Bomb Hits Sink—Tears In Beer

It was a crying shame, but dozens of Friday Afternoon Clubbers at the University of Colorado had their fun marred the other day when someone threw a tear gas bomb into the Sink.

The unknown culprit's bomb caused the Sink faithful to evacuate the popular Boulder pub, crying in their beer as they left.

Joe Beimford, owner of this establishment which has entertained many migrating Nebraskans in the past, had more than one reason to cry.

Beimford estimated that he lost about 75 per cent of his daily business during the hours he was forced to close up.

Cosmo Nominees

Cosmopolitan Club will present its nominees for 1958-59 officers at a meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Union ballroom.

Nominations from the floor will also be accepted, according to Ken Ackbaril, president.

Emily States Name Rules Brides Face Numerous Problems

With June less than a month away many girls are going to be getting married and changing their names. According to Emily Post there are definitely accepted rules about the use of a new married name.

A girl's name was Gayle Anne Smith before her marriage. She married Herman George Jingo, Mrs. Herman George Jingo then becomes her formal name. Gayle Smith Jingo becomes her informal name. There are times and places for using the formal and the informal names, Emily Post says.

Visiting Cards
The formal name should be engraved on the new visiting card—Mrs. Herman George Jingo. There must be no abbreviations. Initials are bad form on a visiting card or a formal invitation, and are preferably not used in the formal name. One may wonder what to do if one's husband has adopted a business or professional abbreviation of his name, as H. G. Jingo, and is widely known in that way.

The answer is that the formal name is still Mrs. Herman George Jingo, Emily Post says, and should be used on all social occasions.

Business
Only in some business transactions should it be necessary to use it for special identification, in shortened form. Monograms on wedding stationery, silver, or linens may be either G. S. J. or S. A. G.

In signing letters, even business letters, a girl should never sign her name Mrs. Herman George Jingo—indeed never sign letters, "Mrs." anything! The correct letter signature is the informal—Gayle Smith Jingo.

May one ever sign a letter "Mrs. Gayle Smith Jingo?" Emily Post says the answer is a strong "No." It is never correct unless one is especially requested to use this form on legal documents.

No matter how high a title a bride's husband may have, or may later achieve a wife has no claim to it in her own signature or address. "Mrs. Dr. Jingo," and "Mrs. Judge Jingo" are both in bad taste. If a bride has a title and her husband does not, she may use it in the same form it is used professionally.

Chemical Engineers

The American Institute of Chemical Engineers will have a meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Avery 324.

Officers will be elected, according to Jerry Steinmeyer, corresponding secretary.

Kessler Gets Top Office In Honorary

Eleanor Kessler has been elected president of the newly initiated members of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman scholarship honorary.

Other officers elected at the initiation ceremonies Monday were Judy Mooman, vice president, Judy Williams, secretary, Dorothy Sellentin, treasurer, and Sandra Sanger, historian.

Former Alpha Lambda Delta sponsor, Miss Winona Perry, was guest at the initiation.

Outgoing president Marilyn Pickett was chosen junior advisor for the group. A senior advisor will be chosen from members of Mortar Boards who are Alpha Lambda Delta members.

Mrs. Walter Blore spoke to the initiates on Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi, honorary scholastic societies.

Initiates were: Sonia Anderson, Janice Bartling, Elizabeth Blore, Barbara Bourelle, Thelma Christensen, Regina Denker, Elaine Falken, Eleanor Kessler, Judy Mooman, Sheryl Oberg, Patricia Porter, Anita Retchless, Sylvia Rodehorst, Linda Rohwedder, Sandra Sanger, Mary Schmelzer, Sherry Schuett, Dorothy Sellentin, Carol Vermaes and Judy Williams.

Teachers Frat Elects Beckman

Wayne Beckman was elected president of Mu Epsilon Nu, Teachers College professional fraternity for men, at a meeting last Friday.

Other officers elected were L. M. Tarvin, vice president; Larry Perkins, secretary; Larry Schrag, treasurer; membership chairman, Ken Bliss.

An award will be presented to the outstanding high school teacher at the next meeting, 7 p.m. Saturday. The dinner meeting will feature Dr. Earle Wittse, superintendent of the Grand Island schools as speaker.

Parking Dispute Hits Chapel Hill

So we think we have a parking problem at NU!

At the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, students have threatened to boycott the town merchants, theatres and restaurants if the Aldermen do not reconsider a proposal to install parking meters on the university.

"It will be the most complete boycott this community has ever witnessed," stated Don Furtado, student body president.

"Such a measure will definitely stamp on their minds that the students are the life-blood of Chapel Hill," he continued.

Students claimed that meters would pose a money problem as well as deface some of Chapel Hill's beauty.

Sig Tau Society Initiates 23 New Engine Students

Twenty-three University engineering students were initiated into Sigma Tau, national engineering honorary.

Dr. Clyde Hyde and Dr. John Vickers, associate professors of electrical engineering, and John Olson of Lincoln were also initiated into the society at the organization's annual banquet.

New initiates are Vernon Bollesen, Douglas Braunsroth, Donald Cox, Delmar Fangmeier, LeRoy Gerlach, Carroll Goering, Ivan Goering.

Kermit Goetsche, Howard Kirsch, Jaroslav Kohl, Emil Koval, Larry Larsen, Buddy Miles, Ronald Nall, Ronald Stephen Pawelski.
