

AS Profs To Study Change

Proposal Grows Into Full Probe

A proposal that geography be made one of the substitutes in the social studies group requirement Tuesday grew into a full scale study of all group requirements in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Walter Miltzer, dean of Arts and Sciences, said that at a meeting Tuesday the college faculty agreed to set up a committee to study group requirements for all degrees.

A motion was introduced by the geography department but was not voted on because of a substitute motion made by Robert Chasson, chairman of the physics department, to broaden the scope of the study.

No Affect

Any change in the requirements would not affect students already enrolled in the University. The first group that could be affected by a requirement revision would be students entering in the fall of 1959, Dean Miltzer said.

The committee to study group requirements has not yet been named.

This study will be "chief item of business next fall," according to Dean Miltzer.

Several months ago the proposal was first made to make geography be classified in the social studies group.

General Study

"This should not be taken as a turning down of geography but rather as a step toward a more general study," Miltzer added.

The Arts and Sciences faculty, he said, considered this an appropriate time to consider the entire curriculum rather than only one portion of it.

Dr. Leslie Hewes, chairman of the geography department said his department originally submitted a proposal to make geography one of the categories under the social studies requirement because most research in geography is a social study.

Masquers Plan Contest

One-Act Plays Will Vie For $25

First prize of $25 will be awarded the winner of the all-University one-act play-writing contest which will be sponsored by Nebraska Masquers during the next academic year, according to Steve Schultz, president.

Complete rules of the contest, announced today, are as follows:

1. The contest is open to any student, faculty member or employee of the University of Nebraska.

2. All plays must be in one act and must be original, not translations or adaptations. If the play has been previously produced, a statement giving the time and place of presentation should accompany the script.

3. Manuscripts must be typewritten on one side of the page and securely bound. The author's name must not appear on the manuscript, but an entry blank giving name and address must be placed in a sealed envelope attached to the manuscript. Neither Masquers nor the judges will assume liability for the loss of manuscripts, but every precaution will be taken to return them.

4. Any number of plays may be submitted by an author.

5. Entries must be mailed or personally delivered to the office of University Theatre, 108 Temple, by 5:00 p.m., November 14, 1958.

6. Nebraska Masquers reserve the right to produce, royalty free, any of the entries during the academic year of 1958-59.

Schultz said that judges will be announced at a later date. According to the Masquers' president, three prizes will be awarded with a $25 prize for first place.

NU Facelifting May Surprise

Temporaries To Go; Grass To Grow

When the student returns to the University next fall, what changes in the face of the campus can he expect to see?

Carl A. Donaldson, business manager of the University, forecasts the following.

Landscape
The green area in front of the administration building will be landscaped to blend with the area in front of the library.

Temporary A should be missing and the old student health building gone. In their place will be temporary parking facilities plus a strip in the middle of the mall, landscaped to blend with the area running from the library to the carillon tower.

The old pharmacy building located south of the girls P. E. building is due to come down this fall.

"The old green monster" as Donaldson described the temporary building north of Architectural Hall is to meet the fate of Ellen Smith.

"Student health should be in full operation and pharmacy ready to roll," the business manager said.

The average student will have quite a surprise, he commented, at the progress on the Union. The "exterior skin", should be finished before cold weather.

Ag Views
On Ag campus, a landscaped and grassy area around the dorms should make the view more attractive.

The new biochemistry building is hoped to be in full operation.

The element of doubt that lingers with forecasts was expressed by Donaldson when he said, "Bring back those predictions next fall and let me check the score."

Outstanding Nebraskan: New Nominations Boost Nine Students, Teachers

Nomination of two faculty members and seven students has brought the final tally of Outstanding Nebraskan nominees to five faculty members and ten students.

The award is presented each semester to a faculty member and a student who have made outstanding contributions to the University.

New Nominations
Letters of nominations were received Tuesday for faculty members Lane Lancaster, professor of political science and Robert Knoll, associate professor of English and students Keith Gardner, Nancy Coover, Helen Goulay, Arthur Weaver, Nancy Copeland, Gary Reimers and Glen Anderson.

The letter nominating Lane Lancaster states he is "a recognized authority in the field of local government" who "has a grand manner in class."

Retiring chairman of the political science department and first recipient of the Distinguished Teaching award, Lancaster "encourages students to teach themselves and to think issues out."

Dr. Robert Knoll, associate professor of English, was nominated because "he is interested in student affairs."

The letter states "he is easy to go to for counseling and understanding" and "by serving on such various campus activities as Pub Board and student council, he has shown the students that he takes a sincere interest in their activities."

Mandel, Shapiro Plays Ready

Philosophy, Chance Feature 'Experiments'

Theatre-goers attending Howell Memorial Theatre this weekend will view productions by the experimental theatre, written by two University professors, which have never before been staged.

Karl Shapiro's "A Telescope for the Emperor" and Dr. Oscar Mandel's "The Molecules" will be presented Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m.

Admission will be 50 cents. No seats will be reserved.

Philosophy
"A philosophical thriller," was the description given by Dr. Mandel of his play.

"Almost like a who-done-it," Mandel said. The play concerns the murder of an American major behind enemy lines in Italy during World War II.

The play shows that you can get killed whether you are on the winning or the losing side.

"Life of an individual is a matter of chance whereas history is a matter of cause and effect," he said. "Destiny is completely erratic."

Explaining the choice of the title for the play, the English professor said, "The individual himself is a molecule; the way he goes is determined by chance."

Second Play
The play is the second of Dr. Mandel's to be presented at the University. His "Garden of Asclepius" played at University theatre last year.

"A Telescope for the Emperor" is the first play written by Karl Shapiro.

Two historical incidents forming one of the paradoxes of history is the play's basis.

The detention camps for Japanese Americans which were set up in the United States during the period after 1941 is the scene for one part of the play.

Admiral Perry's expeditions to Japan in 1853 form the second part of the play.

SC Committee Issues Social Clarification

Husker Handbook Will Publish Rules; Freed Hopes for Separate Printing

A three-page compilation of social conduct rules for students will be presented to the Student Council today.

The report was requested earlier this year when council member Ken Freed introduced a motion to codify and clarify the rules governing social conduct.

The findings of the Council social committee, consisting of Freed, Dwaine Rogge and

The original resolution to modify the rules, presented to the Council Feb. 26, read in part:

"Whereas the only declaration of policy is contained in the Rules of the Board of Regents, chapter three, section seven stating students are to conduct themselves in accordance with the rules of morality and decency which obtain in well-ordered communities, and to refrain from any conduct injurious to the good name of the University,

"Therefore, be it resolved, "That the University of Nebraska's Division of Student Affairs clarify and codify the rules of social conduct pertaining to the students of the University."

"Whim or What" Freed, who on March 19 was quoted as saying students don't know whether it's "whim or what" that determines the administration of social and conduct probation, said Tuesday he is satisfied with the codification "for the time being."

"Eventually I hope to see something like other universities have. Pamphlets are put out at many schools that outline social rules," he said.

This would be his idea of the next logical step here, he indicated.

A separate listing of the conduct rules will be printed as well as appearing in the handbook, according to Gary Frenchel, council vice-president.

The council social committee met with Dean Phillip Colbert, Dean Helen Snyder and Dean Frank Hallgren in working out the list.

The codification is "just an interpretation of the statement by the Board of Regents," Colbert said. It will not require passage by any faculty group since it is solely a way of explaining the rules to students, he said.

The codification is "just an interpretation by the Board of Regents," Colbert said. It will not require passage by any faculty group since it is solely a way of explaining the rules to students, he said.

"Improvement" "It is an improvement, certainly," Miss Snyder said. She agreed that it would be beneficial to students to have the information on rules governing their behavior more available to students.

"It would be better to distribute the Husker Handbook more widely rather than have a separate printing," Miss Snyder said.

"I do feel that you can't get too detailed in a thing like that (the codification). Each law has different interpretations," she added.

She pointed out that in civil and criminal law, most of the laws are sufficiently broad to allow a large group of cases to fall under it. The same, she said, is true with the rules governing student behavior.
