Buff Head To Remain Nebraskan

The University will retain the traditional Colorado-Nebraska victory symbol—the Buffalo head—by "default," Bill Spilker, president of Innocents Society declared this week.

The Colorado Heart and Dagger Club, which the Colorado student body designated to accept and present the trophy during halftime ceremonies each year "failed to attend this year's contest," Spilker said.

Since Colorado's organization delegated to accept the buffalo head lacked the initiative, time and spirit to accept the head, we didn't feel compelled to "re-lease" the head to other Colorado students.

Some Colorado students in attendance had requested that they be allowed to return the head to Colorado.

Colorado was to have received the head during halftime ceremonies last week by virtue of their 16-0 victory over Nebraska last year.

The Heart and Dagger Society procured the Buffalo head in 1951.

However, because of Colorado's limited success against the Husker grid team, the Innocents possessed the coveted prize most of the time, Spilker added. It appears Nebraska will continue to possess the head now by "default."

Forgotten Head

head, usually transferred to the winner of the previous year's game in the Nebraska-Colorado rivalry, was left behind by the Buffs this year. Colorado won last year at Boulder, 16-0.

Few Tickets Available For Concert

Very few tickets are left for the annual fall concert of the University Symphony Orchestra, Nov. 24 in the Union Ballroom, according to Bob Handy, Union activities director.

Only about fifty tickets are available in the Union main office.

Emanuel Wishnow, conductor of

the Symphony, called Abba Bogin who will be the guest performer, "one of the outstanding younger pianists of our time. He is very versatile and is equally adept in both solo work and conducting."

Bogin will play Brandenburg Concerto Number 5 and Concerto in F minor.

Bogin's previous engagements included appearances in two Town Hall recitals in New York City as well as recitals throughout the United States, Europe and North Africa.

He has appeared as soloist with the New York Philharmonic under the direction of Montoux and Mitropoulos, the Philadelphia Orchestra, under Ormandy, the Robin Hood Dell Orchestra of Philadelphia directed by Mitropoulos and the Chicago Symphony conducted by Steinberg.

Westerbeck Wins KNUS Symbol Award

Larry Westerbeck junior in Engineering and a member of Sigma Nu won first place in the KNUS Symbol Contest, according to Don Russell, KNUS member.

His entry of a black and white drawing of a microphone with KNUS in its dial position, and 890 woven in the design won him $10 first prize and a trophy for his fraternity.

Second place winner is Delores Clouse, Agriculture student, whose drawing was of a triton with broadcast radiation indicated and the symbols of KNUS and 890 design.

Third place winner was John Reiter, sophomore in Engineering. His drawing "was the most clever of the entries but it was too complex to use," Russell said.

His drawing was of a tuning fork with sound waves coming out and other details including the KNUS and 890 symbols.

Proposal Of 11 Faculty Members May Be Discussed By NU Regents

The eleven University faculty members who released a statement on Monday calling for changes in the present teachers certification are drafting a new plan to recommend to Chancellor Hardin and the Board of Regents.

The plan may be proposed this Saturday at the regular meeting of the Board of Regents.

Dean of Faculties A. C. Breckenridge said, "If something is presented to the chancellor and board of regents, it certainly will be considered." And chairman of the board, Dr. B. N. Greenberg, said the regents "certainly" will consider the proposal if it is brought before the board.

Dean Henslick, Head of teachers college, had no comment yesterday on the proposal, but said that he may have later in the week.

Dean Henslick and other faculty members of the teachers college are presently reviewing the proposal and will make a report to Chancellor Clifford Hardin.

Norman Cromwell, spokesman for the group making the proposal, said, "We plan to send a copy of the proposal to all concerned within a day or so. More discussion is needed in regard to the mechanisms that will be used in bringing the change about."

Cromwell said that the proposal was intended to create an interest on the part of the instructors in having a voice in the certification of teachers.

"No recommendations are presently sought or sent from the subject matter departments on cer-tification," he added.

University graduates are presently recommended by the Board of Regents to the State Department of Education for certification upon completion of requirements set up the Teachers College.

William Dobler, Editorial editor of the Lincoln Star, in an editorial Tuesday morning said:

"This statement of objectives will not accomplish a great deal in itself. It is definite, however, that a review of certification methods and procedures is timely at the moment. . . . Certainly there is merit in the suggestion that knowledge of subject matter given a greater emphasis than is now the case. A great deal of professional training in the methods of teaching is now required for certification in Nebraska and there is no certification for students not matriculated in the Teachers College at the University."

"Those who might be most partisan in either direction on this subject are charged with a national responsibility to examine current programs in the light of what has been accomplished through them. If the educational administrators and those in the Teachers College slam the door in the face of constructive criticism, they will be doing a tremendous injustice to the cause of the entire free world."

In another editorial, that of the Tuesday Omaha World-Herald, the following comment was made:

"Eleven University of Nebraska faculty members have proposed a simple, practical plan for supplying more and better trained teachers.

"The University departments that teach basic subjects would decide who would get teaching certificates. If the Departments of physics, mathematics, history or English should say a man or woman is qualified to teach one or more of those subjects, then that person would be qualified. Period.

"We believe that most knowledgeable citizens who care about what is going on in their schools will agree. There should be a change. Teaching should get back to fundamentals. And the first step should be to restore control of teaching standards to educators who respect scholarship and who know the subject matter they teach."

Colorado Ski Jaunt Still Open

Forty-four University students have signed up for the Union ski trip to Aspen, Colorado, over the holidays, according to Bob Handy, Union activities director.

Anyone who would like to go but has not found time to sign up may do so this week, Handy said. "We could handle ten more pretty easily," Handy said.

One instructor has been chosen for the trip and another one will be chosen this week. Carol Graves is the instructor chosen. She has had three years of experience as a ski instructor previously.

Kansas University will also be taking their annual ski trip to Aspen at the same time so the junct will be a combined one with the Kansans.

The party will leave Lincoln at 1:14 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 29 and will arrive in Glenwood Springs, Colorado at 2 p.m. the same day.

Skiing will be on Thursday, Friday and Saturday and the party will return to Lincoln Sunday, Feb. 2. Classes start Monday, Feb. 3 so the party will be back in plenty of time for eight o'clocks.

Tickets for the 1957 Kosmet Klub Fall Revue which will be held Friday at 8 p.m. at Pershing Auditorium may be obtained from any Kosmet Klub worker or from the Pershing box office.

NU Red Cross Selects New Unit Treasurer

Bev Ellis, junior in business administration, has been selected as the new Red Cross college unit treasurer, according to Sandra Whalen, publicity chairman of the Red Cross college unit.

Miss Ellis is also on AUF and the board of the YWCA, and was in charge of the Hungarian Project.

Other new Red Cross Board members are Janet Crist, Handicrafts and Production committee chairman; Joan Stansbury, chairman of Adult Activities; Malou Parrott, Vets' Hospital chairman; Nancy Morris, chairman of LARC school, and Rychie Van Ornam, chairman of the Leadership committee.

Window Painting Contest Cancelled

The window painting contest for all organized houses, tentatively scheduled for Saturday has been cancelled due to an extended severe weather forecast, according to Robert Durrie and Warner Rhoads of the Lincoln Promotion Council.

A record of all plans made for the contest is being kept in the event that such a contest can be conducted at a later time.

Episcopalians Purchase Lot For Expansion

The Episcopal Church has purchased the lot at 334 No. 13th on which the Acacia Fraternity is located for $37,750. The church plans to expand its present campus facilities on the lot.

The lot was sold as part of the estate of the late Della West of Nebraska City, according to a deed filed Tuesday with the County Register of Deeds and was purchased by the Episcopal Bishop and Trustees of the Diocese of Nebraska.

The possibility of a new $150,000 student chapel and activities center on the site of the present chapel and the fraternity house is being discussed, according to the Rev. Gilbert, pastor of the University Episcopal Chapel located directly north of the fraternity at 346 No. 13th.

Although details of the proposed new chapel have not been worked out, he said, the chapel will probably seat about 250 to 300 persons. The lease on the lot held by the fraternity expires next June, the Rev. Mr. Armstrong said.

Students Lack Certification Knowledge

Students in Teachers College claimed lack of knowledge on the subject of the proposed change in certification of teachers.

Of some thirty students contacted by the Daily Nebraskan three offered comment on the proposal.

Marian Elder, a senior in teachers college, stated, "All teachers should have the required courses because teaching is more than just knowing the subject matter."

Miss Elder added, "one must also know how to work with students individually. Undergraduates don't appreciate the value of methods courses until they have had actual teaching experience."

A sophomore in teachers college commented that teaching should remain a profession. Society should put teachers on better economic level so more students in science would want to be teachers, she said.

This student also stated that teaching standards could be raised if more were interested in teaching. Teaching is an important profession and deserves a higher status than it now has, she claimed.

A senior in Teachers College indicated that all the method courses should be combined into one course. This student believes that student teaching is the only valuable course.

KK Rehearsals

Skit rehearsals for the Kosmet Klub Fall Revue will be held Wednesday and Thursday nights in Pershing Auditorium according to Keith Smith, director. Smith said that times would be announced later.

Carpenter Castigates Assessors

In a speech delivered before the Biz Ad banquet Tuesday night in the Union, State Senator Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said, that "we realize as we grow older how little we know, but it is amazing to see how many people think they know more."

In regard to the tax problem in the state and the committee he heads which is dealing with this problem Carpenter said, "County assessors almost without question are completely incompetent and should be removed from office if they continue to accept the word of the taxpayer without necessary investigation. This is not a standpoint of theory," he said. "As head of the committee I am going to bring about what I think is right regardless of my opinion as a citizen."

He recommended to the men present that they enter politics. "The greatest experience for anyone would be election to the Nebraska state legislature, because of its non-partisan nature."

He questioned whether the economic policy of the nation is elastic enough to handle the problems of today.
