Creative Misses

The Home Ec Style Show, slated for Sunday at 3 p.m., will be held in the College Activities Building on Ag Campus. Sponsored by the Home Economics Club, the theme of the show has been named "It's a Woman's World."

Portraying their part in the "Woman's World" are (from left) Ethel Oelken, Deanna Briar, and Sharon Wilson. Each member will model their own creations.

The show will be open to the general public, according to Mary Vrba, general chairman.

Graduate Speaker Stresses 'A Look At Ourselves'

Theodore Blegen, Dean of the University of Minnesota Graduate School, called upon educators to look at themselves and to seek ways of strengthening the work they are doing.

Speaking at the University's first Graduate College lecture on Wednesday afternoon, the prominent educator and scholar said: "Whenever crisis comes, some people look for scapegoats, blaming everybody except themselves, bewailing the passing of the mythical good old days, and especially in the educational world, hurling charges at echelons below or above their own."

"It is an old game, but the road of educational statesmanship is to look at ourselves, in whatever area we occupy, and build strength where we need strength, with minds open to thoughtful criticism."

Recommendations
 Applying this principle to American graduate schools, he made these recommendations:
 —Concerted effort to increase the number of trained scientists and technologists without confusing basic science and engineering and to strengthen the quality of such training.
 —Concurrent emphasis on humanities and social sciences. "The road to strength in the kind of country and world we believe in is many-lined. We need an American education of balance, not imbalance. Survival is vital, but many kinds of architects are needed in building peace," he said.
 —More stress on the interrelations of fields and disciplines.
 —Improvement of preparation of college teachers with emphasis on subject matter but also recognition that the study of the learning process itself is respectable, hardheaded, and toughminded.
 —More basic research and training for basic research.
Future Growth
 —Earnest study of the problem of educating college teachers for the demands of the 1960's and 1970's.
 —Better and earlier identification and encouragement of high potential talent and a big expansion of scholarships and fellowships.
 —President Eisenhower's proposals are good, but they have neither the compass nor the magnitude needed for our future," Dr. Blegen said.
 —Graduate schools must train much larger numbers of students if we are to come anywhere near meeting national needs.
 —A revision of rules and regulations that are no longer relevant to modern graduate study.
 —Better goals in the clarity and excellence of scholarly writing coupled with more training of writers to carry to the people the findings of science and scholarship in this age of mass communication.
 —Readiness to open new fields of study as need and the march of knowledge reveal them as important.

Heads Named For E-Week

Valasek And Boning Given Top Jobs

Committee heads for the 46th annual E-Week have been announced, according to Stan Kaiman of the publicity committee.

E-Week, to be held Thursday and Friday, April 24 and 25, will be supervised by over-all co-chairmen Ray Valasek and John Boning. Herbert Bates, Associate Professor of Chemical Engineering, and David Olive, Associate Professor of Electrical Engineering, will be the advisors.

E-Week is conducted by the College of Engineering and Architecture to show students and the public what the field of engineering involves and the educational opportunities it offers.

Co-Chairmen Named
 Each department names co-chairmen to supervise its department's activities. The co-chairmen are: Dale Heermann and Marvin Bishop, agricultural; Steve Saylor and Karlis Dzenis, architecture; Winifred Wortman and Junior Meier, civil; Alvin Kopnik and Ron Lantz, chemical; Jerry Hildreth and Clyde Lebsack, electrical; Clinton Spindler and Charles Yungblutt, mechanical and Jim Weaver and Rod Clifton, engineering mechanics.

The schedule for E-Week is tentatively an open house from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. April 24, an engineer's convocation at 11 a.m. April 25, a field day with a picnic that afternoon and an evening banquet.

Administrative
 Administrative committees include: Jim Jacobs, treasurer; Gary Cadwallader, secretary; Stan Hargleroad, banquet; Bob Peters, contest; Harry Dingham, convocation; Doug Thorpe, field day; and William King, inquiries.

Others are: Ray Traudt, program; Bob Hyatt, ribbon sales; George Fisk, sledge; Glen Dutton, traffic; Wayne Lorenz, window display; Dennis Johnston, tours; and Bob Smidt, publicity.

Council Vote Changes Selection

Student Council members voted unanimously Wednesday to move the selection of the Spring Day committee up to Nov. 1 in order to allow for a more thorough investigation of Spring Day and a possible better planning job.

Dwaine Rogge, member of this year's committee, made the motion and it was passed without dissent. Rogge also stated that it is hoped a big-name band can be obtained for Spring Day this year.

Main objectives of the Student Tribunal Committee were outlined by Dave Keene, chairman of the committee. Keene said his committee hopes to aid the council in the method of selection of committee members. They also will assist in the setting up of methods of procedure for the Student Tribunal as soon as the addition to the Tribunal Charter is acted upon by the Administration.

Herb Friedman, chairman of the Parking committee, announced that appeals were being received at the average rate of four or five a day. The major appeal comes from a student who objected to receiving a parking ticket for parking behind the women's dorm on the city campus. The student protested that there are several vacant places behind the dorm that are not being used.

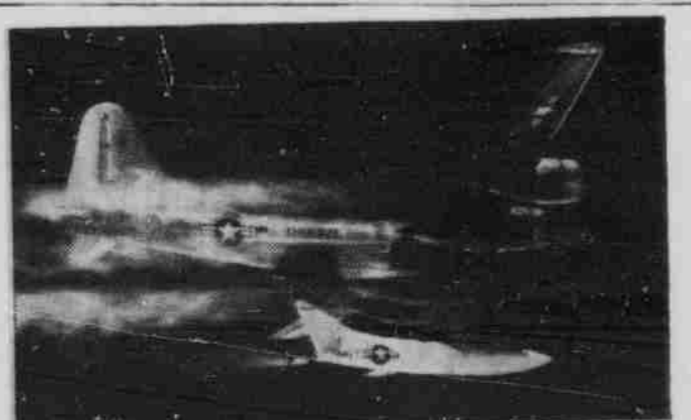

Dr. Robert Bertram, chairman of philosophy, Valparaiso University in Indiana, spoke to the council on conformity. Dr. Bertram appeared in connection with Religious Emphasis Week Seminar in progress at the University.

Charity Vote Begins

Faculty members are being contacted so that they may vote for charities for next year's AUF drive. The Faculty Drive will begin March 10.

Students may vote this week. The polls are located in the Union. Five charities will be chosen by the poll.

MY CLOSEST SHAVE by Bill Bridgeman
 Douglas Test Pilot

"My closest shave was during the first try at a speed record in the fantastic Douglas Skyrocket," says Test Pilot Bill Bridgeman, author of The Lonely Sky. "A special B-29 dropped me like a bomb at 30,000 feet... I turned on my rockets and climbed to 40,000... when suddenly all power failed. Rocket power, cabin pressure, heat—everything went—and the window frosted over so I couldn't see. Finally I got the radio going on an emergency battery... and a pilot in a chase plane talked me down to a blind landing!"

Theatre Sprites 'Ondine' Undaunted By Production Jinxes

A few little difficulties aren't stopping "Ondine."
 "Ondine" is the University Theatre's production scheduled for the first week in March. But already these things have happened to the cast:
 —Two cast members have left school and, consequently, the cast of the show.
 —Complicated technical aspects of the Jean Giraudoux comedy-drama will necessitate an entire week of technical rehearsals before the show is ready for the public.
 —Selection of the music for the show is becoming a hide and seek venture for sound manager Judy DeVilbiss.
 But despite any of these difficulties—or the thousand and one which face a director, Dr. Margaret Servine, who is directing this show is very pleased with the cast and the work being accomplished.

Where the treasure is

The steady growth of the University of Nebraska Foundation has a secondary value—not so very secondary after all—in its effect on contributors. This lies in the reaction of gift on giver. No proverb is truer than Jesus' aphorism that "where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

Nebraska alumni, parents of present and former students, public spirited citizens, well-to-do people hunting for places to plant their money where it will yield good returns—these and many others have through the years made big or little gifts to the university, some for designated purposes, others, free of strings. In the Foundation they have a mechanism to suggest objectives and correlate gifts so as to increase the ultimate value in dollars and cents. The increase from year to year testifies to the appreciation such an apparatus is meeting.

Unattested but quite real, is the effect on those who bring their offerings for assignment and distribution. One may make a handsome gift to an institution from any of several motives. He may be pushed, may want to keep up with the Joneses, see his name on an honor list or assuage his conscience. The money is welcome and will be used. But it is after the money has been given that its objective begins to rank higher in the mind. Everybody who takes his few or many dollars to the foundation will eventually find himself feeling greater interest in the University, often a wider and deeper interest than he himself had anticipated. This can be as valuable as money to the beneficiary institution; its value to the person is beyond measure.
