

Plans, Fees Due Thursday-Swarts

Penny Carnival first and second plans along with a $5 entrance fee and $2.50 fee for favors must be turned in to Kaymarie Swarts at the Sigma Kappa house between 3 p.m. and 9 p.m. Thursday.

Houses will be notified on Sunday if their plan has been accepted. More Space Penny Carnival will be held in the Military Naval and Science Building this year to "provide more space so that all houses can participate," said Miss Swarts.

Deans' Tea To Welcome Gal Students

The annual Dean's Tea for all women students at the University will be held Friday in the Residence Halls for Women.

This is the only event during the school year in which representatives from all campus women's groups participate in one project.

A welcome for freshman women, as well as returning upperclassmen, to the University campus is the reason for the tea, said Miss Helen Snyder, associate dean of student affairs.

Miss Snyder, Mrs. Clifford Hardin, wife of the chancellor, Miss Madeline Girard, Panhellenic director Miss Ruth Meierhenry, business manager of the Residence Halls, and Miss Olivia Hansen, head resident of the residence Halls, will be in the receiving line.

Presenting guests to the receiving line will be Miss Nancy Copeland, Mortar Board president, and Miss Nan Carlson, president of AWS.

Young Demos Will Organize

A University Young Democrats group will be formed Thursday evening at 7:15 in the Union.

The Thursday meeting will be the first attempt to organize a campus Democratic group in recent years.

The organization, which will submit a constitution to the student council for approval, will concentrate on active participation in the current election campaign.

The speaker for the group Thursday evening will be professor Merton Bernstein of the College of Law. Bernstein has been administrative assistant to Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon and during the past few years has served as special counsel to the Senate Labor Committee.

BABW Mixer Planned Sunday

A mixer for all independent women will be held in the Union from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday in parlors ABC.

The mixer, sponsored by Barb Activities Board for Women, is designed as a "get-acquainted" session for independent coeds living in different housing units, according to Doris Eby, president.

A fall style show is planned, with an informal card party scheduled afterward, Miss Eby said.

Tickets will be on sale Thursday for 15 cents in dorms on both City and Ag campus.

NU Work Topic In Atom Study

Atomic research at the University will be discussed before an international conference this week at Gatlinburg, Tenn.

Dr. Theodore Jorgensen, professor of physics here will speak at the conference, sponsored by the National Academy of Sciences and UNESCO.

Topic under discussion is "The Penetration of Charged Particles in Matter."

favors this year to cut expense and the time involved in making original favors, Miss Swarts commented.

The favor is a cardboard "penny" with a picture of Lincoln and the words "University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Coeds, 1958" on one side and "Penny Carnival" and the Greek letters of the participating house on the other side. The favors for each house are a different color.

A required meeting for all active and pledge booth chairmen will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. in Union 316. If a house is not represented at this meeting, it will not be able to participate in Penny Carnival.

Penny Carnival is sponsored annually by Coed Counselors both as a money-making project and as a way for freshman pledge classes to become better acquainted.

Booths in the Carnival vie for first, second and third place honors. Winners are determined by a vote of students attending and by a panel of judges.

Last year the Carnival was held in the Union Ballroom, but large crowds prompted this year's move to the Military and Naval Science Building.

Officer's Orientation Scheduled Thursday

Hardin, Colbert to Address Session

Chancellor Clifford Hardin and J. Philip Colbert, dean of Student Affairs, will be guest speakers at the student council sponsored orientation session Thursday.

The session is for officers of campus organizations and organized houses. It will be held at 4 p.m. in the Union ballroom.

Following short talks by Chancellor Hardin and Dean

Colbert, the group will break up into smaller special interest sections.

Officers attending the meeting include organization presidents, treasurers, scholarship chairmen, social chairman, health representatives and parliamentarians.

J. P. Harper, treasurer of the Student Activities Fund, will speak to organization treasurers. Scholarship chairmen will be addressed by Dr. Lewis Fowles, assistant dean of Student Affairs.

Frank Hallgren and Helen Snyder, Associate Deans of Student Affairs, will speak to the social chairman.

Talking to health chairman will be Dr. Samuel Fuehning, director of Student Health.

Don Olson, director of the University debate squad, will speak to the parliamentarians.

Question Period Following the talks will be a question and answer period.

"This orientation session will enable officers to ask questions now, and might save them a future trip to the Administration Office," Gary Frenzel, council vice-president said.

He added that the speeches would be short, and that the entire session should be over by 4:45 p.m.

Exchange Ideas "This is an excellent opportunity for organization officers to learn what the University expects of them, some of the University's plans for the year, parliamentary procedure, and to exchange ideas with members of the Administration," Dwaine Rogge, council president said. "Be sure to bring your questions Thursday," he added. "Those officers who attended in the past have learned much that has helped them in their organizations."

All Pledges Own Hats This Year

Freshman beanies are selling "very well," Dick Shugrue, Innocent in charge of sales said.

All fraternity pledges have now purchased beanies, he reported. Beanie sales will continue the rest of this week. "We hope we'll get the same cooperation from unaffiliated students as we have from the fraternity members," Shugrue said. "The beanie tradition is one of the last lingering traditions of a campus-wide scope."

With the money derived from beanie sales, the Innocents carry on other programs including Homecoming, Ivy Day, the Missouri Victory Bell celebration and the Colorado Buffalo Head activities, Shugrue added.

Concert Drive Starts Thursday

The kick-off dinner for the student membership drive for Lincoln Community Concerts will be held Thursday at 6 p.m. in Union XY.

Anyone who wants to sell memberships and would like to attend the dinner should call 2-7631, ext. 4285, by 5 p.m. today, according to Bob Handy, Union Activities Director.

The salesmen receive one free membership for every 10 they sell and they have an opportunity to win an RCA Victor hi fi set, Handy said. Memberships are $4 and will be available only through Sept. 24.

Tassel Signup Deadline Near Friday is the signup deadline for Tassels, according to Jane Savener, publicity chairman.

Independent sophomores and juniors are eligible. Seven Barb sophomores, three Ag sophomores, four Barb juniors and three Ag juniors are needed.

Application blanks are available at both Ag and City Unions. Requirements are a 5.5 average and interest in promoting school spirit, Miss Savener said.

Lake Sees Jan. 1 As Crib Opening

Construction Progress Remains On Schedule

By Diana Maxwell Copy Editor

The rains came with a vengeance, the strikes came at crucial points, but the Student Union addition is inching its way toward a partial opening by January 1.

Duane Lake, managing director of the Union, crossed his fingers as he prophesied New Year's as opening day for the new enlarged cafe and kitchen.

Suffering now from its third strike, this one by the metal workers, construction of the addition should allow a grand opening next fall, Lake said.

The view that presents itself now beyond the red "Women" sign put up by an enterprising individual, is remarkably like that of a dorm room before either occupant has put away his belongings.

Exceptionally rainy weather has left the floors in the addition spotted with puddles. File, wires, piles of every kind of construction equipment make an obstacle course out of what will eventually be ballrooms, cafeterias, bowling alleys and game rooms.

Glass Walls Molds have been poured for glass walls that will almost encircle the $1,250,000 structure. Once the walls are in, Lake said, weather should not pose much of a threat to construction schedules. "Pretty much on schedule" was how Lake described the progress now.

The streaks of freshly plastered walls in the Crib, the yawning holes that appear in scattered places throughout the present Union, represent work that was done on the heating and cooling systems.

Separate Heat A 500-ton steam absorption unit in the new addition will separate the Union from the University system, which is already heavily taxed.

Changes in the pipes and ducting in the old Union are "souping-up" the heating system throughout," Lake said. Work begins this week on the inside walls of the new Crib and kitchen, Lake said. This is the portion of the addition directly behind the "Women" sign in the main hall of the present Union.

Gloomy Cavern What will eventually be 10 bowling lanes is now a gloomy cavern with several troughs running the length of the floor. Eight of the lanes will be used for leagues and classes, but two will be kept free at all times for open bowling, Lake said.

What will in several months be recognizable as party rooms to be used for small conventions, hour dances and exhibits is now so dark that flashlights are needed to grope through the debris.

Reporters

Students who wish to join the Daily Nebraskan reporting staff may sign up Thursday at the upperclass activities mart in the Union Ballroom, according to Emmie Limpo, senior staff writer. Previous journalistic experience is not needed, although journalism students are especially needed, Miss Limpo said.

AWS Signup Set Thursday

Upperclassmen wishing to register for University activities may do so Thursday, according to AWS president Nan Carlson.

The annual Activities Mart for upperclassmen will be held in the Union parlor from 2 to 5:30 p.m. Representatives will be on hand to explain the functions of the various University organizations and sign up new members.

Merry-Go-Round Starts Spin

AWS Mart Opens Activity World To Upperclassmen

This is the first of a series of articles dealing with campus activities.

With the opening of school, campus activities will again begin their round of meetings, typing and decorating.

Upperclassmen will be introduced to these groups following the AWS Mart Thursday, but freshmen must wait six weeks before participation in activities.

The various organizations and their functions are listed below.

The All University Fund solicits donations for many causes through one major drive. Student officers and chairmen aided by a faculty adviser make up the AUF Board, while freshman workers help with the fall drive.

Tassels is the women's pep organization composed of sophomores and juniors who appear at football games and other athletic contests in an effort to bolster student morale.

The freshman group corresponding to Cobs and Tassels is Kernals, men and women chosen from both unorganized and organized houses.

Kosmet Klub is a group of male students which advances several theatrical shows for the University and public. Each year the Klub sponsors the Fall Revue and the Spring Show. Sophomore and freshman males are eligible for worker positions.

The Nebraska Blueprint is a monthly engineering magazine of the College of Engineering and Architecture. The staff of the Blueprint is made up of students in Engineering College.

The Cornhusker, the University yearbook, is published by a paid staff chosen by the faculty-student Subcommittee on Student Publications. The staff also consists of unpaid section heads and workers.

Mrs. Reece, '29th Pledge,' Becomes Kappa Sig Housemom

(Ed. Note: This is the first of a series of articles about the new housemothers in both fraternity and sorority houses.)

By George Moyer Managing Editor

The official Interfraternity Council pledge list has 28 names listed under Kappa Sigma, but the Kappa Sigs themselves insist they took 29 new pledges this year.

The 29th "pledge" is Mrs. John Reece, Pueblo, Colorado, the new Kappa Sig housemother.

Freshman Mrs. Reece, or "Jamey," as she prefers to be called, has never been a housemother on any other campus so she is starting off her new job "as lost as any of the freshmen."

The idea of becoming a housemother is not new to Mrs. Reece, however. "Before I ever got married, I thought if I ever wind up a middle aged widow, as most women nowadays will, I'd like to be a housemother," Mrs. Reece said. The job appealed to her because she, herself, had attended two universities and had liked the college atmosphere. Though she was originally from Illinois, she attended Oklahoma University "because I had relatives in Norman."

Taught in Illinois After graduating from Oklahoma, she returned to Illinois to teach and after a year there, she went to Colorado.

"I had relatives living there so I thought I'd go west and find some adventure," Mrs. Reece said.

"We had to get a Colorado certificate before we could teach there so I went to the University of Colorado for a summer. I don't think I'll try to transfer my grades from there if I ever go back to school. I had a terrible time, Mrs. Reece recalled.

Two Daughters In 1931, Mrs. Reece married. She has two daughters, both married. One of them lives in Omaha "so I get to see one of my girls once in a while," Mrs. Reece says.

After her husband's death, Mrs. Reece thought of her old plan of becoming a housemother. Her husband had been of Kappa Sigma at the University of Colorado so when she heard that Nebraska's Kappa Sigs were looking for a housemother to replace Mrs. George Engler, who retired last year, she applied.

"I like working with young people, she said. "They are so natural." The Kappa Sigs think that "Jamey" is a natural too.
