

Journalism:

NU Staff Member To Arrive

Dr. Robert Cranford, newest staff member of the University School of Journalism, will arrive in Lincoln in mid-June, according to Dr. William Hall, director of the School.

The 49-year-old professor will assume his teaching duties in the fall. During the summer he will familiarize himself with Lincoln by working on the copy desk of the Lincoln Journal, according to Dr. Hall.

Cranford reported for the Charlotte News in his home state of North Carolina after graduating from Duke University in 1923. There he once scooped the rival paper with a banner story he wrote from interviewing the opposition editor.

The 20-years news veteran worked for the Associated Press in 1944 when he became state editor of the Charlotte News.

He took his MA degree in 1950 while serving as Public Relations director at the University of South Carolina.

Cranford began teaching as an adjunct professor at South Carolina in 1949. Since 1953 he has been at Northwestern where he was made associate professor in 1956.

Dr. Hall said that Cranford will work with the editorial journalism classes at the School. Dr. Swindler, presently a full-time professor, is cutting down to a half-time position in order to complete his law degree. Dr. Hall stated, Cranford will take his place.

Cranford's specialty is the daily newspaper, according to Dr. Hall. He has completed a workbook in copy editing which will be published next year.

"Dr. Cranford is certainly a much looked forward to addition to the staff," Dr. Hall said. "He is one of the finest desk men in the country".

are Dr. B.N. Greenberg, president, J. LeRoy Welch, Frank Foote, C. E. Swanson, C. Y. Thompson and J. G. Elliott.

'Best In Years':

'South Pacific' Preview Rocks LAFB

By FRED DALY
Editor

Lincoln Air Force Base personnel who attended Monday's practice performance of "South Pacific," the Kosmet Klub Spring Show, saw the best University-sponsored musical to be presented here in years.

Excellent performances by Cynthia Barber as Nellie Forbush and Joe Hill as Luther Billis, supported more than ably by Norman Riggins, Jack Lindsay, Barbara Coonrad and a boisterous chorus, more than compensated for first-night rough edges.

The Monday performance was staged at the LAFB theater, and was the first time the cast had run through the show with complete props and lights.

After a rather slow beginning, the renowned "There Is Nothing Like a Dame" set the audience back on its ears and got the action of the performance off to a roaring and successful start. This was done by the men's chorus, a ragged lot of marine and naval personnel who also blasted forth in fine style with "Bloody Mary Is the Gal for Me."

Action in the chorus was sparked by the antics of Hill, Bob Robson and Morgan Holmes. Lt. Joseph Cable, played by Jack Lindsay, was properly clean-faced and earnest. The fine quality of Lindsay's voice was emphasized in his rendition of "Younger Than

Rag Staff Choices:

Tuition Raise Leads Top Ten Story List

The tuition increase of $30 per semester for in-state students was voted as the top news story of the semester by the Daily Nebraskan editorial staff, according to Fred Daly, editor.

Daly said the selection of the top ten stories was made according to relative news value given to each and over-all significance of the event.

Other top news stories in their order are the Budget, the Faculty Senate refusing student votes on committees, the student tribunal Charter, Open Hearings for Students, Senator Kennedy speaking at student convocation, the renewal of the IFC Ball, the well-known Mitchell hearings, the Military Ball profits, and last but not least the parking problem.

The meetings came after an interview with Fred Daly, Daily Nebraskan editor in which he made the proposal.

The appearance of Senator John Kennedy in the first student sponsored convocation is the number six story.

Senator Kennedy spoke before 1400 people in the union ballroom on May 18. His topic was "A Career in Politics."

He also conducted a question and answer period in which he answered questions concerning the foreign policy of the United States and his work on the Special Senate subcommittee investigating the "finances" of the Teamster Union whose president is Dave Beck.

The reinstatement of the Interfraternity Council Ball after a lapse of two years is story number seven.

The Ball was held in the Turnpike ballroom May 19. The music was provided by Jay McShann.

A new innovation was established this year. A Greek week-end which culminated in the IFC ball was instigated. The week-end consisted of a chariot race between fraternities, the choosing of sweethearts by the various fraternities and the crowning of the queen of Greek-end and presentation of trophies at the ball.

The conduct of hearings and the investigations of the Liaison Committee into charges of violation of privilege and tenure by Dr. C. Clyde Mitchell constitutes story number eight.

The investigations of the Committee resulted in a report to the Faculty Senate on May 15 that a report would be present before a special meeting of the Faculty Senate which would be held during the final examination period.

For the first time in seven years, the Military Ball was a financial as well as social success and this constitutes the ninth top story.

With Lieutenant Commander Donald Edge as the officer in charge, the Ball cleared $480 in profits. Richard Maltby and his 16 piece orchestra played at this year's ball and Diane Peterson, senior in the college of Agriculture, was elected 1956 Honorary Commandant.

Several recommendations were made to make future Military Balls as successful as the 1956 one, including suggestions to (1) separate the dates between Homecoming and the Ball as widely as possible to escape conflict, (2) have the orchestra under contract by Aug. 1, (3) continuation of outside entertainment; and (4) investigation of the possibility of having the ball away from the University City Campus, possibly at the new Pershing Municipal Auditorium.

A six-man parking advisory committee was appointed by the Chancellor in late March to survey the University's parking problem and form recommendations.

The parking problem, increasing each year, became greater the past two semesters. This summer the new Union addition will decrease parking space even more so.

At the beginning of the fall semester there were 3500 cars for some 3200 University parking stalls, according to Sgt. John Furrow of Campus police.

Saturday Night:

Kosmet Klub To Reveal Six Bachelors, Royalty

Miss Cornhusker will be crowned Saturday night at the annual Kosmet Klub show, "South Pacific" which will be held at the Pershing Memorial Auditorium.

During intermission the 12 finalists in the contest will be introduced before the winner is announced, according to Sam Jensen, chairman of the Miss Cornhusker competition.

Miss Cornhusker will go to McCook June 1 to enter the Miss Nebraska section of the Miss Universe competition.

More than 40 coeds originally entered the contest which is sponsored by the Innocents Society. The basis for selection is beauty, personality and poise.

The judges are Bennett Martin, Lincoln mayor, Bob Schlater, president of Innocents alumni; Bob McNutt, vice-president of the alumni; Jim Pittenger, secretary-treasurer of the alumni, and Sam Jensen, chairman of the contest.

The twelve finalists are: Connie Allen, Kappa Alpha Theta; Marilyn Arvidson, Zeta Tau Alpha; Elaine Eggen, Alpha Phi; Joyce Evans, Alpha Xi Delta; Anita Hall, Delta Gamma; Sharon McCormick, Chi Omega; Mary McKnight, Delta

Cloudy Skies To Increase Wednesday

Increasingly cloudy skies are predicted as a follow-up to the threatening weather of Monday and early Tuesday. The high for Wednesday is expected to be about 70 degrees.

Monday night Lincoln residents watched the tornado formations which skirted the city. A funnel was reported as passing directly over the city, but it was high enough in the clouds to keep it from causing any damage.

The twister was definitely reported over the Penitentiary and then it was reported to pass over the Lincoln Air Force Base. Several funnels dipped from the turbulent skies outside of Lincoln, damaging several farms, but the twisters took to the air when they approached Lincoln.

Breaks Records:

Lorensen Cops Three Top Honors Of Law College

One student, Bill Lorensen, has nearly monopolized every honor the law college can bestow on a senior.

Lorensen has received four individual honors which usually go to four different people. Only once in the history of the University law college, has anyone come close to this record. In 1952, Lewis Pierce held three of the honors, Order of the Coif, editor of Law Review and high scholastic average.

The four honors Lorensen has received are:

Order of the Coif, national honorary law society. Only five seniors were selected this year.

Editor of the Nebraska Law Review, quarterly publication of the College of Law students. It contains a combination of students' opinions and those of lawyers and other professional people.

High scholastic average. Lorensen has a 8.1 cumulative average, the high of all students going into the senior year. Law College issues its grades only at the end of each year.

Winning moot court team of the Allen Competition. With his partner, Nick Caporale, Lorensen won through three years of moot court competition. The final competition was judged by three members of the State Supreme Court.

Lorensen is married and has two children, a daughter of six and a son of three. Lorensen's home town is York, Nebraska. Lorensen served two years in the armed services in the Military Police corps, including 13 months in the Far East.

He graduated from the University in 1952, with a B.A. degree in Arts and Sciences in Journalism.

Lorensen has been working at the Lincoln Journal since 1951, except for two years in the armed services.

After graduation from Law College this June, Lorensen will attend the University of Pennsylvania under a $4000 Bi-centennial fellowship in criminal law and administration.

James Lee:

Prof's Ashes Lie Buried On Campus

Unknown to most students at the University, the ashes of a former University professor are buried in older section of the campus.

At the foot of a tree near the Architectural Hall is a grey rock upon which is inscribed "Dr. James Thomas Lees: He Served Well; 1889-1926"

Dr. Lees, professor of ancient languages, at one time served as provost of the department. He retired in 1923 and died in California in 1926.

According to this will, the University had been the center of his life and he wished to remain there for all eternity.

Near the Lees Memorial is a wrought iron fence surrounding the Schiller Linden Tree. The tree was planted in 1905 in honor of the German Poet Schiller. Irate University students tore the fence down during the first World War. It was replaced in 1933.

Discussion:

Budget Due Next Week

Senator Karl Vogel, chairman of the Legislature's budget committee, told a Daily Nebraskan reporter Tuesday afternoon that, "Depending on the other senators, we hope to bring the budget up the first of next week."

The statement contradicted earlier reports by the Lincoln Journal that the budget would be brought up this week.

When asked if he thought the recent rains in the state would make the Legislature more inclined to be lenient and grant the University an increase over the 2.2 million dollars recommended by his committee, Vogel replied, "I wouldn't care to express an opinion on the matter. However, I certainly hope not."

Yesterday, Senator Harry Pizer who along with senator Otto Liebers has submitted a minority report asking for 1 million more than recommended by the rest of the committee, commented, "You know, I said once that now, that its beginning to rain, I suppose they (other legislators), will be hollering for flood relief."
