NU Grows Building Spree Blooms

The fruits of construction started several years ago have been the most striking examples of new building on the University campus this year, according to Carl A. Donaldson, business manager of the University.

Most prominent landmarks on the campus are the new Administration Building, Student Health and Lyman Hall, new pharmacy headquarters. But these buildings, although of most interest to the public in the recent construction stage, stirred the emotions of the business staff most when the plans for the construction were merely announced, Donaldson said.

Other large University construction projects are the Union addition, quickly rising in its 15th and S St. lot, and chemistry building on the Agriculture campus, hoped to be ready for classes next fall.

More Construction
Other campus additions this year were Fedde and Burr Halls on the Ag campus and the Mueller planetarium, added to the south side of Morrill Hall.

And where from here? Donaldson said that the proposed Kellogg Center for Continuing Education is still very much in the "dream stage."

Also in the planning stage is the proposed 1000-bed men's dormitory, to be built on the city campus, and a 100-apartment building for married couples on Ag campus.

Backyard Nixed
For the near future, however, the pharmacy grounds will probably be planted with grass, to keep the area from looking like an unsightly "backyard" for the Social Sciences Building.

Primary features planned for this summer will be landscaping of the areas around the Administration Building and around the new Ag College dormitories. With the destruction of the remaining temporaries, A and student health, temporary parking facilities plus a strip in the middle of that mall, landscaped to blend with the area running from the library to the carillon tower, are planned.

Thing Of Beauty
No construction is planned on the mall, Donaldson said, since the people of Nebraska feel that there should be some open areas on the campus and have the mall "eventually returned to a thing of beauty."

With the addition of the Elgin property to the University new additions will be made, with the possible shift of several departments there.

Cost of all this? It's hard to determine a cost, when there overall on even for a year, Donaldson says. The cost estimates are made while the buildings are very much in the planning stage and can hardly be set down to a certain figure.

All in all, the face of the campus is changing rapidly, a pleasant surprise to old grads who return to the University after several years away.

Exam Week Rules Told For Gals

AWS Orders Go Into Effect Monday

AWS exam week rules will go into effect Monday, according to Nan Carlson, AWS president.

The rules apply in all women's dormitories and organized houses.

Rules are as follows:

1. Quiet hours will be strictly observed except from noon to 1 p.m. and from 5-7 p.m. These same hours will be observed on week ends.
2. Men may be in houses during the regular calling hours but are expected to observe quiet hours.
3. Downs are not in effect.
4. Regular closing hours will be in effect Monday through Thursday. First semester freshmen may also have 10:30 p.m. closing hours.
5. Hours will be extended until 12 midnight Thursday, May 29, since there will be no exams on Memorial Day.
6. Students may obtain permission to go home during finals from their house chaperon, but no Lincoln overnights will be granted except on week ends.
7. Wednesday and Thursday, June 4-5, will be 12 o'clock nights for seniors. With these two exceptions, seniors are asked to abide by all AWS rules concerning closing hours.

Northwestern Journalists Offered Realistic Training

Chicago City News Bureau Base For J-Grads Unique Operation

The City News Bureau of Chicago and Northwestern University's Medill school of journalism will offer an "on the job training program" for graduate students in journalism this September.

Under the program, 16 selected graduate students in journalism will enroll for a six-credit-hour, two-quarter course called Professional Reporting. They will spend three days each week as members of the reporting staff of the City News Bureau covering city, state and federal news. Once a week they will meet for a three-hour class.

Students enrolled in the course will receive full credit toward the master of science degree in journalism at Northwestern. Enrollment will not delay the student's graduation.

Students will receive pay at the regular City News rates. This will amount to approximately a year's tuition at Northwestern.

The program is the first of its kind in the nation. It was developed after nearly a year of study by a special committee of Chicago editors and the Northwestern journalism faculty.

Practical Reporting
Dean of Northwestern's journalism college, I.W. Colo, said that "this program offers to our students a unique opportunity to use the nation's second largest city and a world publishing center as a reporting laboratory. Through this arrangement, selected students can obtain reporting education under circumstances which cannot be duplicated."

Isaac Gershman, managing editor of City News, praised the program as a "sincere effort on the part of Northwestern University and Chicago publishers representing the journalism profession to bridge the gap between the classroom and the newsroom."

"The student who combines the rigorous program leading to the master's degree at Northwestern with the demanding basic training provided by the City News Bureau will have obtained what in my opinion is the finest preparation for a career in journalism," he said.

Approximately half of the graduate students in the Northwestern journalism program are from colleges and universities other than Northwestern.

WHAT! Sell 'MY' Books?

HI CORNHUSKERS:

As most of you know the NEBRASKA BOOK STORE buys back at all times the books you no longer need. We are now entering that period of the year when you are most concerned about selling your books. Since there is certain information regarding the repurchase and resale of textbooks that will be of value and interest to all of you, we have composed the following copy. This is an effort to help students understand what determines the prices they receive. Through such understanding, we feel that both the bookstore and the students will benefit.

You are interested in receiving the best price possible for the books you no longer need. It is to our best interest that you receive the highest price possible.

WHAT DETERMINES THE PRICE PAID FOR BOOKS?

Why aren't all books repurchased at the same percentage and why isn't it more?

The books you have to sell at the end of each semester will usually be of three types.

1. Books that will be used again the following term at the University of Nebraska.
2. Books that will no longer be used here, but are in considerable demand at other schools.
3. Books that will no longer be used here, and are not in large demand elsewhere.

Books in category one will, of course, be worth the most money. These books are normally repurchased at 50% of the retail price. They are resold by the bookstore at 70%.

Books of the second category are repurchased at varying prices, depending on the age of the books, the popularity of the subject and general supply and demand conditions on the national market. This will usually vary from 20% to 40% of the list price. The discontinued books for which we pay the best price are: those which are in the greatest demand. For on those that we resell the quickest we can take a small margin. When we resell a book on the national wholesale market it is sold for 45% of the original price.

Books of the third category must be purchased—if at all—at a price that will take into account the fact that many of them will never be resold. A textbook is an article that generally cannot be "cleared" by reducing the price, as very few people are interested in an old textbook unless it is required in a course. When the limited demand of this type is filled the balance often must be discarded.

WHICH BOOKS SHOULD I SELL?

Most books acquired by a student during his college career have limited reference value. This is for two reasons. One is that most of the information that might be needed later is scattered through many books, and is more readily available in other single volumes. The other reason is that new books are always being published and older books revised and brought up to date. Most of the books you now have are probably copyrighted within the last four years and will probably be revised in a similar period. Those books which have permanent reference value are better kept than sold.

WHY SELL YOUR BOOKS TO NEBRASKA BOOK STORE?

By utilizing the buying service of a wholesale book company, it is possible to give you more money for all your books than would otherwise be possible. You receive the top price on books that are to be used here again. Discontinued books can be marketed best by a company specializing in that function. There are in use today more than 14,000 different titles in colleges throughout the United States with only four companies dealing in textbook wholesaling. This should indicate to you the highly specialized nature of the business. Our buyers know the wholesale market well, and that knowledge enables us to pay higher prices.
