Unwelcome NU Wasps Destroyed

Swarms of wasps caused a crisis Wednesday when they gathered around the main doors of the Union blocking the entrance of the students, according to G. C. McKeen, head of the custodian department of the Union.

McKeen, in an attempt to kill the insects, sprayed the area around the doors.

When the spray failed to kill the insects, the University campus upkeep department was notified. Using a spray containing pyrethrum, the men from the Upkeep Department sprayed the front of the building and the bushes surrounding the entrance.

One large nest by the door was torn down and destroyed and two nests by the windows were sprayed in an attempt to destroy the insects.

McKeen observed that the wasps were small and must have been the young from the nests. They did not appear to be irritated.

The warmth of the sun shining on the south side of the building attracted them, according to McKeen.

No one was stung by the wasps but many were forced to detour to other entrances in order to enter the building.

Union Movie To Feature Granger, Kerr

"King Solomon's Mines" is the Sunday night Union Ballroom movie this week, according to Jean Sell, assistant chairman of the film committee.

In technicolor, the show stars Stewart Granger, Deborah Kerr and Richard Carlson. It is based on H. Rider Haggard's famous novel about adventurers who journey through Africa to find a beautiful girl's lost husband and the fabulous treasure of King Solomon's mines.

The color cartoon, "Captain Hareblower," starring Bugs Bunny will begin at 7:35 p.m. The feature starts at 7:42 p.m. and is over at 9:24 p.m.
