Tax Enrollment: 'And His Name Shall Be Called Wonderful'

By DR. LUKE
 "In those days a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be enrolled. . . . And all went to be enrolled, each to his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee, from the city of Nazareth, to Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and lineage of David, to be enrolled with Mary, his betrothed, who was with child. And while they were there, the time came for her to be delivered. And she gave birth to her first-born son and wrapped him in swaddling cloths, and laid him in a manger, because there was no place for them in the inn. "And there were in the same country, shepherds abiding in the fields, keeping watch over their flock by night. And an angel of the Lord appeared to them, and the glory of the Lord shone around about them, and they were filled with fear. And the angel said to them, 'Be not afraid; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy which will come to all people; for to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord. And this will be a sign for you: you will find a babe wrapped in swaddling cloths and lying in a manger.' And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men with whom he is pleased!"

Hungarians: Project Reaches $1,000

A total of $1,006.75 in cash donations has been pledged to bring ten Hungarian student refugees to study at the University. The project, in its 16th day, is seeking room and board, tuition, books, maintenance funds and clothing in an attempt to bring the students to the campus. In addition, the following pledges of merchandise and services have been received by the Hungarian Student Project Committee: 72 haircuts, laundry service for eight students for the duration of their stay on campus, and $125 worth of merchandise. Rooms and board for one student for three semesters will be provided by the Inter-Coop Council and room for one year for one student will be provided by the City YMCA. Complete wardrobes have been donated for five students by Miller and Paine, Magee's, Gold's, Quentins and Ben Simons. All the textbooks which ten students will need during their stay will be loaned to them by Nebraska Bookstore. Chancellor Hardin has been asked to request the Board of Regents to set up scholarships or waive tuition for the students. World University Service has notified the committee that transportation will be paid by the national agencies from the port of entry to Nebraska. Campus organizations making contributions during the past two days include: Corn Cobs, $100; Ag Dairy Club, $25; Ag Exec Board, $50 and Canterbury Club, $25.

Election: Andrews Fills IFC Vacancy

Dick Andrews, junior in Arts and Sciences, was elected vice-president of the Interfraternity Council, Wednesday in IFC meeting, filling an executive position vacated three weeks ago. Andrews who is treasurer of Student Council, a member of the University debate team, a member of publications board, and vice-president of Alpha Tau Omega will serve until spring elections. In other IFC business, Tom Gilliland gave a report concerning the possibility of setting up a liaison committee between the Interfraternity Council and Student Health. According to Gilliland the purpose of the committee, which would be composed of a representative from each fraternity, would be to facilitate operations between houses and the Student Health Center. Dr. Samuel Frenzel, medical director of student health, has pledged his full support to the plan, Gilliland said.

Committee Appointed: Student Council Plans Book Exchange For Spring Semester

The Student Council authorized the establishment of a student book exchange Wednesday. A committee was appointed to study a system in which students would be able to sell their books directly to other students saving both parties money, according to Bruce Brugmann, Council President. The book pool would provide a means for students in a larger group than present organizations to buy and exchange books without going through a middle man, said Marvin Breslow, council member. The council first learned of the idea from members who attended the Big-Seven Student Governors Conference in Kansas City last year. Student book pools, which have been in effect in schools throughout the country for many years, have proved to be very successful. The large monetary saving for books is the main reason for the pool's popularity among students although it has other advantages. The book pool at Nebraska would be modeled after the one now in operation at Missouri University. The Missouri book exchange has been very successful, handling approximately 1200 books last year. Helen Gourley has been appointed chairman of the book pool committee. Members are Bob Schuyler, Harry Dingman, Dick Andrews, Mary Dee DeMars, and John Kinimer. The committee will draft the provision over the vacation, and the final draft will be presented to an emergency session of the Student Council Monday noon, Jan. 7, according to Brugmann. "We will be working on a book pool or book exchange, if possible to have in operation second semester," said Miss Gourley. If the details for setting up a student book exchange can be worked out in time, the exchange would probably take place the first two days of second semester. The procedure for obtaining books would be as follows: The Council would rent office and storage space. A student wishing to sell his books would bring them to the office and place a price on them. There he would fill out a triplicate form giving the book's price and personal information. One copy would be filed, one would be placed in the book, and the other would serve as a receipt. The book would then be filed according to course and number. A student wishing to buy a book

Vic Endorses Salary Hike

Hardin Answers Welch

Governor Victor Anderson said Thursday he plans to recommend the entire $2,464,292 University salary increase when he goes before the state legislature in mid-January. In an interview Thursday, the governor said he had "not yet completed" his study on the other aspects of the budget, which calls for an additional $5,500,000 to meet needs of the University. On a possible tuition hike, which was urged in a letter to the Governor by retiring Hastings College president Dr. Dale Welch, the governor said he felt the Board of Regents should certainly consider a possible hike, providing it wasn't too hard on the students. The governor said, "If we can't give the University what they need, the Regents should contact the students and give them an opportunity to be heard on how they feel a tuition hike would affect enrollment." In a prepared statement issued Thursday evening, Chancellor Clifford Hardin said concerning Dr. Welch's proposal to double tuition, an increase as a degree sufficient to materially affect the institution's operating income would "push the opportunity to attend college beyond the grasp of some Nebraska students." "I know of no formula which can be used to determine precisely how many would be affected," the Chancellor said, "but I am sure that many of our students are operating at a ceiling now. In his letter to the governor, Dr. Welch said, "There isn't the slightest reason" why the tuition rate of NU should not at least equal that of independent state schools. "Such a statement," said Chancellor Hardin, "disregards completely the whole history of the growth of higher education in America. "Furthermore, such a statement seems to assume that the functions and purposes of our many fine independent colleges are exactly the same as those of a land grant state university, such as Nebraska, which, in addition to what customary colleges teach, must also be concerned with such diverse endeavors as agricultural research and broad research in other areas, with extension services, with professional training in medicine, engineering, architecture, pharmacy, dentistry, law, business administration, and with an extensive graduate program. The Chancellor said public universities had their beginning "in an unique American idea that every possible means should be provided to extend the benefits of higher education to large numbers of people and to expand the scope of higher education beyond the limits originally accepted by the independent liberal arts colleges." Although he said he could not speak for the Board of Regents, which has the responsibility to fix tuition rates, the Chancellor offered four of his "own" ideas on the subject: 1. "As a matter of general policy in keeping with the philosophy of public higher education in American, we must be determined to keep the opportunity for a university education within the financial reach of everyday people, regardless of race, religion, or social class." Total value of the property was about $40, Seward county attorney Russell Soucek said. The University students are James Peterson, Robert Hunzler, James Moravec, and Larry Lester. ## Tuition Raise Too Much: F. B. Decker

State Education Commissioner Freeman Decker said Tuesday that doubled tuition would be too much to ask of University students. He made the statement after being told of the suggestion by Dr. Dale Welch, Hastings College President that tuition be doubled. Decker stated "We don't want to price these schools out of the reach of the average student." He continued, "a substantial increase in tuition rates would keep a lot of deserving students from going to college at all."
