"All events will be held rain or shine," Hagemier concluded. Trophies will be awarded to the organizations scoring the most points in spring day events, John Glynn, Awards Chairman said Monday.

There will be separate trophies for men's and women's divisions according to Glynn. In addition, a trophy will be awarded to the faculty of the college that scores highest in faculty events. Scoring will be on the basis of five points for a first, three for a second and one for a third.

A small cup will also be awarded to the winners of the men's tug of war, push ball and push up contests. A similar award will be given in the women's division to the winners of the tug of war sack race and greased pig race.

Winners will be announced at the intermission of the rodeo.

E-Week Ribbons

E-Week ribbons are sold each year to help defray the expenses of Engineering Week and to make participating engineers easily recognized so that people attending the Open House can direct their questions to them.

E-Week will be held Thursday and Friday of this week.

Engineers from each department have ribbons on sale now. They may be purchased for fifteen cents, according to Bob Jameson, E-Week publicity chairman.

NU Press To Receive Ford Grant

Window Displays Featured

The Ford Foundation has selected the University Press as one of the 30 schools to receive one of its grants "which stimulate scholarly publication in the humanities and social sciences."

The foundation's program for the second quarter of the fiscal year has awarded a total of $305,300 to be distributed among the 30 schools.

E-Week:

Window Displays Featured

Window displays constructed by each department in the College of Engineering and Architecture are now being shown in downtown stores as a part of the annual E-Week.

Each year during E-Week these displays are put up to stimulate interest in the Open House activities.

The various displays and their locations are:

Mechanical Engineers: They will have a model of an automation machine producing automobiles. The machine which will be entirely automatic, will be shown at Hardy's.

Civil Engineers: A large railroad bridge, showing the work a civil engineer might do after graduation will be at Miller and Paine.

Electrical Engineers: The electrical engineers have a scale model of Gavin's Point Dam. Water will flow continuously through the dam, and the water level is controlled by automatic gates which can be operated by spectators outside the window at Gold's.

Chemical Engineers: A large map showing Nebraska's chemical resources, with models depicting the various resources, will be at Well's and Frost.

Architects: The architects have built a model of a modern house using a hyperbolic paraboloid roof. This model will be in Magee's window.

Agricultural Engineers: Models demonstrating pneumatic grain conveyance and pneumatic seed metering will be at Bond Clothing.

Engineering Mechanics: A model of a large walking crane will be at Penney's.

Honors Convocation:

Students And Professors Will Receive Recognition

More than 500 students, along with two professors, will be recognized Tuesday morning for outstanding accomplishments during the last year at the 29th annual University Honors Convocation.

The ceremonies will begin at 10:15 a.m. in the Coliseum. The public is invited to attend.

Classes Excused

Classes will be excused from 10 a.m. to 12 noon today for the annual University Honors Convocation according to Dean of Student Affairs Phillip Colbert.

Colbert said that the convocation would begin promptly at 10:15 a.m., and classes were being dismissed at 10 a.m. to allow students plenty of time to walk to the Coliseum.

C., 53-year-old former three-term governor of Nebraska and Federal Civil Defense Administrator for the past four years, will deliver the main address.

His topic will be: "Help Wanted: Specialists in Human Engineering."

The University will recognize:

Sixty-eight senior students who scholastically rank in the upper three per cent or have appeared on the honors list since entering as freshmen.

Five hundred and forty students who rank in the upper 10 per cent of their class, based on accumulative grade averages since attending the University.

Recipients of the C. W. Boucher Awards, given to seniors with the highest scholastic average in the entire class, in athletics, and in the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

The University also will recognize this year's winners of the University Foundation's Distinguished Teaching Awards, one in humanities and social sciences, and the other in physical and technological sciences.

Each award includes a $1,000 stipend and a medal. Mr. W. W. Putney of Lincoln, Foundation president, and Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin will present the awards.

As Federal Civil Defense Administrator, Governor Peterson serves as a member of the Defense Mobilization Board and is a Presidential invitee to the National Security Council, when matters concerning continental defense and civil defense are discussed. By invitation of the President, he also attends Cabinet meetings.

At the Tuesday program, Dr. Robert Davis, pastor of Student Fellowship Baptists and Disciples of Christ, will be chaplain.

Mary Adelia DeMars of Lincoln, student representative of the Honors Convocations Committee, will introduce the speaker.

Music will be furnished by Myron Roberts, organist, and the University Symphony Orchestra, directed by Jack Snider.

Dr. Donald Keys, professor of operative dentistry and chairman of the Honors Convocation Committee, will present the honored students.

Farmer's Fair Slated May 3 On Ag Campus

The annual Farmer's Fair will be held May 3 on the Ag College campus in conjunction with Spring Day.

The agricultural event gets underway at 8 a.m. when the second annual Block and Bridle Quarter Horse Show opens in the rodeo arena. Floyd Bond will judge the show which is approved by the American Quarter Horse Association.

A public barbecue will be held at 11:30 a.m. at the College Activities Building. Action will move back to the rodeo arena at 1:30 p.m. for the annual College Rodeo. Events scheduled include: saddle bronc riding, steer riding, bareback bronc riding, calf roping, bulldogging, barrel racing and pole bending.

Calf catching and wild cow milking contests for boys and girls representing organized houses also will be held.

The Spring Day street dance that night will climax the Farmer's Fair activities. Rodeo winners will be announced at this time.

Separate tickets for the barbecue and rodeo may be purchased for 80 cents each or a combination ticket is available for $1.50.

This Week: Two Visiting Professors To Lecture

Edwin Hewitt, professor of mathematics at the University of Washington, and Dr. Morgan Harris, professor of zoology at the University of California, will deliver several lectures at the University this week.

Hewitt's visit to the campus is being sponsored by the Mathematical Association of America to interest students in the opportunities for careers as professional mathematicians.

He will deliver a public lecture Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Room 108, Burnett Hall, on "What is Mathematics?"

A graduate of Harvard University, he has held two Guggenheim Fellowships, both spent in research at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, N. J., and has taught at Harvard, Bryn Mawr, and the University of Chicago.

Dr. Harris will deliver a Monday noon lecture, "Nutritional Requirements and Energy Sources," and a Wednesday noon lecture, "Growth Promoting Proteins," both at the Plant Industry building on the College of Agriculture campus.

His Tuesday lecture at 1 p.m., entitled, "Kinetic Studies with Cell Suspension," will be at Bessey Hall auditorium.

His visit is sponsored by the Institute for Cellular Research and the department of physiology.

Rain Boots In Fashion For Today

Considerable cloudiness and scattered thundershowers are in store for the University campus. Students can get out their rain boots to walk to class today, the showers were forecast for Monday night and this morning.

High temps are to remain however. The high today is to be near 75. Monday registered a high of 74 and low of 55. Tornado warnings are out for all Nebraska.

AFCW Conference:

Women Conclude 'Profs Too Easy'

A substantial number of American university women believe their professors are much too easy on them in the classroom.

This was derived from a poll conducted among more than 400 coeds representing 139 colleges and universities attending the Athletic Federation of College Women Conference.

The group ended its four-day meeting at the University last Thursday afternoon.

Of those responding to a questionnaire, 42 per cent expressed a desire for more difficult university academic standards. Fifty four per cent said they thought instructional standards were just about right and 4 per cent said they were too high.

Other results of the poll: Casting a studious eye at the troubled Middle East situation, 30 per cent of the college women expressed the opinion that there would not be another major world war in the foreseeable future. Twenty eight per cent of them expected a world war within ten years, 15 per cent expect a major war in the next 30 years, nine per cent in the next five years and the remainder in 40 to 50 years.

An overwhelming majority, 80 per cent, believe there is too much emphasis on social activities in colleges and universities, but 82 per cent of them opposed abolition of social fraternities and sororities.

Nearly three fourths of them denied that most women attend college and university to seek a better prospect for a husband. And on the subject of what quality they would like to see most in a husband, the principal answers were honesty, followed by understanding, sincerity, love and ambition.

The qualities they like to see most in their professors, in descending importance, are good well informed in his subject, interesting lecturer, fairness (especially in grading exams) and an understanding attitude toward student life.

When asked which book had influenced them most, 50 per cent of the women replied that it was the Bible. Other most influential books: The Robe, The Man Called Peter, Gone With the Wind, War and Peace, the Dictionary, and The Power of Positive Thinking, and The Silver Chalice.

As Last Resort:

Governor Threatens Entire Budget Veto

Governor Victor Anderson said Monday that if efforts to defend his "hard tack" budget fail on the floor of the Legislature, he will have to "seriously consider" a veto of the entire state budget for 1957-59.

The basis of the Governor's "hold the line" budget are two proposals to lower the state institutional building levy from $1.10 to 50 cents per $1,000 of property and eliminate the 25 cents per $1,000 levy for the University College of Medicine.

When asked to clarify earlier statements that he would "fight" proposals to increase his recommendations on the two levies the Governor Adnerons said, "I have pledged myself to holding the line.

Tuition Bill Fails To Pass Committee

A bill to double tuition rates at the University failed to be advanced from the Legislature's education committee.

The measure, LE410, got three votes for advancement. Four votes are needed to get a bill out of committee.

The committee can reconsider the bill at any time.

Present tuition fees are $90 per semester for resident students and $180 for non-residents, according to University Registrar Floyd Hoover.

The bill, as originally offered by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, sets $360 and $180 per semester as tuition rates for non-Nebraskans and Nebraskans, respectively, at the University.

The committee amended version of the bill provides for doubling of tuition charges, instead of setting a specific amount. Tuition and fees now are $90 and $180 for residents and non-residents, respectively.

Hardin Selected To Exec Council

Chancellor Clifford Hardin of the University has been selected as a member of the executive committee of the American Association of Land-Grant Colleges and State Universities.

Hardin will complete the unexpired term of John Perkins, president of University of Delaware, who was recently appointed Under Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Ivy, Daisy Chain

Ivy and Daisy Chain participants will practice Tuesday noon and again at 5 p.m. in Room 313 of the Union, according to Courtney Campbell, co-chairman.

Another practice will be held Thursday at 5 p.m. in the Union. Participants must attend one of these sessions, she stressed.

Awards Deadline

The deadline for applications for the Corn Cob Grant-in-aid awards of $100 each is 5 p.m. Wednesday. Forms should be returned to Dean Marjorie Johnston at Elen Smith Hall.

Two University Seniors Win Wilson Fellowships

Two University seniors have been named winners of the National Woodrow Wilson fellowships, one-year awards for outstanding students interested in graduate preparation for college teaching.

They are Marvin Breslow and Robert Cotton. Both are enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Breslow plans to continue his graduate work next year in Harvard University, specializing in history and English. Cotton will attend Stanford University, specializing in English.

Awarded only upon invitation after nomination by established members of the academic profession, Wilson fellowships enable young scholars to try out their interests work and to determine whether they wish to enter careers of teaching and scholarship.

The fellowships are sponsored by the Association of Graduate Schools within the 37-member American Association of Universities, and are underwritten jointly by the Association's members, the Carnegie Corporation and the General Education Board.

Three hundred two fellowships were awarded in the nation.

Theater To Present 'The Dead Day'

The University Theater's production of "The Dead Day" by Ernest Barlach will be another "first" for this year.

The play was first produced in Leipzig, Germany, in 1918, but it had never been produced on an American stage.

Max Whittaker, director of the experimental theater, said that the University group will use the translation by Dr. Naomi Jackson of the McMaster College in Hamilton, Ontario.

"We are trying to capture the mood of Barlach as Dr. Jackson captured it and as it is expressed in the lithographs now on display here at the University," Whittaker said.

The lithographs, which belong to Dr. Jackson's private collection of Barlach "lore" are being exhibited through April 28 in the University Art Galleries in Morrill Hall.

Dr. Jackson is on the campus this week and will, according to Whittaker, give the criticism of the drama following the last performance.

Whittaker said that the play is surprisingly theatrical. "Barlach, of course, is noted for his painting and his sculpture. Yet this play demonstrates his versatility," the director stated.

He said that the same "force" which is evident in the lithographs and other art works of the German artist are evident in the play.

"He must have had a very vivid imagination, since every field he experimented in was so successful," Whittaker said.

The Barlach play in its entirety is much like those works of other European dramatists. "That is, the action often stops so that the philosophy of the playwright can be expounded. But we have cut much of the play to accelerate the action of the drama so that it can be more palatable for the Amer-

Jere McGaffey:

NU To Recognize Top Senior Scholar

Jere McGaffey will be recognized by the University Tuesday morning as the top scholar in the senior class.

McGaffey will receive two awards at the 29th annual Honors Convocation, beginning at 10:15 a.m. at the Coliseum.

One will be the C. W. Boucher Memorial Senior Award, given to the senior with the highest scholastic average in four years; and the other, the C. W. Boucher Memorial Senior ROTC Award, for the top senior cadet scholastically.

His 8.41 grade average for four years earned him these honors. McGaffey gives debating credit for his almost perfect marks. He entered the University primarily because he wanted to debate.

And, he said, "I was told when a freshman that top scholarship was required to become a member of the debate squad."

Jere took the advice seriously and has been a top debater for the past four years.

After four years of studies, he will receive two undergraduate degrees in June, instead of the usual one. In addition to a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration he will earn a Bachelor of Arts.

The second degree has required Jere to complete at least 30 extra semester credit hours above the minimum graduating requirement of 125 hours.

He is president of Delta Sigma Rho, national speech honorary; and a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, national scholastic honorary in business administration; and Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honorary in arts and sciences.

Another individual honor to be conferred Tuesday will go to Robert Niemann, a geology major and middle-distance runner on the track team. He will receive the C. W. Boucher Memorial Senior Athletic Award, for the senior in athletics with the highest grade average. He has a 7.318 average.

NU Glee Club Gives Concerts On State Tour

The University's Varsity Glee Club began its first extensive concert tour of Western Nebraska Monday and will continue Tuesday and Wednesday.

The group, composed of 54 men and Miss Nebraska, Diane Knotek of Lincoln, will visit seven towns.

The conductor is Dale Ganz, assistant director of voice. The Glee Club consists of non-music majors.

The tour schedule follows: Monday—Alliance High School auditorium, 10 a.m.; Sidney High School auditorium, 2:40 p.m.; and Ogallala High School auditorium, 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday—North Platte High School auditorium, 10 a.m.; Gettysburg High School auditorium, 2 p.m.; and Lexington High School auditorium, 7:30 p.m.

Eby Elected

Doris Eby is the newly elected secretary of Barb Activities Board of Women. Dorothy Glade was selected as treasurer for the board. These two complete the slate of officers headed by Sue Hinkle and Marie Gerdes who were elected earlier in the All-women spring elections.
