Momentous Milestone

A momentous milestone in student-administration relations was passed yesterday by the decision of the Student Affairs Committee to open its hearings to the press.

will be covered by the student press. Of course, the Committee will go into closed executive session for discussion and opinion within the group.

Averages . . .

The growth of the fraternity system is dependent on activating each spring those pledges who have made their averages.

Another plan is to compel the fraternity to maintain a certain average each semester, and raising the scholarship by increasing the study hours of both pledges and actives.

Look Here

The federal government—at least the legislative branch—is searching for ways to cut the budget of the military departments.

The Spirit Is Willing

Iowa State ran rampant last week with support of the Cyclone basketball team. The whole tone of the week-long peppiness was "win or lose, we're with you."

home game night and the band plays as loud and as peppy as it can.

The current crop of American college students are often labeled as the most conservative student generation in the history of man.

their undergraduate days which were not required reading. Students in the so called "trade" colleges have little or not background in principles of American government, traditions of Western culture, the evolution of the American nation, primary economic principles, or the religious background which has formed the thinking of our society.

Perambulation — the sure cure for today's ailments. I mean good old fashioned walking. It always gives me a boost to get to a city that has a springy park right in its heart. Chicago — home of modern living — is such a place.

impression that I'm in another world. A writer friend of mine who hails from Tecumseh told me that most University students live in a world of their own and never get a chance to see what the world is like.

John Kennedy would have no little difficulty in finding sources for his "Profiles in Courage" in members of the current Congress.

A Supreme Court Justice recently said, in effect, that if the Bill of Rights were placed before the people of the United States in a general referendum it would find little popular support.

Examining the records of Korean prisoners of war, we discover that only one in 20 officers showed even the slightest will to resist their captors or to assume their command responsibility.

In the thinking of the nation which accepts the religion of Norman Vincent Peale and rejects the religion of the Cross and its burdens, the nation swallows with hardly a second thought the statement of that noted theologian, J. I. Russell, that "God is a living doll."

I shall not be the first Daily Nebraskan columnist to advocate a return to a study of the liberal arts, a study of man, a study of history, a study of religion, a study of philosophy and a study of what one person can do to divert the footsteps of the race.

The effect of these words is uncertain . . . so I conclude with malice towards none.
