

Selye Intellectual Values Emphasized

America needs to revamp its sense of values in our science-minded age to nurture among its people the "long-range courage of intellect."

This suggestion was made by Dr. Hans Selye, director of the Institute of Experimental Medicine of the University of Montreal, Thursday evening.

Strength

Discussing "The Function of Basic Research in Our Society," the second of three Montgomery Lectures, Dr. Selye said that "sudden courage—the type exhibited on the battlefield with a bayonet—and muscles" are not the type of strength needed to survive in the future.

"In contrast with short-lived courage and the physical strength of young muscles, intellectual values will become the decisive factor for future survival," he explained.

Dr. Selye expressed the belief that a nation should direct the natural tendency of man to fight and let off steam toward the unveiling of the mysteries of nature and the physical elements, such as the fight against disease.

Enemy

"It is important to a nation to realize that it is natural for man to struggle for some aim. And the nation must realize that the greatest enemy of man is nature, and, in turn, nature can help," he said.

The endocrinologist called for more emphasis on basic research in an effort to elevate in the public's mind the importance of the scientists and basic researchers.

Characteristics

Dr. Selye listed three characteristics of good basic research. "It must be true; generalizable, that is related to some general law and unexpected."

In addition these characteristics must occur simultaneously and at the particular time the research project is conducted, he explained.

Dr. Selye will deliver the final lecture of the series, "The Fatal Heart Accident," at the College of Medicine in Omaha on Friday.

Spear Shoots For Regent Job

William Spear, a Fremont attorney, has announced his candidacy for election to the Third District of the University Board of Regents.

Spear, a 1933 graduate of the University and former president of the Alumni Association, is seeking the non-political post held by C. Y. Thompson of West Point, president of the Board, who will not run again.

Spear, in filing for the office, stated that he would do everything he could to strengthen the University and insure "that we get a full measure of good education for the tax dollar."

P. M. Moodie, West Point attorney, and Richard Adkins Osmond banker, filed for the post earlier.

Eight Men Pledged By Sigma Delta Chi

Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, pledged eight University men at a dinner Tuesday night.

The new pledges are: Delmar Hood, Carroll Kraus, Don Willey, Bob Ireland, George Moyer, Sam Hall, Ron Speer, and Ernie Hines.

Kraus, Ireland and Hines are reporters for the Lincoln Journal. Hall is a reporter and Speer is assistant sports editor for the Lincoln Star. Rockwell is on the staff of KUON, the University television station.

Moyer is sports editor. Kraus is a copy editor, and Hines is editorial editor for the Daily Nebraskan.

Hood and Willey both hold degrees, and are undergraduates in journalism.

Initiation will be May 9.

Drill Competition

A drill competition will be held at 5 p.m. Thursday in the Drill Hall of the Military and Naval Science Building.

Drill squads from the 1st and 2nd battalions will be competing. The public may attend.

THE LAST GOOD-BY — Barbara Brittin, Alpha Phi senior, tries a warm smile, despite chilly seat, as she says farewell to the last sign of winter, and greets the first day of spring.

Winter, Begone!

Overcoats Mothballed, Campus Greets Spring

No more icicles; no more snow! Spring is here, and away we go in our bright pink 1958 Thunderbird, or our MG with the top down, or our Volkswagen, with the top up.

Spring officially breezed in on her magic green carpet at 9:06 p.m. Thursday, but Cornhuskers began celebrating her arrival Thursday morning.

To The North Wind

Overcoats, boots, and mittens were thrown to the north wind as students walked leisurely to their early classes in the bright, lukewarm sunlight.

By noon softballs had replaced the worn-out snow balls flying around fraternity row.

Dirty, scraggly patches of snow huddled in shadowed corners against brick walls, trying to escape the warming sunlight. The only decent-looking snow pile on campus was occupied by Barbara Brittin.

The warmer the sun grew,

Student Bucks Buy Car Space

The Campus Police, often recipients of wrathful protests from students who have been given parking tickets, are not dedicated entirely to snatching the student's dollar before he can spend it on social interests.

In fact, the parking ticket dollar is spent on exactly what the ticket receiver needs—parking lots. Last year, according to Sgt. John Furrow of the Campus Police, the $5,000 collected for fines, along with the $3,500 for permits, was spent mainly on rocks for the lots. Along with the gravel, the fines finance preparation of the lot and a good deal of curbing.

Sorenson Named 'Flying Cornhusker'

Dr. Frank Sorenson of the University education department was presented a "Flying Cornhusker Educational" award today which named him dean of the Nebraska Air Age Education.

The award was presented at the annual Air Age Clinic on the University campus.

The clinic is sponsored by the University and the Aeronautics department for Nebraska teachers.

The clinic began last night, will be held today and Saturday.

Lt. Col. George Keegan of Davis Monthan Air Force Base, Tucson, Arizona, is the main speaker.

Ivy Day Sing Entries Due

Chairmen List Three Deadlines

Three deadlines for the Inter-fraternity and sorority Ivy Day Sings to be held in May have been announced by the respective chairmen.

Fraternity song titles are due to John Glynn, 1515 R Street, chairman of the fraternity sing, by March 30. In case of duplication the song title received first will have priority.

The deadline for the $3 entry fee, the song, the leader's name and an alphabetical list of the singers participating, both fraternities and sororities, is April 9.

Sororities should mail this entry fee and information to Phyl Bonner, 1541 S Street, chairman of the sorority sing. Fraternities are to send their entry fee and song information to Glynn.

A joint meeting of both fraternity and sorority song leaders will be held in Union 316, April 24 at 5 p.m., Miss Bonner said.

Sandberg Will Edit Law Review

Lawrence Sandberg Jr. has been elected the new editor-in-chief of the Nebraska Law Review, according to Edmund Belsheim, Dean of the College of Law.

Sandberg succeeds Philip Sorenson.

The review, published quarterly, is sponsored jointly by the University College of Law and the Nebraska Bar Association.

Butler Shaffer and Donald Wilson were named by Sandberg as executive editors.

New members of the board of editors, which selects the editor-in-chief, are Arlyss Welch and Wincel Nelson. Scott Van Alstyne, assistant professor of law, is the faculty advisor.

Sandberg, Shaffer, Wilson, Welch and Nelson are students in the Law College.

Council Approves Conduct Proposal

Original Resolution Introduced By Freed, Rogge Revamped

A recommendation to "gather and make available" student conduct rules was passed by the Student Council Wednesday.

The motion was made by Dwaine Rogge, chairman of the council social committee.

It recommended:

"That the University of Nebraska division of student affairs with the aid of Student Council gather and make available to the student body the rules and regulations concerning individual student conduct."

This recommendation was a reworded and shortened form of the original resolution introduced by Ken Freed two weeks ago.

Helen Gourlay, council president, ruled that the social committee would supervise carrying out the recommendation.

The social committee is composed of Rogge, Ken Freed, and Judy Chapman.

In the discussion on the motion Freed pointed out that the regulations already existed. The council proposes that they be clarified and brought into one place readily available to students.

Rules are presently set forth in the board of regents by-laws, organization eligibility sheets, and the Cornhusker Handbook.

The council proposes to make clear and definite rules available in the form of a handout sheet for all students or as a part of the Husker Handbook.

Herb Friedman reported that he had received several complaints about the parking situation at 17th and Vine. He stated that petitions would have to be presented indicating that a real problem existed before any action could be taken, however.

Candidates for College representatives on the SC must have 25 signatures of bona fide members of their college on their blanks to file.

Organization representative do not need the signatures but they must file on the official blanks.

Tour Registration Extended By MBs

The deadline for students wishing to sign up for the Mortar Board's Annual Tour for International Students has been extended.

Because some students could not attend the Tuesday meeting, they may still register by contacting Mortar Board, Ext. 4228 (Cornhusker Office) or by leaving a note in the Mortar Board mailbox.

Matrix Dinner

The annual Matrix Dinner will be given Saturday at 6:30 in the Union.

Mary Prime, of New York City, a United Press feature columnist, will be speaker at the dinner.

Chief Justice Will Speak

Voc Ed Banquet To Host Simmons

Robert Simmons, Chief Justice of the Nebraska Supreme Court, will be the guest speaker at the annual Vocational Education—Alpha Tau Alpha Banquet Thursday at 6:30 p.m., in the Union Ballroom.

Co-chairmen of the banquet, Richard Kroll and Mary Berger, stated that the banquet theme "Steps to Success" will be featured in the decorations and throughout the program.

Committee Chairmen

The committee chairmen are: program, Paula Lindquist and Norman Hust; entertainment, Barbara Raymond and Bill Coffey; decoration, Merca Dee Bonde and Elmer Miller; tickets, Ruth Roubal and Richard Weisheimer; publicity, Sharon Sterner and Dwaine Hoffart; special invitation, Ruth Albin and Charles Keep; and courtesy, Patsy Kaufman and Norval McCashlin.

Tickets

Tickets are $1.60 each and can be purchased from: Rose Tondl and Barbara Breunbach, Love Hall; Joyce Evans, Alpha Xi Delta; Verna Boulton, Polly Moller and Ardyth Ehlers, Residence Halls for Women. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Faculty members and students of vocational education and their families are invited to the banquet.

AGRs Train Area Officers

Approximately 70 men from surrounding Alpha Gamma Rho Chapters at Colorado State, Iowa State, North Dakota, and Minnesota are expected to attend an officers' training school to be held in Lincoln this week-end, according to Larry Hendrix, publicity chairman.

The program will include talks by Dean Lambert, Dean of the College of Agriculture, and Dr. F. Eldridge, Associate Director of Resident Instruction on Ag Campus. Four sorority girls, Joyce Evans, Alpha Xi Delta, Joan Norris, Delta Gamma, Ann Klosterman, Chi Omega, and Bev Buck, Kappa Alpha Theta, will give their view of fraternities in a panel discussion.

'Bunny Hop' Aids Crippled Kids

Speech Department, Easter Seal Society Join Hands

From the Bunny Hop to Helping Crippled Children.

That's a composite picture of the activities of the Crippled Children's Society and its right-hand man in helping handicapped youngsters, the University's department of speech.

Dr. LeRoy Laase, chairman of the department, said that the Easter Seal Lily Parade which will take place next Thursday, will be only one in a series of activities designed to aid the Crippled Children's Society which has come from his department.

"The speech department began its association with the Crippled Children's Society 18 years ago when there was a demand for field clinics in speech and speech rehabilitation. The Society financed the many clinics we began along with an extension course in speech therapy," Laase indicated.

Since that time the Crippled Children's Society has helped pay for University personnel who have conducted 92 field clinics, the speech professor and state president-elect of the Crippled Children's Society noted.

The clinics were conducted by Ernest Burgi, Harlan Adams and Jon McGee.

Educational psychology clinics have also been sponsored financially by the Crippled Children's Society utilizing trained specialists of the University under the direction of Dr. Dean A. Worcester of the Department of educational psychology and measurements.

"In fact," Laase said, "the special education program in the state of Nebraska can be attributed in part to the Crippled Children's Society. The Society makes it a point to provide funds to get special education programs underway."

Hearing Testing
At present, the Crippled Children's Society is establishing a statewide program of hearing testing through the University of Nebraska.

Charles Anderson, who obtained his masters degree in audiology from the University, is conducting field clinics in hearing around the state and conferring with parents and teachers regarding hearing problems.

The Crippled Children's Society, which will receive part of the All University Funds' total collection next year, spends about 70 per cent of the collection on county services.

"Here in Lancaster County," Laase, county chairman of the organization, noted, "the funds go to support a summer day camp for crippled children, and transportation to and from Park School for the physically handicapped."

Clinic

And directly connected with the University is an instructor whose salary is paid in part by the Society. She conducts the pre-school clinic held daily in the Temple Building.

"This clinic helps train teachers who are working for degrees in education or in speech therapy," Laase added.

Elizabeth Moody is the present pre-school instructor in the University's clinic.

"Our goal in the clinic is to help children with delayed speech prepare to enter school," he noted. Nearly every type of speech problem is worked with in the clinic, ranging from cerebral palsied children to the hard of hearing.

Laase said the relationship between the Crippled Children's Society is "mutually advantageous." "We're both interested in helping handicapped children. We're interested in helping train more therapists and the Society plays a big part there on a national level supplying scholarships and grants. Two NU students have received the scholarships in recent years."

Sororities Help

And the Bunny Hop or the Lily Parade? "That was the idea of Dr. Lucille Cyprean-sen of our department," Laase said. "The clinicians originally dressed as bunnies and collected funds for the Society before Easter. Now the parade has grown so much we have five sororities helping this year."

Laase said they are Gamma Phi Beta, Alpha Chi Omega, Sigma Delta Tau, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Chi Omega.
