

Mock Legislature: NUCWA Readies Sessions

The Nebraska University Committee on World Affairs is planning to hold a mock session of the unicameral legislature as their annual all-campus project. It was announced Tuesday by "Biff" Keyes, vice-president in charge of programs.

It is hoped that the sessions can be held in the legislative chambers at the State Capitol. There will be three sessions on the week of March 29 with a fourth session to be held if business cannot be completed in the first three.

A governor, lieutenant governor, and secretary of state will be chosen in an election of the student body. There will be 43 state senators chosen by campus organizations. Campus organizations can apply for a district which if awarded by the NUCWA cabinet would allow that organization to select a senator, Keyes said. Any campus organization can apply for a district. Applications can be given to either Betty Parks at the Kappa Delta sorority house or Steve Everett at the Kappa Sigma fraternity, according to Keyes.

Each organization receiving a district would be able to send lobbyists to the legislature to lobby for legislation which any senator could introduce. There are no restrictions on the number of lobbyists a district could send to the legislature, Keyes continued.

A mass meeting of all those interested in presenting candidates for any of the elective offices or applying for districts will be held next week, Keyes said. A time and place for the meeting will be announced shortly.

"We hope that we will all come to a better understanding of our state government and the problems it faces through actually tracing its processes through this mock session of the unicameral," Keyes concluded.

Last year, the NUCWA project was a mock political convention. The convention was organized on non-partisan lines, but split into two factions before a candidate could be nominated. The Democratic faction then elected Estes Keffer as their candidate for the presidency while the Republican side of the convention nominated President Eisenhower.

"Last year's project created a great deal of interest on the campus and it is hoped that with such controversial issues as the tuition bill, water rights legislation, lowering the voting age to eighteen, school redistricting and others that students will again provide us with the fine support of last year," Steve Everett, NUCWA publicity chairman said.

"Rhythms Of Tahiti"

Members of Pi Beta Phi rehearse their skit "Rhythms of Tahiti" for the AWS Coed Follies, scheduled next Monday and Tuesday at the Nebraska Theater. The Pi Phi skit describes three American girls in Tahiti who argue over the merits of jazz as compared to Tahitian music.

Letter Of Thanks

(Eds. Note:) The following is a letter sent to the Daily Nebraskan by the five Hungarian students now attending the University. The letter was written in Hungarian by the students and translated into English by Dr. L. John Martin, Assistant Professor of Journalism. To the Editor:

We would like to thank the American people and their government through the columns of your paper for admitting us into their country and giving us a home in this wonderful land.

During the past twelve years, as the hatred for Soviet Communism grew in the hearts of the Hungarian people, their sympathies turned toward the United States. We were drawn toward the United States all the more, because we knew that our deliverance from the Soviet terror and our liberation from slavery was possible only with American help.

We began to experience the interest and help of the American people almost immediately after we had found refuge in Austria. And this feeling of interest in our lot and welfare continued to develop. One of the results of this concern on the part of Americans was that we were given scholarships at the University of Nebraska.

Our happiness at being given the opportunity to study at this beautiful university is hard to express. We are grateful for the warmth with which we were received. We are all the happier because we feel that the honor done us was really meant for the freedom-loving Hungarian people as a whole.

Our thanks are due to those who have worked so tirelessly toward the establishment of our scholarships. We appreciate especially the many hours of work and the unselfish effort with which the members of the Hungarian Student Project made our coming possible and made us feel so very much at home. We also wish to thank the Lincoln business men who have given so generously to make the project a success.

Finally, we want to say thank you to our professors, our house mates, our fellow foreign students, and to the many other students—both known and unknown—who have directed us around and shown us their friendship in helping us get settled in our new home.

Tryouts: Next Week:

NU Theater To Present 'The Dead Day' In April

Tryouts and crew calls will be held for the University Theater production of "The Dead Day" Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, according to Max Whittaker, Assistant Professor of Speech and Dramatic Art and director of the play.

People interested in trying out are asked to come to room 201 of the Temple between the hours of 3 and 5 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday, and from 3 to 5 and 7 to 10 p.m. on Friday, Whittaker said.

The production of "The Dead Day" by the University Theater, scheduled for April 26 and 27, marks the first time that the play has been produced in the United States. The play was written by the German artist and writer, Earnest Barlac, and has only recently been translated into English by Dr. Naomi Jackson, an American student of Barlac.

The play concerns the struggle of a son to escape the apron strings of his domineering mother. The boy wants to go out into the world and become acquainted with his fellow man. The underlying principle of the play is man's attempt to discover and know his God.

The play has only six characters. One character is a voice which is heard on stage but never seen. Another character is on stage nearly all the time but never speaks. The emotions of the character are expressed through gestures and expressions.

Since Barlac, the author, was also a well-known artist, the Art Department has agreed to work in conjunction with the technical crew in designing sets for the play. Among Barlac's art work are 24 lithograph drawings of the stage settings as he wanted them constructed. Sets will be constructed from these drawings. Dr. Dallas Williams is the Technical Director.

Barlac has gained greater fame in America as an artist than as a writer. Barlac, who died in 1947, was isolated from society by the Nazi government of Germany which came into power in the early 1930's. This government declared Barlac to be a degenerate artist and destroyed the sculpture he had done for the World War I Memorials in Germany.

Twelve Named:

Mortar Board Picks 'Bachelor' Nominees

Twelve University men were chosen by the Mortar Boards Tuesday night as candidates for the title of "Most Eligible Bachelor."

The twelve named include Bill Thomson, Gary Dougherty, Ron Nathan, Larry Epstein, Claude Berreckman, Charles Tsoukalas, Billie Reed, James Walker, Ned Nadiri, Bill Hatcher, Jim Kubacki and Jim Soudras.

These men will compete in an election for the "Most Eligible Bachelor" honor. The six winners will be announced at the Kosmet Klub spring Revue.

New Facilities:

Speech, Hearing Departments Complete Remodeling

The University speech and hearing department, has recently completed the remodeling of a hearing laboratory. Completed in January the lab has new equipment of the latest design.

The hearing lab is intended for hearing evaluation and has some equipment of its kind only in Nebraska.

The new facilities, costing $8,500, were financed completely by the past eight years, from children and adults referred to them by ear, nose and throat specialists throughout the region, according to Dr. John Wiley, director of speech and hearing laboratories.

The department has a contract with the Veterans Administration to provide hearing evaluation and hearing aid fitting services for the area of Nebraska, South Dakota, and western Iowa.

The hearing laboratory will also test patients referred to it by physicians, for the tests.

The main piece of equipment, the Allison 21 B, two-room clinical audiometer, tests people through pure tones, speech over microphone records and through the use of several kinds of noises.

Another piece of special equipment is called Galvanic Skin Resistance testing equipment. This

Instructors Require More Top Salaries

A professor from the University of Illinois said Tuesday that "in the long haul" top salaries for high school teachers will have to go to $15,000 a year or higher to get enough instructors into America's classrooms.

Professor Harold Hand predicted that "if present trends continue, the teacher shortage will be seriously large . . . during at least the next 10 years."

Jim Soudras, an Engineering senior, lives in Gustavson House I. He is co-chairman of Engineering Week, past business manager of the Nebraska Blue Print, vice-president of ASCE and a member of the Engineering College Executive Board, Sigma Tau and Pi Mu Epsilon.

Jim Kubacki, a junior in Teachers College, is a member of Delta Upsilon, "N" Club and Newman Club.

Ned Nadiri, a junior in the College of Business Administration, is president of International Club, scholastic director of RAM and holds a Business Administration Gold Key for scholastic achievement.

Ron Nathan is a senior in the College of Business Administration and a member of Phi Gamma Delta.

Bill Thomson is a junior in Business Administration and social chairman of Phi Delta Theta and the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Tryouts Begin March 9:

Two-Day Cold Wave To End Wednesday

The short bout Monday night and Tuesday with cold weather and whipping winds is scheduled to end Wednesday, the weather bureau predicted.

The temperature, which slipped down to the chilly low 20's is expected to rise to the high 40's or low 50's Wednesday.

The wind will continue but not with such force.

The prediction has the wind speed at about 15 miles per hour.

The skies are expected to be clear with a smattering of clouds. Later in the evening, the skies could get more cloudy.

The five-day forecast calls for temperatures ranging from five to ten degrees above normal in western Nebraska to 35 degrees above normal in the east.

No precipitation is expected during the period, the bureau said.

Cosmolanterna Set For Union Dance Theme

University international students will present acts based on traditions of their native countries at the tenth annual dance and floor show scheduled for Saturday.

The show, termed "Cosmolanterna," will take on an Oriental theme, with Japanese and Chinese lanterns and cherry trees in blossom. The LaEstoma Club of Lincoln is assisting the foreign students in making decorations.

The Student Union Activities Committee, co-sponsors of the affair, has announced that the Dick Burgess Combo will play for the dance.

New Lab Tested

Harlan Adams, assistant professor of speech, tries out the equipment of the new University Hearing Lab on Jack Smith, graduate student in speech. Adams tests the hearing of Smith with equipment especially designed to test for hearing evaluation. The only lab of its kind in Nebraska, the room is equipped to provide hearing aid fitting service for the area of Nebraska, South Dakota and western Iowa. The speech department is also planning to use the lab to test people who claim they have above-average hearing, as well as those with below-normal perception.
