No Recession In Nebraska

Sales Dispell Depression Talk "Our indexes still give no hint of the recession," Nebraska business researchers said. Retail sales were reported 5.9 per cent above a year ago and 1.5 per cent above December, according to "Business in Nebraska," a bulletin prepared by the University's department of business research. Columbus lead the list with an increase of 22.2% over a year ago, Kearney followed with an increase of 17%. Alliance was third with 16.8%. Omaha showed an increase of 5.5 per cent over a year ago, but a drop of 2.6% as compared with December. Lincoln showed a drop of 1.1% from last year, but had an increase of 4.2% over December. Grand Island had a gain of 11.3% over last year, and had an 8.8% gain as compared with December. "Even the U.S. indexes which we use for comparison with Nebraska are not yet particularly affected. The recession had not, by December, affected such important series as bank deposits, retail sales, life insurance sales or employment other than manufacturing," the researchers said. However, manufacturing employment has dropped by five per cent in the U.S. and almost two per cent in Nebraska from a year before, the bulletin indicated. "The most surprising series is that representing construction. For this series to be better than a year before, during a recession, is a sign that contracting forces are at work," the bulletin said. "Recessions do not at first affect the consumer in general or business as a whole. They start with such things as heavy manufacturing and then spread more gradually to other lines," the bulletin explained.

Concert Drive Begins Opera Ballet On Agenda

The Lincoln Community Concert series, open to University students at a special rate for the 1958-59 season, is going to present one of the finest groups of programs possible, according to Bob Handy, publicity chairman for the non-profit organization. Budget Controversy Incited By Regent Foote's Statement

What started out to be a suggestion for a constructive study of the workings of the University Budget by the Regents has been construed to a suggestion that the University Administration was inadequate in handling the budget. Frank Foote, regent from Axtell, who made the initial statement said he had been misinterpreted to say that the Regents should keep a watchful eye on the budget and the processing by the Administration. Foote's statement said that there is a need for a more thorough study of University spending by the Regents. Foote commented that his statement was meant to suggest a constructive study of the budget and its set-up to enable the Regents to better give the final O.K. on the budget before it went to the governor and then to the state legislature the following spring. The University budget, noted, "in March of next year the Chicago Opera Ballet will be at the Pershing Municipal Auditorium to play to the members of the Community Concert group."

Comments from other regents contacted included: Clarence Swanson: I think the budget is handled as a big business would handle its business. Once Frank Foote sits through a budget proposal, I believe he will see that it gets big league attention. We believe it is in good hands, and it is being watched, too. Dr. B. N. Greenberg: I feel the chancellor and administration do an outstanding job in arriving at a definite budget. The Regents receive copies of the budget long before the Legislature opens and it is continually revised in the interest of efficient and economic operation. J. L. Welsh: As Regents,

Mortar Board's sixth annual Tour for International Students will be held March 31 through April 2, according to Evonne Einspahr and Marilyn Waechter co-chairmen. The three-day tour of Nebraska is planned to help acquaint University students from other countries with Nebraska and to let these students observe how people in the United States live. Enlarged The tour is always held during spring vacation. Last year it was enlarged from a two to a three-day program, because of the enthusiasm and appreciation of the international students, Miss Einspahr said. She added that many students who went on the tour last year are going again this year, because they enjoyed the tour and benefited from it. Thirty to 40 international students are expected to make the bus tour. They will be accompanied by several Mortar Boards and faculty sponsors. The tour will include Nebraska farms, industries and six towns. Leave Monday The group will leave Monday, March 31, at 8 a.m. for Fremont where they will visit a hatchery and a packing plant. From Fremont the tour goes to Columbus for lunch in the park and visits to local industries and the Lupp River Public Power Plant. Square Dancing At Curtis, the next stop, a special program of entertainment, including square dancing, will be presented by the University School of Agriculture. Footo said, takes the largest portion of the state tax dollar. Earlier interpretations brought comments from other regents that the administration was handling the budget processing adequately and that their was no need for the Regents to take a more definite hand in its set-up. The budget takes the largest portion of the state tax dollar next to that taken by the State Department of roads. This means that the University should be careful setting-up the budget and asking we are board of directors of an institution. We don't try to tell a general manager how to run his business after we have hired him to do this job. Chancellor Hardin and his staff are and have been competent, probably more than we would be if we attempted to do the work for which they were employed. C. Y. Thompson: I wish Frank Foote had wanted to present his proposal to the Regents, rather than through the press. The chancellor and his staff know what it takes to operate the University, far better than we would know. J. G. Elliott: My board service has not yet included a budget studying period. However, I can see no objections to the way it is being handled.
