

Foot Following Termed Major 'Value' Dilemma

"All the child can do is follow the feet ahead of him and what happens if he follows the wrong feet?"

This was the comment made by Lucile Lindberg, professor of Elementary Education of Queens College N.Y. at the Moral and Spiritual Values Clinic attended last week by a packed house at Love Memorial auditorium.

How is a child to know who's feet to follow? she asked. Her formula is to give the child instruction on how to choose but not to dictate instruction. Dictated instructions break down when the going gets tough. Such is the high school student who always toes the mark until he enters college and is sent home because he causes too much trouble, she said.

A child must have a place to work for the joy of achievement away from the public praise. The atmosphere of the classroom, she emphasized, based on fairness and a feeling of equalness is perfect for this.

Wants Sure Thing

To the young man at the perfume counter the clerk purred: "Now here's one called 'Perhaps.' It's $35 an ounce."

"Thirty-five dollars!" exclaimed the young man. "For $35 I don't want 'Perhaps.' I want 'Sure.'"

Three R's In US, USSR

Russian education as it compares with American education will be the topic of Dr. George Z. F. Bereday at Convocation at 2 p.m. June 30 in Love Memorial Library Auditorium.

Dr. Bereday will hold comparative education seminars open to the public each day next week in the Administration Building.

Dr. Bereday was born in Poland in 1920, served with the Polish cavalry and British paratroopers. He received a B.A. and M.A. in History from the University of Oxford, B.S. in Sociology from the University of London and Ph.D. in Special Comparative Education from Harvard University.

He is an associate professor of Education in the Teachers College of Columbia University. He has held an executive post in the British Ministry of Education on the Committee for Education of Poles in Great Britain.

Dr. Bereday is editor of the "Comparative Education Review" and joint editor of "education yearbook."

This convocation, second in a series of three, is part of the World Affairs Preview.
