Frat Wars Renewed At First Pep Rally

Football enthusiasm on the Husker campus overflowed Friday night at the first pep rally of the season, and some of the people involved probably wish they had donned pads before leaving home.

Several fraternity banners were lost in assorted individual skirmishes along the rally route from the Caroline tower to the Union steps via 16th and R streets. Witnesses reported few casualties, however.

Jess Adkins, a pledge at Phi Kappa Psi, who, along with some of his pledge brothers, was carrying a banner in the parade said, "I was knocked down a couple of times and there was quite a bit of scuffling. We lost our sign. I don't think it's (tearing down banners) the best thing, but we didn't start anything—"

Tim Johnson, a pledge at Phi Delta Theta whose banner was first to go down, said, "I saw a few fights, but I don't know who tore our banner down; it might have been the ATOs or the DUs. I don't think that ought to be approved procedure for rallies. We just wanted to protect ourselves."

Bob Blair, Sigma Alpha Epsilon active, said, "I saw a few battles now and then. Our banner didn't get torn down." When asked if he thought the fighting the correct thing to do, Blair replied, "No I don't."

Ron Warholoski, vice president of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity said, "We got in two battles."

"For a while we were fighting on the Phi Psi lawn. We lost our banner and a couple of guys got bumped up. I am very much against this kind of spirit."

Dick Arneson, president of Delta Tau Delta and the IFC said, "I don't think I ought to make a comment for the IFC until we get a chance to talk this over. I realize that the boys like to stand up for their chapter. It is unfortunate but it shows the fraternities have spirit. We just have to channel it into something else. I don't know anything about the rally because I was in Omaha, but I hear it was a real spirited one, just like the old days." Unconfirmed reports said that three students were arrested. Lincoln police had no record of the arrests, however.

College Prob

South Dakota State College in Brookings will be the subject of an "immediate and thorough investigation of personnel policies," according to the South Dakota Regents of Education.

The action came as a result of the regents' consideration of a 42 page report by former Graduate Dean Ephirum Hixon, the one-time University of Nebraska professor who resigned from the South Dakota school early this month.

Hixon stated that "there can be no freedom of thought" at the institution as long as seven persons including President John Headly remain.

President Headly was at a Board of Regents meeting Saturday and there made his first formal statement by saying that he and Hixon "were administratively incompatible."
