Quips And Things:

Old Cornhuskers Reveal The Past

By BOB IRELAND News Editor

As this weary reporter was glancing through some antiquated editions of the Cornhusker we came across a few quips and things which seem appropriate to campus life.

For instance this bit of verse appeared in the 1916 Cornhusker which might be dedicated to the female section on campus:

"Sunshine and fruit were meant for the few

My intentions are good and my heart beats true

But strive as I may thru all of my life,

No mortal man lives to call me his wife."

In the same annual the freshmen Saturday program was outlined. The agenda included the following phases running from 6 a.m. until 12 noon:

6 a.m.: Slave driver drags you from the downy heather. Don old clothes and prepare for day of service; 6:30; Usual sinkers and Java for sustenance; 7, Beat rugs; 7:30, Polish roomy's shoes; 7:45, Beat rugs; 7:49, Wash Lincoln Alumni's machine; 8:02, Beat rugs.

9:00; Polish floors; 9:45, Take roomy his breakfast; 9:50, Polish floors; 10:15, Draw roomy's bath; 10:20, Polish floor; 10:37, Rub roomy's back; 10:43, Polish floors; 10:53, Press roomy's trousers; 11:01, Wash windows.

11:04, Find roomy's continued story; 11:15, Chase fly specks on window pane; 11:27, Lend roomy some tobacco; 11:28, Dust the furniture; 11:38, Drive fly from roomy's ear; 11:58, Rest until lunch; 12:30, Cook saved nothing—more work; 12:45, Clean the yard; 12:46, Lend roomy more tobacco; 12 p.m., Nothing to do until tomorrow."

The Beta's should find consolation when they read that in 1916 the Phi Delta's were referred to as "The Fly Delta's."

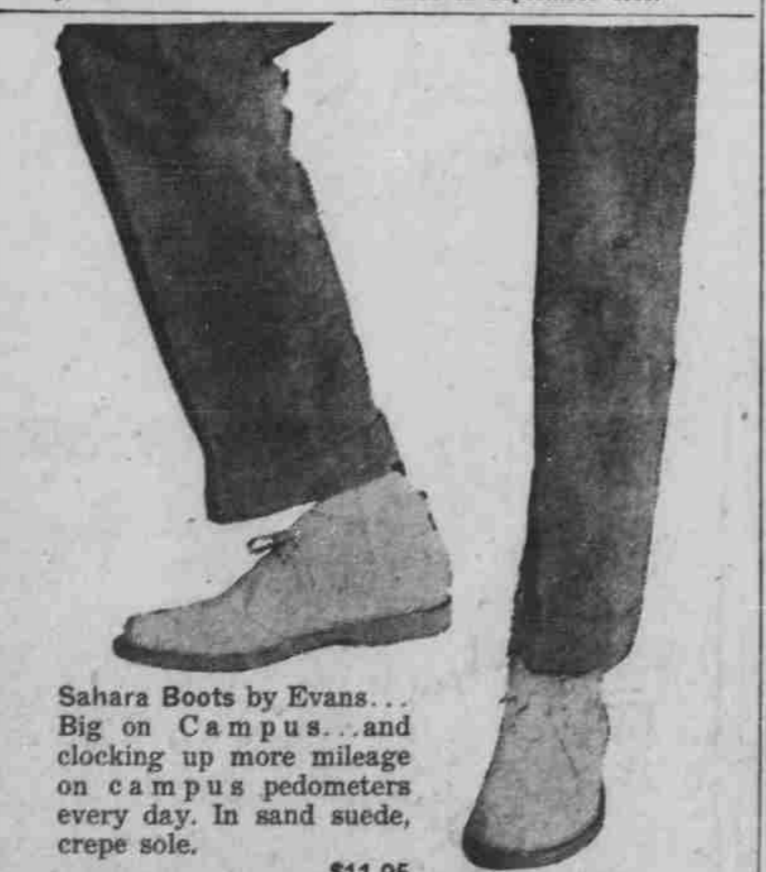

In 1920 the Cornhusker reveals some pertinent tales of the University's ROTC department. Then the army boys were organized into Batteries. The following caption which appeared under a picture of Battery B seems adaptable to many of today's cadets:

"Our officers take fiendish delight in marching us in and out of excavations that would make a full grown shell hole blush for shame, and after marching us some two or three hundred yards away from the pieces, give the command of some kind of "Post" and then watch us unfortunate bucks do the double over rocks, trees, holes, and mud back to our pieces."

The 1920 Cornhusker also tells of the ROTC companies and relates, strangely enough, that each unit had a symbolic flower.

The Sweet Pea guarded Company F through its rigorous maneuvers. Company C claimed the Violet as its delicate symbol and Company A used the American Beauty Rose.
