NSA Official Outlines Program To Students

The advantages of the National Student Association were explained Thursday to University Student Council leaders by Dan Idzik, of Buffalo State College, Buffalo, N.Y., executive vice-president of the Association.

Idzik stated that there were four important advantages for a college or university in joining the NSA.

The first of these is the work of the Association on the national level. Idzik pointed out how the Association works to present views to Congress when a student opinion is very important.

He stated an example of this as the Fulbright Act which allowed foreign students to come to the United States to study. Idzik said that the work the Association did was very influential in the passing of this bill.

The second advantage is in the betterment of college and university governments. Idzik also stated that the Association has a research department to look into campus government problems common to many schools.

Stage Production:

Berlin Gives Rights To University High

An appeal to noted composer Irving Berlin will enable the University High School to stage in April the Broadway musical play, "Annie Get Your Gun," a story about Annie Oakley's experiences with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show.

John P. Moran, music supervisor, wrote Mr. Berlin that the University's department of music education has long been interested in raising the standards of musical stage productions in high schools and colleges.

"To accomplish this goal, we feel that first of all we must have top flight material."

He asked Mr. Berlin to grant permission to stage the musical which was not for release to amateur groups.

"A show of this type," Mr. Moran said, "is ideal for the students of Nebraska partly because Buffalo Bill lived in North Platte . . . As you know, his Wild West Show's headquarters was on his ranch in North Platte and his trial performances were usually held in Colbus."

Mr. Berlin answered in part: "Congratulations on your views toward musical comedies. May I add that the American musical theater is desirable in our culture in that it is a product and outgrowth of American culture."

"To my knowledge 'Annie Get Your Gun' has never been presented by a high school. I will instruct the attorneys handling the performance rights to contract you for what might be the first high school performance rights to the show."

A few days later Mr. Moran received the rights to perform the show.

And assisting him in staging the musical with high school students will be these University student teachers:

Phyllis Malony, Annabelle Blinco; Bill Bush, Gerre Swanson, Mary Jane Mong, Bill Hatcher, Herb Meininger, Orlan Thomas and Wendell Friest.

University To Host ACURH Convention

The Association of College and University Residence Halls will hold its fourth annual convention at the University this year.

They will meet during April 4, 5, and 6 with the Women's Residence Halls and the Residence Association for Men as their hosts, according to Bill Houghton, NU ACURH vice president.

The purpose of the ACURH is to exchange problems and solutions with residence halls of other schools of approximately the same size.

In 1954, the Universities of Missouri, Iowa State, Colorado and Nebraska formed the Midwestern Dormitory Conference and had their first meeting at Iowa State. One year later the name was changed to the Association of College and University Residence Halls.

There are now eleven member schools including the four original ones along with other midwestern universities.

This year, approximately 150 representatives will reside at either the Women's Residence Halls or the Men's Residence Halls.

Last year's conference was held at the University of Colorado, at Boulder. The delegation from the University was the largest in attendance, numbering 19.

This year's president, Len Froyen, and secretary-treasurer, Don Adams, reside at Iowa State Teachers College, RAM being host to the 1957 convention entitled Nebraska to hold the seat of Vice-President of the ACURH. This year's vice-president is Bill Houghton, sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences.

The convention will feature speakers from the University staff, student speakers and general discussion periods. In the evenings there will be planned entertainment and also a tour of the campus and Residence Halls on the city and Ag campus.

New Ag Editor Named

Walter Patterson, sophomore in Agriculture, was named Ag Editor of the Daily Nebraskan by the Board of Student Publications Thursday.

Patterson will replace Dick Hendrix, who has left the University.

Kansas Losing Faculty

Kansas University is losing the battle to get and keep top-rated faculty members, the Daily Kansan, KU student newspaper, reports.

Larger, better paying universities are coming to schools such as KU only to select students who have just gotten their Ph.D. degree with the idea of enlarging their own staffs, according to George Smith, Kansas University dean.

"They then use these men to fill junior vacancies on their staffs at the assistant professor level," he said.

"However, we are reaching a period when larger schools are doubling and tripling their staffs and are now picking senior staff members from institutions not paying the kind of salaries these schools can afford to pay," he continued.

Senior staff members are badly needed to take charge of departments and to set up new programs of instruction. There just isn't time to educate enough younger men to fill the vacancies suffered by all the schools, Dean Smith said.

"This is basically the problem we are running into now as we are losing key men from many of our departments," he said.

This is an unexpected problem for all universities in the country and all schools, both large and small, are feeling the pinch.

"The competition for faculty members has been going on since before the war but it has stepped up since the war and the colleges and universities need larger staffs with the unexpectedly large enrollments," he said.

"When the enrollment was pretty much static, the raids for faculty talent were not noticed but now with schools growing so much larger, there are many schools large enough to raid us."

"The areas which pay exceptionally high salaries and which have hired most of the faculty members away from the University are the Big Ten schools and the large schools in the East and on the West coast," Dean Smith said.

KU ranks about in the middle position among American universities as far as salary scale goes. This means the University gets its instructors from all areas of the nation, he said.

"Kansas got into this low paying predicament several years ago when most universities throughout the nation began increasing salaries substantially, but we waited until some of the schools were paying from 25 to 40 per cent above our scale," Dean Smith said.
