, Dan Hodge, is also a member of the Olympic mat squad and has been doing quite well.

Intramurals

The intramural football season closed several weeks ago, but due to the advertisers it was some time before the news of the championship game reached the readers.

The All-Intramural selections will be presented during the week with the All-University team to be featured on Friday. Many of the independent teams failed to turn in their all opponent teams and as a result the selection of independents has to be done by guess.

All it took was about five minutes of time to write down 14 names on a piece of paper and turn the names in to the Nebraskan office.

Due to a lack of playing fields, there were less men participating than before. There was no B league this year. If the situation is to continue, one could consider increasing the size of the teams to nine men. Five linemen and four backs might produce more blockers and more runs. The change would be for the good.

Conference Activity: Big Seven Teams Down Opponents In Monday's Successful Encounters

The Big Seven warmed up for what should be a torrid conference race back of Kansas' titans by snagging 4 of 4 nonconference games Tuesday night.

Nebraska led the parade with a 67-43 decision over Iowa's Hawkeyes, last year's NCAA runners-up. It will be a long time before Coach Bucky Conners charges repeat their high national standing if their NU performance is any indication. Iowa's sophomore line-up was completely lost on the same court with the smooth Cornhuskers.

Elsewhere, Iowa State took their second straight decision, 92-73 over Houston, to save the blistered Iowa State athletic situation somewhat. Little Gary Thompson, 5'10" of court dynamite, pumped in 35 points for Iowa State.

At the other end of the height scale, Wilt "The Stilt" Chamberlin lead Kansas past Northwestern with a rollicking 52 points. Wilt, billed as the answer to Bill Russell, lived up to all advance ratings.

Kansas State, last year's conference champs, got into the swing of things with a close 90-84 victory over Texas Tech. Jack Parr, last year the best sophomore in the Big Seven, and Bob Booser, former Omaha Tech star, sparked the Wildcats. Each had 27 points. Colorado, figured to fight it out with Nebraska and Oklahoma for the basement this year, surprised strong Oregon State at Colorado 67-58. The Buffs unveiled a lot of hustle and a good center, Jim Jochems.

The overall strength of the Big Seven points to the contention of some sportswriters that it is the strongest basketball conference in the nation this year. With titans like Kansas State, and Iowa State around and traditionally strong teams like Missouri and Colorado in the running, Nebraska could find itself out in the cold despite the most balanced team in three years.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

He puts communications on the go

Martin Jepson, E.E., Purdue, '53, is an Engineer in the Radio and Special Services Section of Illinois Bell Telephone Company.

"I help design mobile radiotelephone systems," says Martin. "We have a wide variety of customers, including trucking firms, railroads and marine traffic of all kinds. Many businessmen, too, want these systems for their private cars. Each customer has his own communications problems, and these are a constant and stimulating engineering challenge."

"Another part of my job is to help set up facilities for conventions, sports events and the like. Last summer's Democratic National Convention, for instance, used enough circuits and facilities to serve a small city. There were special circuits for broadcasting, teletypewriters, the press, and for inside communications. It was our job to set those facilities up and keep them operating."

"The increase in demand for telephone and related services is phenomenal. It's this growth that's creating real career opportunities in the telephone business. Add to this the fact that it's a stable business, and you've really got something!"

Martin Jepson is one of many young men who are finding interesting careers in Bell Telephone Companies, and also in Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric and Sandia Corporation. See your placement officer for more information about Bell System Companies.
