SC College Filing Opens March 24th

Twenty-eight Council Positions Available

Filings for positions of college representatives on Student Council will open Monday March 24, according to Bill Spilker, chairman of the general election.

Application blanks will be available in the office of Frank Hallgren, associate dean of student affairs on that date, he said. Filings will close at noon on March 29.

Eligible are freshmen and sophomores with a cumulative average of 5.0 and who are bona fide members of the college they propose to represent.

The colleges listed shall be entitled to the number of members as follows: Agriculture, two, (at least one woman); Arts and Sciences, three, (at least one woman); Business Administration, two; Engineering, two; Law or Pharmacy, one; Teachers, three (at least one woman and one man); Dentistry, one.

The Council is composed of 15 college representatives and 13 representatives of campus organizations.

Candidates shall be listed on the ballot in the order of their filing. No student may withdraw his filing after it has been accepted by the Dean of Student Affairs.

Each applicant must have his grade average, college, and class certified by the registrar and must have his application signed by 25 bona fide students within his college.

Each candidate will also be required to sign a pledge agreeing that if elected, he will serve the Council to the best of his ability and will arrange his schedule to permit attendance at the regular meetings of the Council. These meetings are held each week at 4 p.m. on Wednesdays.

Each applicant will also submit a statement of the principles he would uphold in serving the Council.

NU Hosts Debaters

Point Sponsors, We Won't Enter

The University will host ten midwestern schools participating in the West Point district elimination debate tournament, March 24, according to Don Olson, director of debate at the University.

The states comprising this district, he said, are Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Colorado, Nebraska, Missouri, and Kansas.

Schools represented here the 24th according to Olson, will be: Colorado State at Greeley, Colorado; Saint Olaf College at Northfield, Minnesota; Northwestern College at St. Paul, Minnesota; Wisconsin State Teachers College at Eau Claire; Marquette at Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Washburn University at Topeka, Kansas; Emporia State Teachers College at Emporia, Kansas; Kansas University at Lawrence; Southwestern Missouri State Teachers College at Springfield, Missouri; and Augustana College at Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

"Five winners of the District contest," stated Olson, "will go to West Point for the National Tournament, which will encompass all districts in the United States."

"These schools," he continued, "are those who made application to go to West Point."

"This," said Olson, "does not include all schools in the area."

"Nebraska has been selected as host," he pointed out, "because it is in the center of the district, and because it is neutral."

"The winner," said Olson, "will receive a trophy."

Blue Print Changes Staff

Some shuffling has taken place on the staff of the Nebraska Blue Print, monthly engineering magazine.

Stanley Hargleroad, senior in mechanical engineering has taken over as business manager. His previous post was that of promotion manager.

Jim Hastert, junior, in chemical engineering was named treasurer. He has been assistant promotion manager.

New promotion manager is Leon Gompert, a senior in electrical engineering.

Other staff changes included Dennis Boesiger who was named assistant advertising manager and Mike Rediger who was appointed assistant layout manager.

Thank Offering Permitted Purchase

A $20,000 grant from the nationwide Thank Offering allowed the University Episcopal Chapel Campaign committee to purchase the Acacia house without incurring any debt, according to H. B. Boyden and Bishop Howard Brinker, co-chairman of the fund drive.

Boyden and Cramer said raising funds for the chapel is a responsibility of the entire diocese, since students from all over Nebraska are represented in the chapel.

Press Chief Leaves NU

Miss Schossberger Takes Chicago Job

Miss Emily Schossberger, editor of the University of Nebraska Press, has resigned this position, effective July 1. She has accepted the position of senior editor of the University of Chicago Press and will handle foreign editions.

Miss Schossberger, a native of Austria, speaks 5 languages. She came to the University in 1941 as university publications editor and the same year became the first editor of the University Press. The press has published 97 books under her editorship, including 7 during 1957.

Before coming to the U.S. in 1940, she was a sports writer for European papers. She was one of the few women sports editors in Europe. Her job previous to coming to Nebraska was assistant to the Editor of the Fordham University Press in New York.

In Lincoln, Miss Schossberger has won 7 city tennis championships in the women's singles, and several mixed doubles awards. In 1944 she was state women's singles tennis champ.

She is a member of Wooden Spoon, past president of the Holy Family Altar Society, and former member of Quota Club and the Lincoln Artists Guild.

Noise, Boys, 'n Trophies Grandpappy Cage Tournery Open

By George Moyer Sports Editor

Cowbells and poppoms, popcorn and cokes, base horns and pep clubs; and somewhere in the confusion, 24 basketball teams.

That's the Nebraska High School State Basketball Tournament which began last night in the University Coliseum. In 48 years, the tournament has become a statewide and University tradition with every prep club in Huskerland pointing for a berth in the "Big Show" from the first tipoff of the season, till the last gun is fired in the regional playoffs in February.

In 1911, a group of Nebraska school men and University officials banded together to organize the first state tournament. Purpose of the tournament was to provide a climax for the winter's sports struggle and give University officials a recruiting crack at prep stars. Incidentally, some of the schoolmen might also have wanted to settle once and for all the burning issues the relative prowess of their respective clubs.

In that granddaddy of all state tournaments, Beatrice emerged with the championship as only 21 clubs took part in one open class.

Tournery Boss C. C. Thompson, director of the Nebraska High School Activities Association, is the tournament director.

Some wonderful tails arise out of the old multi-class and team state tournaments however. John Bentley, University athletic publicist, recalls rushing around town on a motorcycle for the results of games that were being played in out of the way spots. "The sports page of the Journal was so full of agate type reporting results it looked like the market page," Bentley said.

Down through the years things got a good deal more complicated. By 1920, the tournament had expanded to 11 classes and 170 teams. An all time peak in confusion must have been reached in 1926 when 339 teams entered in 22 classifications. From that point on things began to be more reasonable.

In all probability, there weren't enough officials in the state with stomachs, feet, and heads strong enough to withstand a week of ducking pop bottles from irate partisans while at the same time keeping tabs on the court action.

Fred Deutsch, presently a Norfolk lawyer, recalls that chanting students paraded Lincoln streets after victories and the city was "a general madhouse for a full week."

In 1931, the tournament was returned to its original one class with 16 teams qualifying. In 1932, class B was added and 32 teams were made eligible. Class C came in in 1936 and the number of teams jumped to 48, with 16 teams in each class.

Class D was added in 1944 and the number of teams qualifying in each class was restricted to eight. In 1955, the number of classes was upped to six with four team allowed in each class.

Four Champs This year, four champions will return to defend their titles. The teams participating with Moyer's selections in boldface are:

Class AA Boys Town—defending champion, North Platte, Omaha Central and Lincoln High.

Class A—Omaha Holy Name (Defending champion), Falls City, Ogallala, Holdrege.

Class B—Fullerton, Minden, Wayne, Auburn.

Class C—Aima (defending champion), Pawnee City, Wausa, Hastings, St. Cecilia.

Class D—Clatonia, Red Willow, Herman, Ullyses.

Class E—Byron (defending champion), Elba, Raymond, Wilsonville.

Tentative IFC Officer Slate Announced

Smidt And Cadwallader Head Nominee List

Don Smidt and Gary Cadwallader have been nominated for candidacy for president of the Interfraternity Council, according to Dick Arneson, president.

The IFC slate, a constitutional requirement, was announced Wednesday by the IFC executive committee consisting of four officers and three faculty advisors.

"This slate is not the final nomination as candidates can be added from the floor," Arneson said.

Orchesis Performs Mar. 21-2

'Unusual' Show Slated In Howell

A gabfest turned into what may be one of the University's most "unusual" shows.

The Annual Orchesis modern dance performance, scheduled in the Howell Theatre next week end, is entitled "Syncopated Century."

And according to Kay Neilson publicity chairman, the show will highlight dances "from the horseless carriage to the rock and roll."

The title for the show, under the direction of Dorothy Maxwell, of the women's Department of Physical Education, was decided on in an impromptu fashion, Miss Neilson indicated.

"We just asked one another what the name should be and the talk led to "Syncopated Century," the Miss Nebraska of 1957, noted.

Some of the numbers being presented are "Soft Shoe," "Country Hoedown," "Beginnings of Modern Dance," "Charleston," "Blues," "Rock'n Roll'm," and "Martian Madness."

The show will be held March 20 and 21 at 8 p.m. in Howell Memorial Theatre. Admission is 50 cents.

Members of Orchesis are Judy Anderstrom, Jane Axtell, Joan Bailey, Penny Coats, Jeanne Denker, Elaine Eggen, Phyllis Elliot, Judy Gardner, Barb Hyland, Jackie Koepplin, Edythe Morrow, Kay Nielson, Karen Parsons, Sharon Quinn, Diane Rainey, Rosanne Rodgers, Terry Ross, Ruth Roubal, Noel Schoenrock, Karen Van Amburgh, Sally Wengert, Cindy Zschau, Sandra Camphe, Myrna Ems, and Millard McCormick.

"Some good men will no doubt be added from the floor," he added.

Election of officers will be a March 28.
