

Vic Meets With Student Council:

Governor 'Doubts' Full NU Budget Adoption

In a meeting with representatives of the Student Council Tuesday morning, Governor Victor Anderson stated that he doubted if "the full University budget would be adopted" and added that he "would have a problem to get even what I recommend."

Anderson's comments came after a resolution was presented to him by Student Council president Bruce Brugmann which urged "the Governor of Nebraska to recommend to the Legislature the adoption of the full budget" requested by Chancellor Clifford Hardin.

However, Governor Anderson went on to say that he would recommend $2,400,000 budget increase for faculty salary raises.

Commenting on the faculty salary problem the Governor stated that both he and the budget committee of the legislature have agreed that the $2,400,000 of the requested increase be used specifically for salary adjustments.

"I will not recommend to the Board of Regents an increase in tuition," Anderson said.

The Governor added that "if they do increase tuition $60 per semester that will mean an additional $2,300,000 for a two-year period."

Anderson said he thought the problem of an increase in tuition "should be put up to the students." If an increase in tuition was adopted by the Board of Regents the Governor stated he would advocate a student loan plan.

The plan, according to the Governor, would allow a student to borrow money on the basis of a 4% interest with five years to pay it back.

In cases of hardship the loan could be extended on a yearly basis, Anderson explained.

The Governor emphasized that although the national income has risen over the past two years Nebraska's agricultural income has suffered.

"In 1949 the University had an enrollment of over 10,000 students and was given eight million dollars for general operations," Anderson stated.

Citing the fact that the enrollment has dropped to around 8500 students in 1956 and the budget request is approximately $23,500,000, Anderson said, he questioned "whether the cost of living has gone up 300%."

"It is difficult for we who are in public office to see where this tremendous increase is," the Governor added.

Anderson stated that he and the legislators must weigh both the University's request and the position of the Nebraska tax payer. "Groups of farmers have come to me and stated that they have not received an income from crops for two years," Anderson said.

"These are the people I must give consideration to because of the difficulties they have encountered," the Governor added.

Members of the Student Council who attended the meeting with the Governor were Mary Huston, Bev Deep, Sally Laase, Mick Neff, Dave Keene, Mary Breslow, and Bruce Brugmann.

Questions On Tuition Proposed For Students

In an attempt to determine the effort of a $60 increase in tuition, a student questionnaire may be prepared before second semester classes begin, announced Chancellor Clifford Hardin in a faculty senate meeting Tuesday.

The simple questionnaire would be filled out during registration and would include the following information. What effect the $60 increase would have on student enrollment at the university?

What the present financial conditions among the students are was pointed out that out of state students constitute but seven percent of the total enrollment of the university and no significant amount of money could be raised by this means.

The University Regents may appoint a committee to study the question of increased tuition, and whether it can raise enough funds to be practical.

Chancellor Hardin announced that the raising of salaries would be fourth in line for any increase of university funds which may be available the next fiscal year.

Legally the first in line for an increase would be the old age and retirement fund. Second would be the employee's contribution to social security. Third would be the heating and operating of new buildings.

Beyond these necessary expenditures, the salary raise would come first.

Elections results for membership of the liaison committee, committee on committees, and library committee were not announced.

and what they would be under the increase? This question would include the number of students now required to work part time in order to attend college and the number who would be forced to obtain part time employment to meet the proposed increased tuition.

Other questions would determine the number of students who would have to use the proposed student loan funds in order to continue their college education.

If enrollment continues at the present level, the proposed $60 increase would bring an additional two million dollars increase in funds.

However, Chancellor Hardin explained that if the enrollment drops appreciably as a result of the increase then the desired effect of the increase would be nullified.

The possibility of raising out of state tuition was discussed but it

Snow Seen For Lincoln Area Today

Fresh to strong northerly winds and possible snow flurries are predicted for the Lincoln area today. The expected high for today is 20.

Tuesday's skies were mostly cloudy with a high temperature of 43. Colder weather prevailed Tuesday night with a low reading of 10.

Fuenning: Polio Shot Program Gets Boost

"The polio immunization program at the University received a boost from the letter sent to parents over the holidays urging immediate immunization," stated Dr. Samuel Fuenning, Medical Director of the Student Health Center.

According to Dr. Fuenning a large percentage of freshmen were influenced by a letter sent early in the fall and the first few days after vacation have shown an added increase. He said that posters distributed around campus have also aided in the campaign.

Dr. Fuenning said that state vaccine is provided free for students 19 and below. A reduced charge of one dollar is made for other students.

Dr. Fuenning urged that everyone begin shots now at the student health center so that they can have at least partial immunization by next August or September when the polio season starts.

Lunch Guests Include Vic, John Beaver

Governor Victor Anderson and Senator John Beaver, speaker of Nebraska's Legislature, will be guests at the Nebraskan press luncheon Friday in parlor X of the Union, according to Bob Ireland, news editor.

Members of the faculty and student body are invited to attend the luncheon, Ireland said.

Persons wishing to attend should contact the Nebraskan office before 4 p.m. today.

Senators NU Guests

Meeting at the Alumni Association dinner Tuesday evening were (left to right) Jim Stewart, President of the University; Senator John Beaver, the speaker of the 1957 Legislature; and Lt. Governor

Dwight Burney. The dinner was held to better acquaint the state senators with the alumni association according to Arnold Magnuson, alumni secretary, and was not sponsored by the University. Deans, regents, officers and directors and their wives were also invited. Entertainment was provided by the men's quartet. Chancellor Hardin addressed the senators and their wives after dinner. The dinner was held in the Union.

Coffee Hour Set For Home Ec Students

Home economics seniors and graduate students will be honored at a coffee hour Saturday. The annual event, sponsored by the home economics faculty, will be in the Union building from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m.

Special guests, in addition to the students, will include Mrs. Clifford Hardin, Mrs. W. V. Lambert, Mrs. Franklin Eldridge, Miss Helen Snyder, Miss Marjorie Johnson and Miss Frances Fogel.

Committee chairmen for the coffee hour include the following faculty members: Jerre Withrow, Helen Becker, Florence Corbin, Ethel Diedrichsen and Carolyn Ruby.

Student Council Requests Full Budget

Bruce Brugmann, president of the Student Council presents a resolution of the Council to Governor Victor Anderson which recommends that the full budget of the University be adopted by the State Legislature. Anderson said that he doubted if the entire budget would pass, however. He also said that he would not recommend an increase in student tuition and said that a student loan plan might prove advisable if the tuition hike did occur.

Donators Listed: Hungarian Student Project Donations Reach New High

A total of $1,311.67 has now been pledged in cash donations to the Hungarian Student Project, according to Barb Sharp, project chairman.

The largest donation of any campus organization was received yesterday, when Tassels voted to donate $280 to the project. Sally Flanagan is the committee member representing Tassels.

No word has yet been received from World University Service, the agency that is handling the flow of refugee students. Hungarian refugee students already in the United States are all attending a nine-week orientation session at Bard College in New York.

It is hoped that the students will arrive at the University a week or two after the start of the first semester classes, Miss Sharp said.

The committee is still awaiting a decision on room and board from Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic Council.

Hungarians: Scholarship Announced By Regents

The Board of Regents voted Saturday to give two one-year scholarships to Hungarian students for study at the University.

The refugee students are being sponsored by the Hungarian Student Project made up of representatives of University organizations. The Student group is planning to sponsor 10 students in all.

Books, housing, clothing, room and board and maintenance funds are being supplied by Lincoln merchants and students through personal and student house donations. At the present time, the members of the project are able to support two students for one year.

Dorms Named For Former Ag Officials

Two new dormitories at the College of Agriculture campus, one for women and the other for men, will be named respectively in honor of Miss Margaret Fedde, former head of the Home Economics Department, and W. W. Burr, former Dean of the College of Agriculture.

Naming of the two buildings, costing jointly $980,000, was made official by the University Board of Regents.

Miss Fedde joined the University in 1914 and left in 1950. She now is with the University of Tennessee.

Burr retired in 1948 after 40 years with the University, the last twenty as Dean of the Ag College.

Nature Shows: Third 'Screen Tours' Scheduled Friday

The third in this year's Audubon Screen Tours series will be presented Friday at the University. Entitled "Outdoor Almanac," it is a panorama of nature's annual cycle of year-round activity. The color film with complete musical score and sound effects track will be shown at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. at Love Library Auditorium.

The narrator will be Charles Mohr, director of the Audubon Center, Greenwich, Conn. Mohr has served as director of the National Audubon Society's center for nature and conservation education and research since 1947.

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents last weekend voted to provide scholarships for two of the students.

Following are the contributions that have been received to date by the committee:

Two Students Given Awards In Agriculture

Alyce Sides and Paul Johnston, both University students, were among the 20 agricultural college seniors throughout the United States to receive scholarship awarded by Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc.

The awards, offered for the first time in 1956, were established to encourage young people to choose extension work as a career, especially in the field of animal health.

Each applicant submitted a plan for an extension education program which was one of the deciding factors in the $200 scholarship awards. Miss Sides' outline dealt with "The Relation of Animal Health to Human Health," with emphasis on the problem of brucellosis. Johnson's plan stressed the importance of animal health, concentrating on the economic aspects of the subject.

The scholarship winners have been active members in 4-H for many years, and have held various offices in their local organizations. Both spent the summer of 1956 as extension agent trainees.

ASME Elections

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers will meet in Room 206, Richards Laboratory, Wednesday at 4 p.m.

Don Frye, associate professor of the scientific lab for the Ford Motor Company, will speak. The society will hold elections.

Mitchell Sends More Facts To Committee

C. Clyde Mitchell has sent further information concerning his case now pending before the faculty committee on privilege and tenure, according to David Dow, chairman.

Dow stated that he was not at liberty to disclose the information. The case will be taken up "as soon as we can get together," Dow said. An exact date was not revealed.

Mitchell's case involves his removal as chairman of the Department of Agriculture Economics, which he maintains was an abridgment of his academy freedom.

Religion: Cotner Classes Offered

The schedule of classes offered at Cotner School of Religion is now available, according to Dean P. R. Stevens.

After meeting with faculty members, registration can be made at the Cotner School of Religion office at 1237 "R" Street, Stevens said.

The fee for registration is $2.00 per semester and tuition is $5 per credit hour. Scholarships covering the Cotner tuition are awarded to qualified students carrying 12 or more hours in the university.

According to Dean P. R. Stevens it is important that students get a systematic understanding of religion. Cotner offers the opportunity of courses in religion which are free from sectarian bias and open to all students. Courses in religion are accepted for elective credit at the University and other schools.

Classes are held at 1237 "R" Street and 3513 Holdrege, adjacent to the City and Ag College campuses.
