Chancellor's Greetings

Whether you are a new student on the campus or are returning to resume your studies for another year, we, the members of the University staff and faculties, extend our welcome and best wishes to you.

For the new students, the first few days at the University of Nebraska may appear to be somewhat perplexing. I want to give heart to these students. The University is first of all a place of study. But this "city of learning" is actually more than that. The campus also resembles to a surprising degree the life you have known in your community.

You have friends here who are interested in your welfare. In fact, your advancement, success, and well-being are prime objectives of the University. I know that you want the coming year to be productive, rich in progress and accomplishments, and I'm sure they will be.

New Students Quickly Relieved Of Money

By HERB PROBASCO, Nebraskan Reporter

New Students: take note. If you were interested in saving money when you came to the University, you haven't succeeded. That is, you haven't if you attended any university sponsored social functions during new student week.

Chances are, you boys became acquainted with several new females on the campus. Wishing to make a good impression, you invited a certain member of the opposite sex to attend the Ag Bar-b-que. This little excursion decreased your bankroll by $1.70. Finding that this girl interested you to the extent that you would like to ask her out again, you bought two tickets to the frosh hop, this time to the tune of $1.00.

Now you freshman who weren't lucky enough to meet a girl or boy, whichever the case may be, have saved yourselves $2.70. But since you would like to meet said person above, you went stag to the bar-b-que and the frosh hop, thus costing you $1.35, and you didn't save a thing.

Thinking that your troubles were over as far as money was concerned you went back to your

New Sound For KNUS

University station KNUS acquired a new sound to start off the year according to Promotion director Pete Laughlin.

It involves such features as singing weather forecasts, news headlines on the half hour, and time and temperature every three minutes. Last year's popular features such as news five minutes before the hour, the classical record show "Eventide" and the midwest's first complete newscast, "5 Star Deadline" are remaining in the station's logs this year.

The music ratio has been redesigned to include two pop records to every standard. This enables a more balanced sound. Disc Jockey ad-libbing has been cut to a minimum enabling the new KNUS to play more music than any other Midwest station.
