Outside World Jupiter Nose Found

Sunday marked the first time that a full-scale nose cone—heart of a ballistic missile—had been retrieved intact after apparently functioning perfectly during flight.

The Army Jupiter rocket launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., dropped its elaborately equipped nose cone in the Atlantic 4½ hours later.

Princess Visits—Exit Patient

London newspapers reported that when Princess Margaret paid a visit to a hospital, a patient was dismissed because his name might have embarrassed her.

Frederick Townsend was released from the hospital just before her visit. After paying her respects to hospital inmates, the papers report that the princess had tea with none other than Peter Townsend.

Lord Byron In Leningrad

Genuine Lord Byron manuscripts have been reportedly dug up in Leningrad. Prof. Mikhail Alexeyev of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, says a study of the manuscripts showed a number of them to be "genuine Byroniana."

Place For Old Liquor

ACP Poll Send Sis To Small School

Minneapolis (ACP) — Just as they probably would if they were advising their younger brother about attending college, American college students would generally tell their younger sisters to go to a smaller school. In a recent release, Associated Collegiate Press indicated that fifty-nine per cent of the college and university students interviewed would tell their brothers to attend a smaller school.

In a similar query, ACP's National Poll of Student Opinion received answers which indicate that a majority of the men and women in American colleges today would also give the same advice to their younger sisters. However, a greater proportion of coeds than men would give this advice to their sisters. This is exactly opposite to the earlier case, when more men than coeds felt they would advise their younger brothers to go to a smaller college.

The question asked of a representative group of students across the nation is as follows: Suppose you have a younger sister who will be starting college next year. Would you advise her to go to a larger university (say 10,000 students or more) or would you advise her to go to a smaller school of one or two thousand students?

Men and women split almost even on the alternative of advising young sister to attend a large university. Twenty-nine per cent of the men and thirty per cent of the women gave this answer, but only forty-eight per cent of the men, as opposed to sixty-one per cent of the coeds, felt they would prefer their younger sister to attend a smaller college.

A complete tabulation of the results:

	Men	Women	Total
Advise sister to attend larger university	29%	30%	29%
Advise sister to attend a smaller school	48%	61%	54%
No preference stated	13%	7%	10%
Undecided	10%	2%	7%

More men than women fell into both the "no preference" and "undecided" categories of answers to this question. Thirteen per cent of the men and only seven per cent of the women would not state a preference. Similarly, a tenth of the men, as opposed to an almost negligible two per cent of the coeds, had not made up their minds. Seniors Differ

In only one case—that of seniors — did proportionally more men than women feel their younger sisters should attend a smaller college. Fifty-three per cent of the senior men interviewed, and only thirty-eight per cent of the senior coeds, gave this answer. Inversely, nearly half of the senior coeds as opposed to slightly less than a third of the senior men, felt they would advise their sisters to attend a larger university.

Paris Jaunt Lures Talent Vogue Contest Open To Senior Writers

Paris, cash and a flying start on a career — these are the prizes in Vogue's 24th Prix de Paris, open to all college seniors who will complete work on a bachelor's degree by summer of 1959.

The Prix de Paris, Vogue's annual, nation-wide search for new writing and editorial talent, offers college seniors prizes as well as top consideration for jobs on the Conde Nast publications.

The first prize is an all expense paid trip to Paris or $1,000. Second prize is $500 while the next ten highest contestants will receive $25 each.

All twelve winners will receive first chance at jobs on Vogue magazine or its associated publications. Other promising contestants will receive strong recommendation for other jobs in publishing, merchandising and advertising.

Deadline for Prix entries is October 20, 1958. Entrants must complete two quizzes of four questions each using Vogue as a textbook. If both quizzes are answered satisfactorily, entrants will write a 1,500 word thesis on one of several topics submitted by Vogue.

Enrollment blanks may be obtained by writing the Prix de Paris Director, Vogue, 420 Lexington Ave., New York, 17, N. Y.

If you're ready to purchase a diamond ring you can't afford not to call us at 3-7769.

Among the men, freshmen were the most undecided on the issue. Nineteen per cent of them, as opposed to eleven per cent of the sophomores, no juniors and eight per cent of the seniors, did not have their minds made up. The only coeds expressing indecision were the freshmen. Seven per cent of them gave "undecided" for an answer.

Breakdown
The following class breakdowns for both men and women will indicate a rather interesting trend among the students who were undecided. With the exception of junior men, each succeeding year in college produced a smaller percentage of "don't know" answers. The same holds true for the coeds, since the only undecided persons among them were freshmen.

The complete class breakdown for men:

Class	Fresh	Soph	Jun	Sen
Advise sister to attend a larger univ.	44%	22%	20%	31%
Advise sister to attend a smaller school	31%	51%	60%	53%
No preference stated	6%	16%	20%	1%
Undecided	19%	11%	10%	8%

And the complete class breakdown for coeds:

Class	Fresh	Soph	Jun	Sen
Advise sister to attend a larger univ.	14%	43%	22%	9%
Advise sister to attend a smaller school	72%	50%	78%	30%
No preference stated	7%	8%	13%	1%
Undecided	7%	7%	13%	1%
