Anyway, for the first time, we were supposed to actually play a game.

Now tennis is fairly exciting with lots of running around the court, swinging at the ball and returning it . . . lots of action. But the only action WE got was in changing sides or courts. We began to feel like a miniature ROTC class. The problem was . . . nobody could get the really awful. And all of us were just dying for one of those famous "rallying situations." The one and only way either side scored was each time when the serve was never completed. At least we ended up in a tie; every game was identical-love-45. Just wait for the skill test when
